SEISMOGRAPHIC CREW doing some wildcat oil exploration in Beacon Hill Park? Could be, but it isn't. Drilling rig working near "Fountain Lake" is searching for water to help parks department augment piped source. High cost of water forced the move, which if successful, will supply the park lakes. A water diviner using dowsing rod picked likely spot, predicting a well would strike water at about 70 feet.

U.S. CASUALTIES TOP 100,000 MARK IN WAR

SAIGON (AP)—The United States command disclosed today for the first time its official total of United States combat casualties — 101,025 — since the beginning of major American involvement in Vietnam nearly seven years ago.

A high-ranking spokesman said that as of the end of last week 13,634 American troops had been killed in action since January 1, 1961; 86,635 wounded; 545 missing, and 211 captured or interned.

Invasion Hinted, Senator Insists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Vance Hartke D-Ind., said today that the possibility of invading North Vietnam is being "seriously considered" by the Johnson administration.

"President Johnson is under increasing pressure to do that,' Hartke said.

Hartke's statement came amid growing reports that an invasion of North Vietnam had been proposed by some military leaders to relieve marines from a murderous artillery attack from Communist guns in the area of the truce zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Hartke said the pattern of past intensification of the U.S. war effort was being followed by the adminsitration — "a contrived leak, a trial balloon, a carefully worded Pentagon denial."

Hartke claimed Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador to South Vietnam, sent up the trial balloon in Pittsburgh where he was reported as advocating an invasion. Lodge denied making such a statement.

CAREFULLY WORDED

The "Carefully worded Pentagon denial" that an invasion has not been recommended by the joint chiefs of staff is the next step in the process, Hartke said. He said this would be "the common denial before the actual implementation."

"It doesn't mean high officials aren't considering invasion," Hartke said.

Five Killed

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Five men, all from Illinois, were killed late Thursday when a twin-engined Beechcraft crashed into a microwave telephone communications tower about 50 miles north of here.

'I'll Stay' —Soviet Scientist

Seeks Academic Freedom Here

By RON MacDONALD

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. Boris Dotsenko, a ranking Soviet nuclear scientist, said Thursday night he has applied to remain permanently in Canada because in this country he can find academic freedom.

Dr. Dotsenko, 41, is a former chief nuclear scientist at the Ukrainian Academy of Science in Kiev. He came to the University of Alberta a year ago on a research grant, having been granted 10 months' leave from his latest appointment as head of the nuclear laboratory at Kiev State University in the U.S.S.R.

Dr. Dotsenko said in an interview that since he applied to the Canadian immigration department for permanent resident status, he has been visited by two representatives of the Soviet embassy at Ottawa.

"They tried hard to persuade me to go back. They said I would be safe in the Soviet Union. . . .

"I told them I was staying here. I would not go back to the Soviet Union, that's for sure."

GRANT EXTENSION

Dr. Dotsenko said he applied to the Canadian immigration department two months ago and was granted a one-year extension of his stay in Canada. Immigration authorities told him they would consider his application for permanent residence here at the end of the one-year period.

Dr. Dotsenko came to Edmonton under an exchange agreement between the University of Alberta and Kiev University.

Interviewed by telephone at the home of Dr. J. T. Sample, head of the University of Alberta physics department, he said his reasons for wishing to remain in Canada are both professional and political.

The professional reasons are the major ones, Dr. Dotsenko added.

"The main point is that I am a scientist and in the conditions here in Canada I can work far more effectively.

"There is a far more. . . . Well, I am not afraid to use the word— there is a far more 'democratic' approach here."

Dr. Dotsenko described his field as abstract nuclear theory. In the Soviet Union, he said, he found too much emphasis on nuclear research that would have some immediate practical effect.

LIMITED IN RESEARCH

The result was that there was too little opportunity to engage in abstract research—research conducted largely for the purpose of expanding the body of knowledge in the field, regardless of "practical" results.

"I am only human, and I could be wrong, but I think it is not a proper way to go about scientific research."

Dr. Dotsenko said too much control was exercised on Soviet scientists by other authorities. Lines of endeavor could be dictated and the search for scientific "truth" was often hindered by cosiderations of how a piece of research might affect, for example by contradicting, the work of other researchers.

Castellani Guilty Of Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rene Castellani, 42-year-old former radio station promotions man, today was found guilty of the arsenic poisoning of his wife. He had been charged with capital murder.

He was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 23.

A jury of nine men and three women deliberated for more than nine hours Thursday night and today before returning the verdict in British Columbia Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Victor Dryer.

It was the second time such a verdict has been reached. Castellani was convicted at an earlier trial but was granted a new trial by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Esther Castellani, then 40, died in Vancouver General Hospital on July 11, 1965, two months after being admitted for tests. She had been suffering from a mysterious illness for several months.

An autopsy said she died of heart failure brought on by an acute infection. Her body was later exhumed on order of the Vancouver coroner, on a suspicion of arsenic poisoning.

FOOD CHEAPER

Consumer Index Down Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Lower food prices at the beginning of September pushed the consumer price index down one-fifth of a point to 150.7 from 150.9 in August, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Lower pharmaceutical prices, following removal of the federal sales tax, also contributed to the slight drop in the index, which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

All other components of the index rose except tobacco and alcohol which remained unchanged. Biggest increase was in clothing.

At 150.7, the all-items index for September was 5.6 points above the index for September last year. This represents price increases of almost four per cent in the year.

Economists say that ideally, prices should not increase more than two per cent a year.

PRICES LOWER

The food price index fell to 148.5 from 151.2, largely as a result of seasonally lower prices for most fresh vegetables and some fresh fruits. There were also lower prices for poultry, wieners, lamb, sugar and infants' foods.

The housing component of the all-items index rose to 152.6 from 152.2 because of generally higher rents and home-ownership costs.

In August, the consumer price index rose seven-tenths of a point to 150.9 from 150.2 mainly because of higher food prices. The food index rose to 151.2 from 148.5 in July.

The consumer price index measures changes since 1949 in the prices of a selection of 300 goods and services typical of those bought in 1957 by families of two to six people, living in cities of more than 30,000 population, and with annual incomes which during 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

Prices are surveyed late in the month and applied to the following month. In the case of the new September index, prices were surveyed late in August.

NOW AND THEN

OTTAWA (CP)—September consumer prices index compared with August and a year earlier:

	1967		1966
	Sept.	Aug.	Sept.
All items	150.7	150.9	145.1
Food 27	148.5	151.2	147.1
Housing 32	152.6	152.2	145.4
Clothing 11	134.7	132.3	127.0
Tr'sport'n 12	158.4	158.0	151.2
Health 7	191.4	191.9	181.3
Recreation 5	168.7	167.9	158.8
Tob., alcoh'l 6	128.6	128.6	126.4

Figures after item groups indicate their relative importance in establishing all-items index.

Explosions From Sewers Rock Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A series of explosions in the sewerage system in east end Toronto today smashed windows and sent employees scurrying for cover. No injuries were reported as the explosions blew several manhole covers into the air, shooting flames and smoke near cars and pedestrians.

Police sealed off traffic in the area while firemen and city works employees hunted for the source of the explosions. Traffic was resumed later.

At least two more explosions occurred after firemen arrived. Officials believed sewer gas was responsible for the explosions-centre in the area of Queen and Carlaw streets.

Police imposed a ban on smoking through a 10-square-block area and traffic was rerouted. Gas lines to the area were closed.

Mrs. Gina Apostolopoulos of Toronto said she was leaving her parked car at the time of the explosion.

"There was fire and smoke," she said. "It sounded like a thunderstorm." She and her mother ran to a bank building with her two children.

Mines Kill 38

DA NANG, South Vietnam (Reuters) — Viet Cong guerrilla mines, apparently aimed at U.S. marines, blew two buses to pieces near here Thursday killing 38 Vietnamese civilians, an American spokesman said today.

Economy Called 'Shaky'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (CP)—The Common Market's executive commission today published a report recommending the opening of negotiations on applications by Britain, Norway, Denmark and Ireland for membership of the community.

The report, which said Britain's shaky economy will make negotiations difficult, will be formally submitted to the European parliament of the six, who will discuss it at a future session in Strasbourg, West Germany.

British leaders were preparing swift counter-moves against the report's claim about the country's economy and its implication of a devaluation of sterling.

Prime Minister Wilson today authorized Foreign Secretary George Brown to prepare a full answer to the criticism within the next few days when foreign ministers of the seven-nation Western European Union meet in London.

The WEU, formed as a defence group, links Britain with the Common Market countries.

SUBMITTED REPORT

The commission's report has already been submitted to the community's council of ministers which is obliged to ask the opinion and advice of the commission applications for membership.

The commission says that only by opening negotiations with the four applicants can solutions be found to the problems arising from their entry into the European community.

"In any case," it says, "an adaptation of the British economy appears necessary."

Word of Britain's tactic emerged after French President de Gaulle Thursday summoned British Ambassador Sir Patrick Reilly for a surprise talk on Britain's application to join. An account of the exchange in Paris was sent to Wilson and Brown at Scarborough, England.

DE GAULLE HOSTILE

Wilson and his colleagues remain convinced that de Gaulle's hostility is focussed on the belief that Britain would supplant France as the dominant power within the Common Market if her membership were approved.

They still are hoping full-scale negotiations will begin in Brussels by next month and that positive signs will emerge by the end of the year and that the French will not exercise a political veto on Britain's entry.

A Common Market report on Britain's application carried an analysis of her economic position by French commissioner Raymond Barre.

A reference to what Barre said was the "structural disequilibrium" of the economy seemed to carry the implication that sterling would need to be devalued if it were not to become a burden on member-states if Britain joins.

7-YEAR TERM FOR 'POT'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A judge handed down a seven-year prison sentence on a youth convicted of importing marijuana, then said the sentence was too heavy.

Judge Frank Wilson said in county court here Thursday that he had no option but to impose the sentence, which he said was the minimum provided by the law.

Brian Ross Boyer, described in court as a 19-year-old unemployed musician, was charged with importing from the United States 22 pounds of marijuana with an underworld market value of $28,000.

HELP PROMISED

After passing sentence, the judge said he would do what he could through the federal probationary branch to help Boyer, whom he described as not a person with a vicious character but one who had been misled.

Boyer and Dexter Charles Howell, both of West Vancouver, were charged March 15 after customs officers at the U.S. border crossing at nearby Aldergrove, found marijuana under the rear seat of a car in which they were riding.

Howell was found not guilty.

FAMED WARRIORS BEING DISBANDED

Gurkhas Fall Victim to Cutback

LONDON (AP) — The British Army has begun the sad task of disbanding some of its finest fighting men— the Gurkhas.

The Gurkha brigade is being trimmed to 10,000 or less from 14,500 in line with the British government's policy of gradual withdrawal from east-of-Suez outposts.

The tough little hillmen from Nepal have fought as mercenaries for Britain for 150 years, and they have many admirers.

"No matter what sort of job you give him, the Gurkha seems to come out on top," said one British officer.

Gurkha troops recently earned praise for their coolness when fired on by Chinese troops at Hong Kong.

About 4,000 Gurkhas are helping to keep the Union Jack flying in that colony. Singapore has 2,000 and the remainder are in various parts of Malaysia.

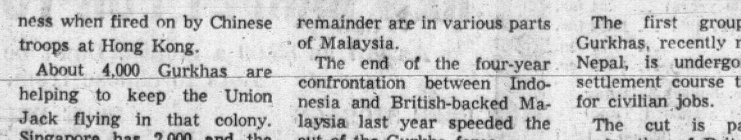
The end of the four-year confrontation between Indonesia and British-backed Malaysia last year speeded the cut of the Gurkha force.

The first group of 300 Gurkhas, recently returned to Nepal, is undergoing a resettlement course to fit them for civilian jobs.

The cut is part of a contraction of Britain's army of 180,000. Defence Secretary Denis Healey says it will be down to 165,000 men by 1970.

Nepal gets a large chunk of its foreign currency from the export of Gurkha soldiers, and the reduction is being spread to prevent too much harm to the Nepali economy.

Gurkha troops fought in both world wars. Twelve won the Victoria Cross, in living up to their motto: "It is better to die than live a coward."



Seems sellin' t' th' Common Market is tough when you're tryin' t' sell a whole country.

Analyst's Comments / Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — Cocoa Silk sheds 11 pounds here and should escape a mud bath early. But he tends to back up even when he gets clear. Rondocal shouldn't be too far back and with a race over the track could be hard to hold. Souzem has been outlucked twice. They're switching riders on him; much depends on whether Salas can get good position early. Whip N' Blinkers and Magic Shan arent' entirely out of it . . . RONDOCAL, Souzem, Magic Shan.

SECOND RACE—Royal Envy, Royal Spender, Ann's Treasure and Conibhai should lead them away but aside from Royal Spender the others haven't been sticking with it. Western Chief's last was inexplicably bad; most Tall Chief's like the off going. Stopem is hard to figure; with his best he has a shot. Gilt Star may be one to fear. Frazier took him slightly off the pace last time and he was moving in at the finish. Ellabhai couldn't cut it with much better but might be able to catch part of the pot. . . . GILT STAR, Royal Spender, Ann's Treasure.

THIRD RACE — Society Mil has travelled with better and should like the track. The post and rider help. Sunday Session keeps stepping up but is very sharp and goes well for Harris. Hay Billy keeps moving up and winning but he would need his very best here. Judo Holt and Top Canadian have early lick but they have to run on the outside of Sunday Session and you empty the fuel tank doing that. Speed Command may have needed his last. If the speed falters he could be a menace late. Joey Lark was a rousing third and gets all the best of weights. In a frantic finish. . . SOCIETY MIL, Speedy Session, Hay Billy.

FOURTH RACE — Hola Fire drops five and may try to open up on these. He meets more pace here but mud is his racket. Avons Boss is going well enough to get a piece or perhaps all of it. Dark Bug once was considered a superior mud mare but the old punch doesn't seem to be there. Alice Kaput belongs but the outside presents problems for her style. Easy Ella mingles with these and rather well at times. Pidges Pride comes off a win, likes the track and has a good shot. If the boy can keep Gallant Orphan from getting too far out of it early, the others could be in trouble in the stretch. . . . GALLANT ORPHAN, Hola Fire, Avons Boss.

FIFTH RACE — The class of the party is probably Same Affair. He doesn't seem at his peak and he might need to be to handle these. Bucs Brother is often in the money but the spot isn't soft. Commander Joe is a distinct danger if they let him set his own pace. The track suits him. Rough Road isn't running two alike but he's capable. Tamanaco probably needed his last and may improve. Waraway grinds them down late, seems capable in the going . . . SAME AFFAIR, Commander Joe, Waraway.

SIXTH RACE—Unless he falls down coming out of the gate Never Charge should sizzle away from these early. He gets the staggers, however, and it's hard to see him sticking it. With his style he makes it rough for Easel's Pride, Betty's Pride and anything else that likes to run on the front end. Early lick can never be overlooked but we think the winner will come out of the pack. Rotated is a tough little sonofagun and if he doesn't give the rider trouble could be a factor. But essentially it seems to boil down to Uncle Roddy and In Solid. They'll need luck to find the holes and the moves will have to be well-timed. In Solid couldn't collar Uncle Roddy on a slow track Sept. 2 and might not be able to do it here . . . UNCLE RODDY, In Solid, Rotated.

SEVENTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who goes for the lead. Most of these like to come from out of it; a front-runner could put up quite an argument if the pace is slow. Chief Malarkey might try for it and while he didn't beat this kind he was impressive. Oratress needed that last and should be tighter. Glencar is improving rapidly and War Treasure runs with the big boys and well. Golden Wine has done almost everything asked and you have to go back a long way to find a poor race. Still it's asking a lot of a filly to spank colts and Handsome Chief and Big Cheese are good colts. The former won in hand and perhaps is better than he looked. Weight is the only question mark about Big Cheese. If he can lug 125 pounds it may be all over . . . BIG CHEESE, Handsome Chief, Golden Wine.

EIGHTH RACE — Sun Lodge and Fair Spin will probably claw for the lead; neither has shown excessive courage lately. Regal Star adds 10 lbs. and switches to Salas; his late run may get the job done. Dark Doll is honest and closes resolutely; the boy suits. Whiskers has a look . . . DARK DOLL, Regal Star, Whiskers.

CANON SMITH . . . out

Rector Quits On Request After Verdict

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. G. Moore Smith, rector of St. Matthias' Anglican Church, and his assistant, Rev. Douglas Tisdall, resigned Thursday in the wake of an inquest into the death of 18-year-old Katherine Globe.

Rt. Rev. G. B. Snell, Anglican Bishop of Toronto, said he asked Canon Smith for his resignation Thursday, one day after the jury ruled the minister and his wife negligent in the death of the girl.

Katherine died June 21 in the church rectory of a brain abscess and meningitis.

The inquest jury heard that a faith healing group at the church had tried to cure the girl with prayer and exorcism rites.

Mr. Tisdall resigned "as a measure of protest" over the way the bishop had treated the matter. He said he was proud of his association with Canon Smith.

Bishop Snell said Mr. Tisdall was notified that his tenure of office and association with St. Matthias ended with the resignation of Canon Smith.

A church official said that Canon Smith remains a minister in the Anglican Church, although no plans for his future have been considered yet.

The Venerable G. H. Johnson, archdeacon of the diocese, has been appointed temporary priest-in-charge of St. Matthias.

Bishop Snell announced a commission to investigate activities of the St. Matthias group, a step recommended by the jury.

Centenary Czar Quits Post For Journalism

VANCOUVER (CP)—Centennial Commissioner John Fisher confirmed today he had resigned his federal post and has accepted a new job as publisher and managing director of Northwest Publications Ltd.

Northwest owns two daily newspapers and five weekly newspapers in central and northern British Columbia.

"I felt my job was pretty much completed," Mr. Fisher said in an interview. "After all, we're over the hump so far as the centennial is concerned, and I think it has sufficient momentum to carry on without my services."

Victim Identified

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF pilot killed Thursday when his CF-104 jet fighter crashed in France was identified by defence headquarters today as Sqdn. Ldr. Donald Joseph Misselbrook, 36, of Lone Rock, Sask.

'FREE MEN' NOW

'Death of Hippie' Proclaimed on High

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Elders of San Francisco's hippie community gathered today atop Buena Vista Hill to proclaim "the death of the hippie" with pomp and dramatics.

As dawn brightened the splendid view, they ceremoniously complained that their famed Haight-Ashbury district has gone wrong.

Then they moved down Haight Street, cleaning up trash, common since the summer invasion of tourists and thrill-seekers. Outside of some hippie shops, closed for the three-day funeral observance, sidewalks were scrubbed with flourishes. Skull emblems were placed on windows.

Later, a solemn funeral procession was scheduled to circle the district symbolically purging it of evil. Hippies were asked to drop things meaningful to them, such as their beads, in a huge coffin.

NEW IMAGE

As the "day of death" plan was developed in lengthy meetings of Haight-Ashbury patriarchs, the observance was turned into more of a death of labels event than anything else.

"We need a new image," they said.

The hippies want to kill their world-known name. From death comes rebirth, they said.

They now wish to be known as "free men."

Daniel Rifkin, manager of The Grateful Dead band, important in popularizing San Francisco rock music, complained that the hippie label was manufactured by mass media. He said the name was a way to lump all kinds of unconventional people "in the same bag" with drug-crazed and other nasty connotations.

Further, the name is attracting too many phony hippies, said Arthur Lisch, a prime mover in the Diggers, who scrounged for food which they served free daily in Golden Gate Park.

MANY LEAVING

"Many of the creative people are leaving," he said. "At this point, the Haight-Ashbury is a box." He estimated that San Francisco hippies are now operating about 20 different communes, each with more than a dozen in California.

MAO SNUB SPARKS DOCK BRAWL

TILBURY, England (AP) — Angry British dockworkers refused to work a Communist Chinese freighter today following a battle with Chinese crew members.

Police broke up a mob of 60 longshoremen and Chinese who grappled on the River Thames dockside Thursday after a docker hurled a picture of Mao Tse-tung to the ground when it was pinned on him by a crew member.

Some dockers were bruised as they traded blows, using lengths of timber, with the Chinese.

A gang was detailed to start unloading 500 tons of general cargo from the Hang Zhou today and loaded up 1,100 tons to get the ship on its way.

REJECTED by the United States, Gruja Apostolovic, 27, and his wife Desanka, 26, have decided to move to Calgary rather than be deported to their Yugoslavian homeland. Their children, Miroslav, 2, and Danica, 13 months, were born in the United States and did not face deportation.

Canada Offers Couple Shelter As U.S. Moves to Deport Them

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A choice was offered Gruja and Desanka Apostolovic — leave the United States and return to Yugoslavia without their two children or pick another country.

They've picked Canada — Calgary, to be precise.

A spokesman for the Canadian consulate in Los Angels said Thursday night the couple's way is expected to be cleared by this weekend.

Apostolovic, 27, and his wife, 26, came to the U.S. from Belgrade five years ago on two-month visas. They were granted six-month extensions.

In Redondo Beach, they set up housekeeping. Apostolovic took a job as a cook and applied for indefinite visa extensions.

But the indefinite extensions required sponsorship by relatives living here who were U.S. citizens.

BILL DEFEATED

Representative Alphonso Bell (rep. Calif.) introduced a bill in Congress which would have allowed the couple to remain until they could apply for citizenship. It was defeated.

On Aug. 24, the couple was told by the U.S. immigration and naturalization service to prepare to enter some other country or they would be deported. The couple's two American-born children — Miroslav, 2, and Danica, 13 months — would remain if the couple was deported.

Then George Rosenberg, chief of the Los Angeles immigration bureau, called his Canadian counterpart, D. Walter Jennings.

Apostolovic had written the Canadian immigration office in Calgary and applied for admission. Jennings told Apostolovic he was "impressed."

So Rosenberg's office has stayed the deportation order until Canadian authorities can decide on the Apostolovic case.

Liberals Draw Tory Support To Defeat Motion

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government drew support from the Conservatives and a Social Credit member Thursday night to reject, 141 to 17, an NDP non-confidence motion.

Five Creditistes and independents J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres) and Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe) voted with the NDP on an amendment that criticized the government for not raising to $4,000 the personal income tax exemption for married couples.

The motion, on which Howard Johnston (SC — Okanagan-Revelstoke) voted with the Liberals, also took the government to task for not removing the federal sales tax on building materials.

Standings in the 265-seat Commons: Liberals 131, Conservatives 93, New Democrats 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 4, independent 3, vacant 4.

It was the second test of confidence in the government since Parliament resumed Sept. 25 after a summer recess. It weathered an attack on its housing policy Tuesday in a 112-to-98 vote.

RAPS INCREASES

The NDP motion was a subamendment to a government budget resolution. The Conservatives already have moved an amendment to the resolution criticizing the government for not reducing taxation and for "its reckless increase in governmental expenditures."

Six days are set aside for debate on the budget during a session. Three have been used and the remaining three will be set by the government House leader, who arranges the order of Commons business.

Finance Minister Sharp brought down the budget in June and debate on it was adjourned until after the summer recess.

Mr. Sharp came under stinging attack Thursday from the opposition and there were suggestions from his own party on ways of reducing government expenditure.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC — Peace River) said the government was on trial for mismanagement.

He claimed Mr. Sharp's warning that increased taxation could be used to cool off the economy "holds out the spectre of artificially created unemployment as a means of relief from the difficulties in which we find ourselves."

QUESTIONS MEMBER

Mr. Sharp listened intently and interjected questions occasionally as the 60-year-old Alberta lawyer accused the government of increasing spending by $400,000,000 over the last four years and of failing to implement 120 of the Glassco royal commission proposals for more efficient government administration.

"How did you arrive at that figure?" Mr. Sharp asked.

Mr. Baldwin cited the report of the auditor-general and subsequent government statements.

Jack Davis (L—Coast Capilano), parliamentary secretary to Mines Minister Pepin, praised the finance minister's handling of the economy, but suggested the government could be more businesslike with the taxpayers' money.

He rapped the $30,000,000 increase in estimates for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

The CBC had spent $400,000 and used 486 people to cover the recent Conservative leadership convention while the privately-owned CTV network did a better job with 48 people at a cost of $43,000, Mr. Davis claimed.

He predicted the CBC would get a badly needed shaking-up when it comes under new management after the passage of revisions in broadcasting legislation.

Assessment of the Round

WITH THE COMPLETION OF the Kennedy Round agreements now three months past, the various nations are trying to assess the implications of the tariff cuts in the light of their own needs and hopes. The consensus seems to be that much of the original emotionalism which greeted the June 30 agreements was misplaced, and some benefits were exaggerated in the general enthusiasm over the fact that the negotiations had not collapsed as they threatened many times to do. But many solid gains were made and world trade will enjoy greater freedom and expansion than have been possible for many a decade.

At the same time, some trade authorities make the point that the Kenendy Round, while very important, was not the greatest stimulant to trade which this century has seen. They cite the inauguration of multilateral tariff bargaining which came into effect under the Geneva Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in 1947. And American experts go back to 1934, when Congress empowered the president to vary duties within certain limits in response to similar action by other countries.

But even with these possible exceptions, there can be no doubt that the Kennedy Round agreements were a major step in the direction of freer world trade, and the participating nations are finding many specific instances of advantage to their export business. The most significant innovation, of course, was the use of across-the-board tariff cuts, amounting in many cases to 50 per cent. The tariff reductions averaged less than that, but many key goods were included in the maximum reductions. The United States granted average reductions of 35 per cent in its tariff barriers, equalled by the European Common Market and Japan. Britain's concessions averaged 38 per cent, and Canada's 24 per cent.

It is very difficult to equate different types of concessions; and many market changes can occur before the Kennedy Round provisions become fully operative in 1972. Reductions in ad valorem rates will have little effect in stimulating trade where the rates were already well above the point at which they provided protection. And the non-tariff barriers, not covered in the Kennedy Round decisions, are legion: quotas, "voluntary" limitation of exports, taxes designed to favor exports and inhibit imports, government purchasing policies, and so on. Even customs red tape and arbitrariness can themselves be a deterrent to trade.

The Kennedy Round contains no magic. It is not a cure-all for world trade problems but merely an opportunity. As Trade Minister Winters told a Maritimes audience recently, "the signing of the Kennedy Round signals the start of the race . . . it is only what the Canadian business community makes of it, nothing more, nothing less."

But apart from all its facets, it represents an encouraging demonstration of the ability of 54 countries to hammer out an agreement which will be of demonstrable benebit to them and to world prosperity in general. Those effects are now under way.

Assemble the Evidence

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA student council's concern over the spreading use of marijuana by young people has led it to call for research on the "uses and abuses" of the drug. The request has the defect that it appears to mean a research program at the local level when it is apparent that the problem is a national one beyond the immediate resources of the university here. A meaningful study must include all the complex medical, psychological, legal and social problems.

It is odd, considering the ancient history and world-wide use of marijuana, that relatively little is known about the drug; and that the available information is susceptible to interpretation in divergent ways. There has been well-publicized testimony from some medical men, for instance, to the effect that marijuna is not physiologically addictive. Other medical men are dubious about this claim because of the scarcity of data. Still others note the possibility of psychological dependence.

Some psychological researchers are advocates of marijuana, or at least permissive toward its use, on the grounds that it is less harmful in moderate usage than alcohol or tranquillizers, or even cigarettes. But recently there has been a growing body of evidence from several psychiatrists who have treated marijuana-using patients which indicates that it may not be nearly as harmless as many people—particularly young people—seem to believe. These psychiatrists have discovered moderate to severe psychological disorientation long after physcial traces of the drug have left the body.

One purpose of a rigorous scientific investigation of marijuana would be to determine whether the laws prohibiting its possession and use are justified—or whether they are overly severe in relation to the harmful effect of the drug on users. But such a study would not entirely solve the problem. The aversion of the majority of Canadians to legalizing marijuana would not necessarily be dispelled even in the unlikely event that it could be scientifically proved that it was no more harmful than, say, alcohol.

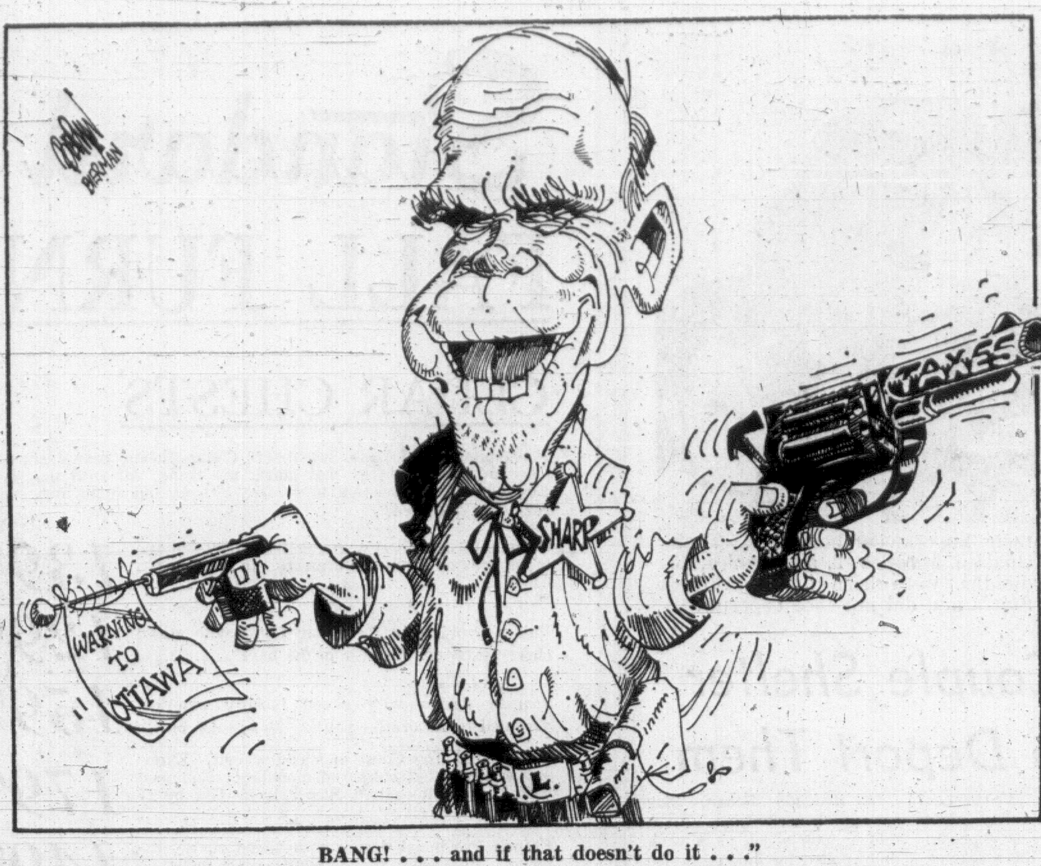
The use of drugs for purely escapist reasons is not, in any event, likely to gain favor among mature-minded persons.

People in Glass Houses

CONSERVATIVE PARTY CRITIcism of absentee Liberals at the opening session of the House of Commons, where Prime Minister Pearson was surrounded by the empty seats of cabinet ministers at a time when the opposition deluged him with questions, has quickly been turned to self-examination. For Tuesday's important non-confidence vote on the government's housing policy, the Conservatives could muster only 71 of their 98 members and the government was sustained by a majority of 14.

The opposition lapse was particularly noticeable in view of the brave description of Mr. Stanfield's cohorts as "bold, determined and aggressive." It is hardly likely that the opposition had any real intention of defeating the government and precipitating an election. But much closer House votes have been engineered during the past few years, and the Conservatives overdid the safety margin on Tuesday to the point of appearing timid, irresolute and far from aggressive—the opposite of the image they sought to project for their new leader, watching from the spectator's gallery.

Clearly, the whips of both parties have a job to do, for inattention to the public's business cannot fail to harm the stature of individual members and the fortunes of their party.



BANG! . . . and if that doesn't do it . . ."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

The Housing Vote and the Absentees

THE emergence of Mr. Robert Stanfield as national Conservative leader has not altered the basic situation in the House of Commons. With or without a mathematical majority, Mr. Pearson effectively commands Parliament because the Opposition on Tuesday's showing has no present intention of precipitating a general election. Mr. Chatterton's amendment was particularly attractive to the Opposition parties because the housing crisis is part of the larger problem of inflation for which the government clearly bears a large share of responsibility. But neither the Conservatives nor the New Democrats mounted an all-out effort on Tuesday evening.

Western

The voting totals tell their own story and so does the absence from the Opposition front benches of such notable figures as Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Douglas; and, of course, Mr. Diefenbaker whose plans for the future have yet to be clarified.

The housing problem is certainly not as simple as some Opposition members suggested in their speeches. Mr. Sharp mentioned a number of serious difficulties; among them the high cost of properly serviced land especially in metropolitan areas; the lack in many cases of proper urban development with adequate planning and control of land use; and the heavy burden of taxation on real property. These difficulties are not creations of the federal government but neither are they the reasons for the increase in interest rates.

What forced the government's action was another and basic problem listed by Mr. Sharp; the shortage of capital or savings. As he said: "housing must compete for capital with industry, and it must compete for capital with governments." The case against the government is that its own ravenous demands for goods and services have simply made the competition too tough.

Open to Counter-Attack

Unfortunately for the Opposition parties they are wide open to counter-attack on this issue. The Conservatives are under new management but they have yet to develop new policies and meanwhile Mr. Stanfield cannot very well escape from the liabilities of the old management.

It is all very well to attack the high cost of government, to complain of waste, of Parkinson's Law and the swollen bureaucracy. When confronted with specific spending programs, however, the Conservatives have generally complained that the country suffers from a parsimonious, miserly, hard-hearted government. They have been as righteous as Oppositions always are about the more glaring examples of conspicuous waste turned up by the auditor-general. But against the total budget these are trifles; they are certainly not the programs which add a billion or more a year to our national expenditures.

As Mr. Sharp said, "On this field the battles are fought on particular issues and not in terms of generalities." It will be possible to appraise the new management only when particular issues arise, as they probably will before long in the work of Parliament.

What has happened so far in the resumed session suggests a depressing persistence in old habits. The Conservatives certainly did their best last week to force the government into wheat subsidies; some of them argued for higher gold subsidies and others for housing subsidies, particularly for those in younger age groups with family responsibilities.

Drop Young Canadians

It should be noted in fairness that there was one suggestion for economy this week. Mr. George Muir, member for Lisgar, indicated a willingness to dispense with the services of the Company of Young Canadians, which costs some $2 million a year. Whether this is the considered view of new management, it is not yet possible to say. The records will show, however, that the CYC was one of the few projects, initiated by Mr. Pearson, which aroused an enthusiastic response from the old management of the Conservative party.

Budget deficits which feed inflation can be achieved either by excessive spending or by inadequate revenue measures. Although eager enough to spend, the Conservatives, under their former management, felt that the government should tax less while giving more to the provinces. Mr. Chatterton's anti-inflation case would have been more persuasive if it had not been supported by colleagues with ingenious new ideas for depleting the treasury. Thus Dr. Brand of Saskatoon looked wistfully at the United States, noting that in that country the homeowner can deduct interest and real estate taxes paid on his home from income tax.

No Explanation

How this could be anti-inflationary, he did not explain.

The new management has, of course, only recently taken over and it has been kept very busy organizing, making arrangements, binding wounds and recruiting in Manitoba. Mr. Stanfield has commented favorably on the morale of his troops but he has said rather little, at least in public, about the direction in which they are marching. There may be discipline in caucus but the discipline of priorities has yet to be reflected in Conservative speeches. Perhaps this is one reason, although scarcely the only one, why the Opposition is in no visible hurry to dismiss the government.

Cold Economics for Quebec

By CLAUDE RYAN

Editor, Montreal Le Devoir

WHILE certain public men . . . abstractly discuss what the economic situation would be in an independent Quebec, we are already at grips with a difficult economic situation that should be given the immediate attention of those in government and of responsible citizens. . . .

The first indication comes to us in a very instructive article published in La Presse of Saturday under the signature of Maurice Giroux. . .

In 1959, investment in industry in Ontario amounted to $150 per capita compared with $100 in Quebec. In 1967, the margin, far from diminishing, was accentuated. Everything indicates that for the current year the average in Ontario will be $211 per capita compared with $150 in Quebec.

In absolute figures, the difference is even greater in view of Ontario's larger population. The total of manufacturing investment in Ontario will be of the order of $1,800,000,000, while that in Quebec will barely amount to $858,000,000, a decrease of $56,000,000 from 1966.

Double Reality

Only a thorough study of all the factors involved in such a situation would provide an explanation of the trend. There can be no doubt, however, that the figures remind us of a double reality which we have a tendency to forget too easily. . . . We absolutely need investments not only from the interior but also from the exterior in order to maintain what we have and to catch up in the industrial field. And these investments will . . . only come if we know how to attract them by a combination of conditions among which economic competence of the Quebec government and political stability figure prominently, whether we like that or not.

A second indication is supplied us by none other than Mr. Paul Dozois, Quebec's finance minister.

To the executive of junior chambers of commerce who submitted certain proposals more generous than realistic, Mr. Dozois replied without flinching that the coffers of the province now are half empty and that it is practically impossible, for the time being, to consider dragging substantial sums from the pockets of taxpayers or from the wallets of foreign lenders. . . .

To what extent are the hesitation of investors and the government's borrowing difficulties attributable to objective factors such as the structure of Quebec industries and the too rapid increase in public expenditures? To what extent are they attributable to the uncertain political and social climate that prevails in Quebec?

No one can give a precise mathematical answer to these questions. Already we know, without being able to cite names publicly, that decisions important to the economic future of Quebec have either been cancelled, deferred or modified as a result of the uncertain policy of the government and of the general climate in Quebec. . . .

Under the circumstances, the present government should be urged to make known clearly its advice on the situation and to defince precisely the line of conduct it plans to follow not only on economic matters but also on political questions. These two aspects of our collective destiny are indissolubly linked. If we continue to dissociate them in the debates on our future, it will mean for us either stagnation or collapse.

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 6, 1907.

Among the guests who sat basking in the sunshine at the Oak Bay Hotel today, there was a short, dark man, whose face bespoke a virile and active nature, a man whose features are familiar, particularly to the English speaking world — the newspaperman of India, the writer and poet — Rudyard Kipling.

Mr. Kipling arrived yesterday and is accompanied by his wife. The author will be entertained by the Canadian Club tomorrow. He will spend several days in the city.

Letters

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may permit pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Draft-Dodgers

I feel that I must take issue with the religious denominations which advocate that Canada accept draft dodgers into our country and who have the temerity to advocate that we start a fund in order to give financial assistance to them. I would like it understood I am not discussing the pros and cons of the Vietnam war. Ths issue is not whether the war is just or that it is unjust. If we follow the line put forward by certain churches we are aiding and abetting the committing of a crime, the crime being that the draft dodgers are breaking the law set down by the legally elected government of the U.S.A.

I agree war is a dreadful thing and one might say no war is just. When I state war is a dreadful thing I speak from experience and not hearsay. I feel that the young people regardless of their personal feelings should be loyal to their country. — Ron Caplan, 410 Douglas Street.

"Good Grief!"

Mrs. Duckworth, National President of the Voice of Women, called for unilateral disarmament of the U.S.A. on a Vancouver radio broadcast October 3. Despite the continuing militant aggression on the part of North Vietnam and Red China, they naively ask that the free world disarm with the hope that the reds will have a "change of heart."

Good grief! If women can't do better than this after 50 years of involvement in politics, we'd better take away the vote from them—and fast!—(Mrs.) Angela Sheremeta, 2248 East 35th, Vancouver.

Why Not Jail?

I note that a man and his companies were fined a total of $45,000 for wilfully hiding $435,000 income from the federal authorities and thereby avoiding the payment of tax on that amount. The magistrate stated that the man in question kept two sets of books in order to hide the income.

When one reads the proceedings of the magistrate's courts in various parts of B.C. and finds that men and women are sent to prison for stealing or embezzling much smaller sums of money it makes one wonder why this man was not sent to prison for a long term. In my opinion a man or woman who willfully cheats on income-tax payments is just as guilty of crime as someone who shoplifts or enters and steals in a house or business establishment. People do not seem to understand that when someone cheats on income tax it means that the burden of taxation must be assumed by those who do not cheat. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne.

Second Brain

We read in the October 3 issue of the Victoria Daily Times that three Cleveland researchers have finally and successfully transplanted the brain of one dog into a skin pouch in the neck of another dog. This brain is connected to the arteries in the neck of the second dog and works well "with continuous electrical and chemical activity."

What useful purpose has been served? Yet the cost of such experiments, both in grants and animal life, is enormous. And one may well ask who would ever need a second brain in one's neck, when we do not seem to be using the brain we were born with? — Elizabeth Smith, Box 91, Sooke, B.C.

Thawing?

By ALAN HARVEY

From London

THE British government is becoming cautiously optimistic about the possibility of restoring diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic.

Despite pressure from Egyptian extremists clamoring for aggressive action, President Nasser is understood to be showing signs of a greater readiness to co-operate. Foreign Secretary George Brown has been in frequent and friendly contact with the Egyptian leader in recent weeks directly and, through intermediaries.

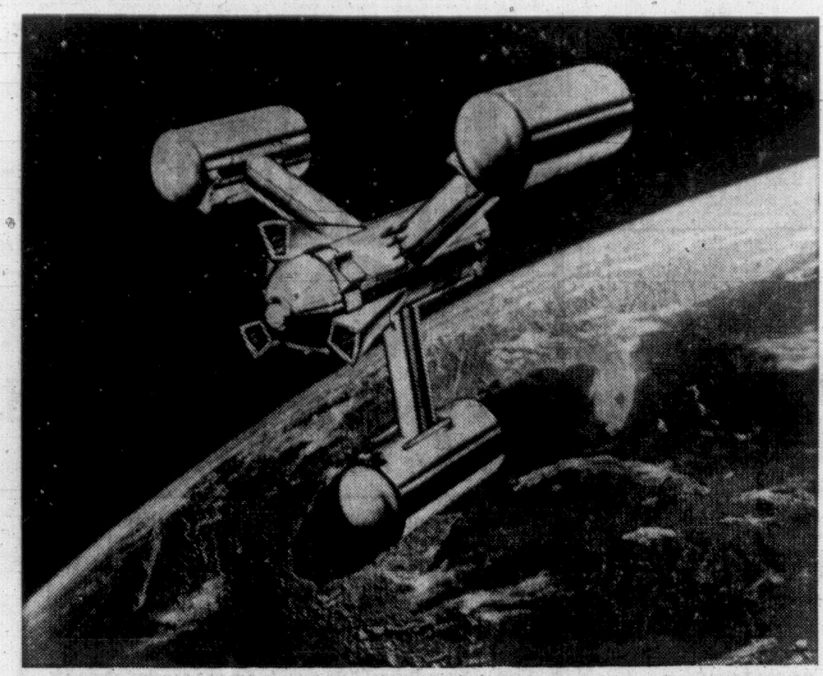
A major move in the "let's be friends again", campaign will be the visit to Cairo of Sir Harold Beeley, a former British Ambassador in Cairo. Sir Harold, now in Geneva, is expected to fly to Egypt withing the next few weeks.

Reports current in diplomatic circles suggest that Col. Nasser, who is a diabetic, is anxious to leave office at an opportune moment.

Egypt broke off diplomatic relations in December 1965 a month after Rhodesia's illegal declaration of independence.

Along with a more accommodating attitude toward Britain, President Nasser appears to be more favorably disposed toward a settlement of the conflict between Arabs and Israelis in the Middle East. Diplomatic recognition of Israel by the Arab is not envisaged but there would be a formal end to the state of belligerency and serious negotiations on frontier and security co-issues.

Reports from non-aligned countries suggest that Egypt is also considering plans for reopening the Suez Canal. Factors favoring an Anglo-Egyptian rapprochement include the beginning of the Egyptian withdrawal from the Yemen and the acceleration of British plans for evacuating Aden. Any sign of appeasement of Col. Nasser, however, would arouse criticism within Britain's Conservative party, which has accused the Labor government of debasing itself by grovelling before Col. Nasser.



Somewhere out in space are there other civilizations communicating with one another through powerful radio signals? Most scientists tend to discount the theory but Prof. Alan Barrett, of the Massachusetts Institute of Techlogoly, wonders if a "vast interstellar communications network" is the explanation for newly-discovered signals with surprising properties. The distinguished British astronomer, Dr. Fred Hoyle, adds to the speculation with his long-held belief that "we are not alone in the universe". Science reporter John Davy examines the evidence in the story below.

Strange Galactic Signals Stirring Scientific Debate

By JOHN DAVY

LONDON—A mysterious new astronomical discovery is boosting speculation about the likelihood of other civilizations in the universe.

Powerful radio signals with surprising properties have been detected coming from a number of points within our galaxy. An American scientist, Professor Alan Barrett, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has wondered if these signals could be part of a "vast interstellar communications network" on which we have stumbled.

Astronomers hastily emphasize the tenuous nature of these speculations. Nevertheless, in a program about the possibilities of extra-terrestrial civilizations which the BBC broadcast last night (entitled "Where is Everybody?"), Fred Hoyle, professor of astronomy at Cambridge, firmly argued his conviction that we are not alone in the universe: the main problem, he said, is "how to get ourselves into the galactic telephone directory."

Whatever their significance, the strange galactic signals are currently the focus of intense scientific debate. They appear to be coming from extremely small volumes of space — certainly no larger than our planetary system. Attempts to measure these sources have now led to a difficult and ambitious radio astronomy experiment, a hook-up between the giant radio-telescope at Jodrell Bank and radio-telescopes in Massachusetts and in California.

Combine Signals

The hook-up is being attempted by making simultaneous recordings of the signals in Britain and the United States. One set of magnetic tapes is then flown across the Atlantic and the two sets of signals are now being combined by a computer. This should give a more precise indication of the size of the sources.

The most favored theory is that the signals are being generated by some kind of gigantic natural maser. Just as lasers emit an intense beam of light at a single frequency, masers emit a single-frequency radio beam.

The energy is emitted by violently vibrating molecules: the frequency of these cosmic radio signals indicates that they are being emitted by vibrating molecules of OH, an electrically charged gas consisting of linked oxygen and hydrogen atoms.

Clouds of Gas

Tenuous clouds of this gas are thought to be thinly dispersed through the universe, and it was a search for evidence of this which revealed the "OH masers." About 50 of these pin-points of intense radiation have now been found.

The maser theory is backed by various special characteristics of this radiation, including the intensity of the energy coming from a small source, and the fact that the energy is confined to single frequencies.

Even the most romantic astronomers agree that these cosmic radio masers are more likely to be a natural phenomenon — even though it is still quite obscure how they could work. They are always found near very hot stars, whose light and other radiation may pump energy into an OH gas cloud, exciting the OH molecules so that they re-emit the energy by maser action as a coherent radio signal.

But Professor Barrett, reviewing these developments in "Science," says that the phenomenon would be a "prime candidate" for interstellar signalling, since OH is destributed all over the universe. He recommends that the signals should be analysed for any systematic variations which could indicate that the radio waves are carrying some form of message.

Such messages, he says, would not necessarily be directed at us. Granting the possibility of other civilizations in the galaxy — a speculation which Professor Barrett says has now passed "well beyond the realm of science fiction" — the first evidence of interstellar communication would be "our detection of a vast interstellar communications network, which would someday accept us as its newest member. Is it possible that we are getting close?"

Meanwhile, the earth's own radio traffic is threatening to drown out these tenuous radio signals from the cosmos, and radio astronomers regard it as a matter of the utmost urgency to protect some of the crucial frequencies on a world-wide basis.

The OH masers are operating on a frequency in a radio band already allocated to a number of terrestrial services, including taxis in Bulgaria, ambulances in the United Arab Republic, fire engines in Russia, and to meteorological aids and satellites all over the world.

In TV Bands

Other crucial frequencies — for example those needed to study the most distant regions of the universe and examine the still mysterious "quasars" — lie in bands alocated to television. At a 1963 meeting of the International Telecommunications Union, one important frequency was protected, and it was agreed to make efforts to keep some others clear.

But radio astronomers say that there must be much more rigorous "frequency conservation," and in Britain, a scientific committee is already preparing recommendations for the next ITU meeting in 1969.

If nothing is done, many of the most significant lines of research in radio astronomy could soon be silenced by the radio bedlam with which we are surrounding the earth. It would be ironic if the first communication from a distant civilization was swamped by a Bulgarian taxi driver.

Special Characteristics Of the Bottom Fishes

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Carl

Fishes which normally live on the bottom or in close association with the bottom usually develop special characteristics which fit them for their mode of life. In other words they diversify along lines which adapt them to conditions found on or near the bottom, but since the type of bottom differs widely the end result is a multiplicity of forms.

Fishes on rocky ground are usually of stocky build with a short robust body and a broad head. Such are the sculpins, a large group of fishes found in most parts of the world in both salt and fresh water.

In habit they tend to rest upon the bottom remaining in one place for quite long periods but capable of making rapid spurts when necessary. Most are marked with blotches, spots or bands of color in such a way that the body outline is broken up and the fish is most difficult to distinguish from its surroundings. The camouflage may be enhanced by the large fan-like fins sometimes with fringed edges or with decorative filaments.

The color pattern works two ways; it helps hide the fish from potential predators but at the same time it masks the fish from its quarry. In the latter case when a victim comes within striking distance a sudden rush and a quick opening of the mouth is all that is necessary to make a capture.

The anglers, a similar group of bottom-loving fishes found on the Atlantic coast, "go one better" in food capture. These creatures each have a specially developed projection on the head which acts as a fishing rod complete with line and lure. When a small fish is attracted close enough by the "bait" the angler need only open its mouth with a snap in order to engulf the foolish one.

The pricklebacks and blennies, found commonly on a bouldery beach, have an entirely different type of body form, yet it suits them well for living on the bottom. They are long, slender and rather eel-like, a shape which allows them to wind their way among the rocks and to wriggle into spaces between and under them.

An added feature is the ability to live out of water for considerable periods of time — long enough to survive in damp cavities beneath boulders when the tide is out even on a hot day.

A temporary inhabitant of the same habitat is the midshipman or singing-fish. Shaped very much like a big-headed sculpin this fellow ordinarily lives on the bottom in relatively deep water but in the spring pairs move in to the intertidal zone to spawn. The site selected is usually a cavity beneath a rock. Here the pea-sized eggs are attached to the under surface of the rock which forms the ceiling for the retreat and here the male stands guard until the young hatch.

★ ★ ★

The fish's presence above the low tide level would not be suspected if it were not for the fact that he usually makes a grunting sound when disturbed by a passer-by. The "song" is somewhat ventriloquial but a systematic search often reveals the source. Study has shown that the sound is produced by vibrations of the swim bladder — an organ which usually helps a fish maintain its buoyancy. In bottom-loving species, however, this structure is either wanting or is modified for another use — a further example of versatility in this group of fishes.

Dominican Facade Of Peace, Stability May Be An Illusion

By ROBERT BERRELIEZ

SANTO DOMINGO — U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Reputlic ended a year ago. The aftertaste of the enforced American presence has been diluted by time but probably never will disappear.

Also put aside but not forgotten are the varied causes of the April, 1965, civilian-military uprising that brought on the intervention, first by U.S. forces and later, under the name of the inter-American peace force, by a small corps of Latin-American troops.

The violence that many feared would explode when the foreign trooops left never attained the predicted proportions. For many here, the last year has been the most peaceful and promising in almost a decade. Still, real political stability seems years away in this Caribbean republic where democratic rule is getting its first prolonged trial since 1930.

The last of the U.S. troops on Dominican soil left Sept. 20, 1966. At peak strength, in mid-1965, U.S. forces numbered some 24,000 on land and about 8,000 in ships offshore.

Terrorist Acts

Although a newly-elected government was in power, backed by the U.S. and the Organization of American States, there were widespread fears that evacuation of the American troops would bring on a renewal of fighting between factions involved in the revolt. The result was a series of vendetta-type clashes and acts of terrorism that reached a climax last April.

Things have quieted since then, but there are authenticated reports of arbitrary arrests and detentions of the political opposition, chiefly the Dominican Revolutionary Party — PRD — and by army guards in rural areas.

The Dominican Army, is known to regard the PRD and its self-exiled leader, Juan Bosch, as its deadliest enemy. Because of harassment, the PRD is threatening to pull out of important 1968 municipal elections.

The continuance of military pressure on the PRD, despite President Joaquin Balaguer's repeated assurances to party chiefs, is one of many signs that, while the armed forces solidly support the president, he has a limited control over them.

Military Divided

There are also sharp indications of deep fissures within the military, among factions vying for key positions in the grab for power. Balaguer is believed to have skirted some potentially serious problems by skilful juggling of top posts.

Early in September, he placed a military man, Col. Praulio Alvarez, in charge of the national police, a non-military peacekeeping army normally under the interior ministry's jurisdiction. He also replaced the air force chief of staff and shifted three other key commands.

These were officially described as routine changes. They came, however, three days after the newspaper El Nacional reported anti-government plotting by officers loyal to ex-Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, a controversial and militant anti-Communist.

Wessin was fired and booted out of the country in 1965 by then Provisional President Hector Garcia-Godoy for refusing to accept an overseas post. Wessin's exile was a condition to the political settlement the OAS was then trying to reach between the warring groups.

Informed sources say there is "some substance" to the pro-Wessin plot report. By way of minimizing the account, Balaguer says plotting against Dominican presidents has been routine since the republic began.

McLuhan: Where Angels Fear to Tread

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Marshall McLuhan, the intellectual comet from Canada who now resides at Fordham University, startled broadcasting executives here with a forecast that the United States will have an economic depression "within about five years."

McLuhan is the author of four books on mass media and "the new environment" of the electronic age. His total lack of training in economics or business cycles didn't prevent his plowing straight ahead with his prediction of an economic decline.

The blame, he said, can be laid to the electronic media, particularly television. In about five years the "drop-out generation" will produce the "drop-out executive."

●

With a remarkable lack of acquaintance with the work of such economists as John Maynard Keynes and Sumner Schlicter, McLuhan produced an instant comparison between the effects of radio in the 1920's and the television of the 1960's.

To McLuhan, radio produced the Jazz Age and its jazz babies were so "involved" that they lacked direction. When these jazz babies entered the industrial complex as decision-makers they refused to specialize. This far-out explanation of the causes of "The Great Crash" — which never occurred to John Kenneth Galbraith in his book of the same name—was immediately linked to the present.

Television (along with other electronic media) has produced another "drop-out generation." It refuses to specialize, lacks direction, has no interest in special skills. Therefore, he said, when this group takes over leadership of industry, a depression has to follow.

McLuhan did dilute his dire forecast with a sprinkling of choice jokes.

Around the sandwich filling of jokes, McLuhan hurled his "probes — not conclusions —" about life in the United States. He repeated his oft-quoted statement that "Vietnam is the first TV war" and that "TV is turning Americans into Orientals": The point of focus for a TV set is the viewer: Therefore, we all begin to look into ourselves."

Television, McLuhan observed, means the end of the "star system" and the "end of baseball." Here, he retreated into his "hot" and "cool" characterizations of mass media, deciding that TV is a "cool" medium that doesn't allow for a "bright burning star."

Civil Service Twighlight: The Lamontagne Thesis

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

An anecdote in a recent speech by Maurice Lamontagne is a good way to begin our column which, frankly, is lifted holus-bolus from the senator's text.

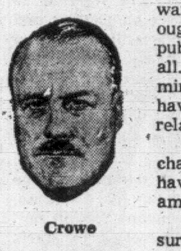
During the Mackenzie King era "a Liberal backbencher who had ambitions and also a sense of humor decided one day to write to Mr. King and asked him to be appointed to the cabinet.

Fisher

"In his reply Mr. King told the daring backbencher that he did not have the competence and the high intellectual qualifications required for such an important assignment. The persistent member . . . wrote back and said: 'My dear Prime Minister, I believe that you have misunderstood the nature of my request: High as my ambition can aspire, I do not expect to become a deputy-minister. I merely wanted to become a cabinet minister'."

Every decade or so some thoughtful person comes along, gives an interpretation of government or business or unions and people respond with, "Say, that's right! That's what's happening!"

In his speech (given to a gathering of civil servants at Hamilton several weeks ago) the new senator, who was both a recent cabinet minister and a former federal bureaucrat, described our present period as "the twilight of civil servants."



Crowe

"Civil servants will have less and less to do with the development of new policies. Conversely, the intellectual community outside the civil service will play an increasing rôle in the determination of new policy objectives and proposals.

"The rising number of Royal commissions, task forces, advisory boards, and councils is an obvious sign of the shift which is taking place.

"In the past, political parties could win elections by making vague promises, by relying on their record or merely by attacking the opponent. When they assumed office, they were not committed to an overall political program and they were free to accept the advice of civil servants in connection with formulation of policy.

★ ★ ★

"This situation is changing rapidly. The public and the press now expect political parties to be identified with a concrete, detailed and co-ordinated set of policy propositions, especially during electoral campaigns.

"But such an identification means that when a given party is newly elected or even if it is returned to office, it will be committed to a detailed set of policies which will have been developed with little, if any, consultation with civil servants.

"Another new pattern . . . is emerging which will tend also to reduce the influence of civil servants while not contributing to increase the performance of ministers. It has to do with a working Parliament.

"In the immediate past, Parliament had really very little to do with legislation. The legislative program originated mainly from the establishment which also prepared the ministerial speeches . . . once a bill had been accepted by cabinet on the advice of the establishment it would always be approved without modification by Parliament.

"That situation is changing rapidly. We can even speak of a quiet revolution in Parliament. The private member, after having lost administrative influence, which is a disguised definition of patronage, is now acquiring a legislative role which he should have had all along.

★ ★ ★

"We are moving toward a compromise between the British and American political institutions. As we reach it the influence of civil servants in the legislative process will be less important.

"A third, and undoubtedly the most important new force which is competing with civil servants to influence ministers is . . . the press, broadly speaking, or the so-called mass media.

"The main objective of a minister who wants to be successful and remain in the show, ought to be to develop and maintain a good public image. Save the surface and you save all. Hence, the growing importance for a minister to be friendly with reporters and to have an efficient executive assistant or public relations officer.

"The philosophy of the mass media has changed drastically in the last decades. They have become businesses and competition among them has become acute.

"Party affiliation has disappeared or barely survives on the editorial page. The number of readers or audience ratings has become the golden rule.

★ ★ ★

"There is the cynical assumption that the public has a strong preference for sensation.

"This approach leads to a new code of ethics for reporters.

"From now on they do not have to reflect the political views of their employers: Thus, they can transmit their own . . . they cannot afford to be dull . . . the reporter who wants to be successful looks for rumors, scoops, leaks.

"A minister cannot ignore the mass media with impunity. If he enjoys a good press, he will be envied and respected or feared by his colleagues; if he has no press, he has no future. And, if he has a bad press, he is in serious trouble, because he will be viewed, even by his own associates as a political liability."

That, dear readers, is strong, pungent interpretation. In a couple of days we'll give our interpretation of the interpretation.

Frostbiting Calls For Enthusiasm

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

There's nothing like a gentle winter storm to put a person in the proper frame of mind for frostbiting. In fact, the season's opening races at RCNSA last Sunday were washed out, both literally and figuratively.

Hewett

But one thing not dampened by the storms of the past week is the enthusiasm of those who'll race the true frostbite boats, the El Toros, Sabots, O.K.'s, Enterprises, Fireballs, 420's, and Davidsons.

The Royal Canadian Navy Sailing Association, predominantly a small boat racing club, will set competition every Sunday. Until Christmas, most classes will have two separate series running concurrently, but on alternate weekends. This arrangement is designed to give even the keenest skipper a break in the schedule for other activities, like skiing, or a chance to race in the Oak Bay or Sidney "big boat" series.

Particular interest is focussed on the eighteen Uniqua 420's, all but one club-owned. The fleet will be divided into two sections. Seven brand new boats will carry spinnakers, and race a separate division from the 11 boats already in operation.

With 12 boats already operational and another eight building, a great season is forecast for the Enterprise fleet. A skipper's meeting is slated for Thursday, October 12, 8 p.m. at the RCNSA. Enterprisers who are not Club members can be granted associate memberships for the racing events. Further data is available from Fleet Captain John Eadon (477-6069), Victoria Class Measurer John Dewey (477-5849) or Ray Parsons (658-5307), who assists with building problems.

The O.K. Dinghy fleet will also race out of the RCNSA.

Keeping pace with the great increase in small boat population, the RCNSA foreshore is humming with construction in a phased development program. Almost completed is a small boat ramp with dinghy parking facilities. Next will come retaining walls, fill, and blacktop. Finally, a keel-boat grid incorporated into the lower platform retaining wall. Congratulations to Mel Steffens and club members who volunteered their time and labors to the building projects.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club's Cadboro Bay Frostbite program now includes the Fireballs as well as Toros, Sabots, and Davidsons.

This Sunday, a Get Acquainted orientation session, aimed especially towards newcomers to the racing fleet, will start at 10 a.m. Pointers on rigging and boat handling will be offered by the more experienced members, such as Brian Woodward and Norman Marcus. This will be followed by a practice session for the neophytes.

Otherwise, Saturday will be small boat day at the Club. Informal pennant "warm up" races, for practice in starts and buoy roundings, are scheduled for the 14th. On this day, the Fireball fleet will have the first race of their fall series.

The El Toro and Davidsons first series races start November 5.

The Official Frostbite Opening ceremonies will see Commodore Peter Townshend review the boats in a sailpast commencing at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, October 21. Following the review, the small craft will race to Oak Bay and back.

●

SHORT TACKS: Sailing types are always game to try their racing hand at the helm of a different boat. The 420 class will be sharpened by the addition of Robin Spear and Nigel Robertson . . . John Eadon will be campaigning the Enterprise which Nigel raced last year . . . Mike Weir is one of several building an O.K. dinghy . . . Constructing Fireballs are Roy Barber, Ian James and Bruce Kenning . . . And who will be the first with a real live "505"? The deal involves a PIYA class champion boat in even trade for a 5-0.

Computer Saves Ctiy $30,000

New equipment handling Victoria property tax billing will save the city $30,000 in interest payments this year and onward, aldermen were told Thursday.

Council finance committee was told data processing machines can get tax notices out earlier, enabling the due date to be moved up from July 31 to June 30, thus saving a month's interest charges on borrowed financing.

Ratepayers will still have from five to six weeks to pay taxes after receiving their notices in the latter part of May.

BACK IN VICTORIA after visiting their family in eastern Canada are Rev. and Mrs. Harold T. Allen. Mr. Allen (above) was formerly minister of James Bay United Church, and entered the last provincial general election as an NDP candidate. The couple visited their sons, Prof. Richard Allen of the University of Saskatchewan, and Philip, a teacher at Grimsby, Ont. At Cardinal, Ont., they called on Mr. Allen's brother, Dr. Stewart Allen, a former medical missionary in China.

Driver Loses Parking Spot, Temper, Licence

David Henson, 19, 3408 Browning Street, was fined $100 in magistrate's court Thursday for assault. He was also ordered to post a good behavior bond of $100, and had his driver's licence suspended four months.

Court was told on July 6 Henson was about to park his car at the Town and Country White Spot when a second car slipped into the parking place.

Henson parked his car elsewhere, walked to the second car, and struck driver Derek Jackson, 18, of 2214 Wende Rd. on the face, breaking his nose.

Magistrate Ostler commented "gasoline seems to deprive people of their reason as much as drugs and alcohol. It's extraordinary what people will do when they lose their temper driving."

IN CENTRAL SAANICH

Sewer Survey Nearly Ready

A preliminary report on a survey for a proposed sewage scheme to serve the whole of Central Saanich, was to be submitted to council today.

The report prepared by consultant engineers Russell E. Potter and Associates Ltd., was to be discussed at a closed meeting. Full details of the scheme will be released to the public later this month.

"The survey is nearly complete," said Mr. Potter. "It's going to be an expensive project because it calls for a permanent system."

Basically, the plan calls for a trunk sewer from Brentwood to the east side of the peninsula, plus construction of an outfall into Haro Strait.

The scheme was one of the alternatives proposed for Central Saanich by the Greater Victoria sewage study.

The other calling for the dumping of treated sewage from the Brentwood Bay area into Saanich inlet, was turned down by the B.C. Pollution Control Board in June.

The present plan if approved by ratepayers in a referendum to be submitted in December would not only serve Brentwood, but Saanichton and the urban area of Keating.

POLICE WERE IN A LATHER AFTER CLOSE SHAVE IN CAR

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—Raymond L. Perkins, 22, had a close shave as he was driving to class at Southern Colorado State College Thursday. While using a battery-powered shaver, he lost control of his car, which crossed the street, knocked down two signs, crossed the street again, jumped the curb and stopped in a motel parking lot. Police charged him with careless driving.

Ambition Was Moon; But Death Intervened

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP—) An astronaut who said he wanted to be first on the moon and specialized in the craft that will make the trip was killed Thursday when his T-38 jet trainer plowed into a hilltop.

Maj. Clifton C. Williams Jr., 35, a member of the U.S. Marine Corps and one of the third generation of U.S. astronauts, was flying alone from Cape Kennedy to Houston Manned Space Centre by way of Mobile, Ala., where his father was reported ill.

Williams radioed the distress signal about 2 p.m., and 10 minutes later a helicopter rescue crew from Moody Air Force Base at nearby Valdosta, Ga., arrived at the scene on a plantation near Miccosukee, Fla., 15 miles north of here.

"The plane disintegrated and the body disintegrated with it," said Maj. Joe Johnson of Moody.

Johnson said the fiery plane dove down so straight it singed trees but plunged between pines 100 feet apart without touching them.

SHEPARD HEADS INQUIRY

A board of inquiry headed by the first American spaceman, Capt. Alan B. Shepard, was named to investigate the crash.

Williams was the eighth American astronaut to die accidentally, the fourth in the crash of a jet plane.

Williams was eager for space flight.

"I'd like to go on every one," Williams had said. "Of course, if you said which mission I would most like to have, I'd say the first lunar flight you can make from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and accomplishment."

Wiliams was married after his selection as an astronaut in 1963. He had one child.

Cabinet Meets To Tackle Transit Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec cabinet meets in emergency session again today to discuss action on Montreal's stalemated transit strike.

With negotiators for the Montreal Transportation Commission and its 6,000 bus and subway workers not expected to resume talks until at least Tuesday, hope for a quick end to the strike seems to lie with the government.

Late Thursday MTC Chairman Lucien L'Allier said negotiator Jacques Guilbault will not be meeting with union leaders before next Tuesday to discuss the 16-day strike.

Robert Burns, lawyer for the Confederation of National Trade Unions, parent body of the five MTC unions involved in the dispute, called the delay regrettable and said he is ready to meet with MTC bargainers at any time.

CHANGEOVER GOES SMOOTHLY

The Driver Is Always Right in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP)— Sweden's great experiment in shifting all traffic to the right side of the road is in its second month and going strong.

Authorities report traffic deaths in September were 50 below the monthly average, mostly because of lower speed limits and strong police controls that accompanied the Sept. 3 switchover.

Larks Skiold, who directed the giant overnight switch after months of physical and psychological preparation, says the old left-side-of-the-road reflexes still create a few dangerous situations. He says everybody — and particularly pedestrians —have had problems adapting to the change.

A notable tendency among drivers to be nonchalant about the new low speed limits imposed during the transitional period worries authorities as much as do motorists' troubles with left turns.

The remarkable "right-hand friendliness" which marked the early stages of the transition also is reported on the wane.

General speed limits since H-day (H stands for hoeger—right) have been 40 kilometres an hour (25 m.p.h.) in cities, 70 kilometres an hour (43 m.p.h.) on ordinary roads and 90 kilometres an hour (59 m.p.h.) on expressways.

The traffic commission this week asked the government to approve a new set of limits of 40-80-100 kilometres an hour starting Oct. 17. This recommendation was made despite statistics showing that 58 per cent of motorists and 98 per cent of cyclists and pedestrians had fallen back into their old left-hand habits at least once since Sept. 3.

But polls also showed 57 per cent of Swedes now have a positive attitude toward the right-hand system while those opposed have dropped to 20 per cent.

Checks showed only about three in 10 motorists adhered consistently to the low speed limits, especially in the cities and on ordinary roads. But the majority exceeded the limits by only a small margin.

Sharpened police patrols resulted in a seven-fold increase in speeding tickets. Critics say the limits must be raised as soon as possible.

Struck Parked Car, Driver Fined $35

Fined $35 in magistrate's court Thursday for careless driving was Joseph Crosby, 47, of 660 Jones Terrace.

Saanich police made the charge after Crosby's car struck a parked vehicle as it turned off Tillicum Road into a gas station at Carey Road Sept. 1.

Impaired Driving Costs Man $300

Gordon Sillars, 32, of 2574 Graham St., was fined $300 in magistrate's court Thursday for impaired driving.

The accused was charged after Esquimalt police stopped a car seen to weave as it proceeded east on Esquimalt Road at 2:15 a.m. Sept. 23.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — A modest trade proceeded on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with flax losing early advances and rapeseed recording gains.

One development concerned a report that Britain and the continent recently purchased about 60,000,000 bushels of wheat. It was not specified who sold the grain.

Rye prices were higher due partly to firmer prices in Chicago.

Blue Chips Move Higher

Blue chips moved sharply higher at the close of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Activity was light.

Inco paced the group higher, up 3⅛ to 119⅝ after touching a high of 119⅞. The company recently increased the price of its nickel.

Other sharp gains went to CPR, up 1¾ to 66, Corby's to 32, Beaver Lumber 2¼ to 32.

Alberta Gas Trunk slid 2¼ to 32½ and Anthes ¼ to 28⅛.

Western oils backed off with Central-Del Rio down ¼ to 21⅛ and Canadian Superior ¼ to 45. Dome added ⅞ to 60⅜.

Rio Algom was off 1 to 37½ in base metals while Dome Mines moved up ¾ to 45 in golds.

AT NEW YORK the market held near its best level of the session in fairly active trading.

Brokers said there was broad speculative interest in computer stocks. Gains by these issues included IBM 12, Control Data about 4, Burroughs about 3 and Scientific Data about 2.

General Motors and Chrysler advanced about half a point. Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel was up 2½, Canadian Pacific 1½, Granby Mining 1, Walker Gooderham ⅜, Dome Mines and Hudson Bay Mining ¼. Alcan and Massey-Ferguson were down ⅛.

AT MONTREAL prices moved fractionally higher in early afternoon trading as CPR and International Nickel made strong advances.

CPR jumped 1⅜ points to 65⅞, following announcement of the terms of the new Canadian Pacific Investment preferred share offering. One analyst said parts of the offer were disappointing and would ease the selling pressure on CPR common shares.

International Nickel shot up 2⅜ points to a new high for the year of 118⅞. One broker said the stock was following a similar rise on the New York market and recovering from selling pressure that followed a sharp climb last month on news of a hike in nickel prices.

Senior oils were shaded, with Shell Husky and Imperial each off about ½ point.

AT LONDON, another burst of buying activity led to widespread gains on the stock markets.

The advance was sparked off by an optimistic statement from Imperial Chemical Industries, although by mid-day profit-taking had trimmed away rises.

Gilts were still sensitive to higher interest rates and remained fractionally lower in front of today's U.K. treasury bill rate.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Exploration and International Nickel advanced. Cominco and Central-Del Rio both lost.

AT VANCOUVER Bethlehem gained .15 from Thursday's close to reach $6.45 in slow trading on the mining section shortly before noon.

Peso rose .05 to $1.45 and Vanmetals was up .06 to .24. Dynasty dropped .25 to $7.50 and Buttle lost .08 to $1.38. Brenda was of .10 to $7.

In the oils, Bata rose .04 to $1.28 and Royal American put on 1.5 to .98.

Cominco dropped .75 to $28 in the industrials.

Service-Type Businesses Coming to Fore

By AB KENT
Business Editor

September was the seventh month this year in which the incorporation of new B. C. companies exceeded 400 — an average 100 per cent increase over registrations a decade ago.

This is only one indicator of business activity within the province, but it is both a reflection of the amount of business and industrial organization the whole economy can support, and a forecast of what private enterprise feels for future prosperity.

Much of the new industry is oriented to B. C. resources, or has been until very recently. During September, however, a striking number of service-type businesses were noted, perhaps a natural reaction following a period of primary industrial expansion such as B.C. has experienced.

The number of new B.C. companies added to the register last month was 410, bringing the cumulative total to date this year to 3,866, or 146 better than at Sept. 30, 1966.

Kent

The August total this year was 403 and the figure for September last year was 354.

May holds the top spot so far this year with 514 new registrations.

There were 34 extra-provincial company registrations in September, against 26 a year ago. Best month so far in 1967 was May when 49 companies outside B. C. were granted local registration.

The registrar of companies is able to report a comparison of proprietorship and partnership registrations for the first time since taking on the job Sept. 1, 1966.

These, formerly registered with district courts, numbered 109 compared with 79 in the first month they fell under scrutiny of the companies registrar.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce Thursday set its sights for the next 12 months toward conveying the city's double image: a "swinging chamber" portraying Victoria in the tourist idiom and as a "live-wire business community."

These were the words of Clare Copeland, membership and publicity chairman speaking to an informal group of directors and members of the press.

The meeting was called by the chamber's new president William Armstrong to test reaction to a proposed policy of airing public issues only at chamber director level, rather than inviting public scrutiny while matters are under discussion by committees of the chamber.

Mr. Armstrong said this was designed to avoid the suggestion that chamber policy was being decided at committee level rather than by directors.

It would permit free discussion of issues by members of committees who might otherwise be reluctant to state their views knowing their remarks could be reported by the press, the president said.

He said it also would prevent non-elected members of working committees from using committee meetings to further private interests.

Chairmen of committees would always hold themselves available for comment if approached by reporters, Mr. Armstrong said.

Two radio representatives indicated they would have no objection to such an arrangement, while two newspaper reporters felt the proposal would hamper their ability to report committee meetings fully.

Carter commission proposals for taxing gifts and bequests would create "basic unfairness through double taxation at punitive rates," according to a brief prepared by the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

The result would likely be wasteful administration and throttle growth of development funds, it said.

"This is another example of the commission's intent to redistribute wealth which in turn would foster consumption at the expense of saving.

"Canada must have accumulated savings, particularly large pools of private savings in order to develop its resources," the brief said.

"Man saves in order to maintain independence in later life, and not become dependent on the state, and to improve the economic well-being of his family. These are socially desirable aims and should be encouraged."

CHAMBER BLASTS REPORT

People 'Couldn't Live' Under Carter Tax System

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians would not live with a tax system that answered the recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today.

A 16,000-word brief to Finance Minister Sharp urged rejection of several radical changes in the tax system proposed by the Carter report.

The chamber delivered its main attack at a proposal for integration of corporate and personal income taxes.

This, said the brief, would make too great a shift of the tax burden from corporate-source and personal income to other income forms.

It would mean higher income for shareholders, without benefits in the form of early price reductions for the average consumer.

The harsh tax treatment of gifts and inheritances contradicts ideas of fair play held by most Canadians, said the brief. It goes against "their strongly held opinions of their having a right, within reasonable limits, to advance their children's economic position from their tax-paid savings and enterprise without tax consequences."

REPEATS STAND

The chamber repeated its long-held belief that corporations are over-taxed and applauded the Carter commission for seeking to remedy this situation. But it said relief should be provided "within the current concepts."

The chamber dealt throughly with the brief at its annual meeting in Montreal last month. The document was laid before the government with a plea that the approaching white paper on taxation offer detailed assessments of the economic efforts of Carter's proposed changes.

The white paper should say how Carter proposals would affect all forms of saving, prices, the balance of payments, borrowing, foreign governments, capital allocation, resource development, provincial tax systems, tax flexibility and transfer payments.

Some other major points in the chamber brief

1. Opposition to taxation of capital gains, because this would deter saving and risk-taking.
2. Disapproval of using the family as a taxation unit as long as gifts and inheritances were included in income.
3. Objection to the proposed abolition of special incentives to mining and petroleum companies.
4. Warning that taxation of life insurance should not prevent companies from meeting long-term commitments unique to the business.

BIF Hearing Adjourned To Tuesday

TORONTO (CP) — Hearings into the validity of the election July 28 of three directors of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto have been adjourned until Tuesday.

Hearings Thursday dealt with the wording of an order relating to a decision in September of Mr. Justice Neil C. Fraser of the Supreme Court of Ontario to void the election.

Three BIF directors—Peter Charlebois, William Mollard and Andrew Wofford—challenged the election.

Meanwhile, the three directors and William Hawkins, a former vice-president and director of BIF, are suing Marc Bienvenu, BIF president, and some associates for $2,500,000 in another action.

They have asked that failing the payment of money, a court order be issued that would wind up BIF and its subsidiary, York Lambton Corp. Ltd., which controls the Bank of Western Canada.

A writ issued at Osgoode Hall Tuesday asked that Mr. Bienvenu, who bought control of the BIF group in March, buy $2,500,000 in BIF stock at $5 a share under an agreement made when he took over the company.

Several actions are before Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench related to the winding up of the Bank of Western Canada. Shareholders approved the windup at a meeting Sept. 14 in Winnipeg. The validity of that meeting has also been challenged.

Firms Misuse Tax Treaty

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Senate finance committee was asked Thursday to seal a chink in the existing tax treaty with Canada.

Some companies are qualifying for the lower rate of U.S. tax withholding on investment earnings paid to Canadian residents and corporations, said Stanley Surrey, assistant treasury secretary.

The tax treaty says 15 per cent of investment income flowing to Canadian residents and corporations from the U.S. must be withheld for U.S. tax. The normal withholding rate is 30 per cent.

However, Surrey said, some companies were organized in Canada but did no business there. Thus they paid no Canadian income tax and yet could qualify for the lower U.S. withholding rate.

The proposed amendment would require firms qualifying for the lower rate to do business in Canada.

The revision was recommended along with a complete tax treaty with Brazil designed to facilitate the entry of U.S. investment there. Another recommendation is a treaty with Trinidad and Tobago to replace the one negotiated with Britain when the Caribbean nation was still a colony.

BROKEN HEART CAN KILL YOU SAYS DOCTOR

LONDON (Reuters) — Dying of a broken heart is no myth, a six-year study by a family doctor in a small Welsh town indicated.

Dr. William Dwi Rees found the death rate among the newly bereaved was six times greater than for everybody else in the town, Llanidloes, The British Medical Journal reports.

Six times more persons than normal died within a year of losing a close relative, he found. Men ran a bigger risk of this than women.

LBJ Makes New Request For Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made another plea Thursday to congressmen to get on with granting him increased taxation.

He added weight to his bid by putting a federal freeze on Congress' pet public works projects.

But Congress still shows no signs of increasing the taxes.

The administration added a new ingredient in the weeks-long test of wills between the president and Congress by suspending indefinitely some $3,500,000,000 worth of military building and civil public works programs.

The freeze, announced by the defence department, came as Johnson again laid responsibility for budget cutting on the congressional doorstep and said taxes should be raised to stifle inflation.

To some congressional observers the freeze appeared an indication Johnson is beginning to yield to pressure that he take responsibility for cutting or eliminating programs popular with hometown voters.

CONGRESS SHUNS BLAME

The stalemate over who should cut spending involves in part the determination by Congress not to be saddled with the blame for such cuts.

The freeze could be lifted at any time since the money for such Army Engineers civil projects as flood-control dams, dikes and harbor improvements already had been appropriated.

Johnson told a hastily-called news conference Thursday failure to enact his six-per-cent income tax surcharge proposal would feed an inflationary spiral he said would ultimately cost taxpayers far more than higher taxes.

He cited increased interest rates on short-term treasury bills and high home mortgage and personal loan interest rates as indications a tax hike is needed to block inflation.

Five Bodies Found In Plane Wreckage

FORT SIMPSON, N.W.T. (CP)—Five bodies, one of them believed to be that of Bill Berg, newly-elected territorial councillor, were found late Thursday afternoon in the wreckage of a light aircraft, near Little Dal Lake, 90 miles west of here.

An RCAF helicopter and two civilian aircraft reached the area and confirmed the wreckage was that of a Beaver aircraft piloted by Robert Shepherd, 41.

The three other bodies were believed to be those of Indian guides from the Little Dal Lake area. Officials had earlier believed only four men were aboard when the plane went missing.

The aircraft left Fort Simpson Saturday to pick up Mr. Berg, and the guides. It is believed to have crashed shortly after take-off Sunday morning.

The five men had apparently planned a hunting expedition to the Mackenzie Mountains west of here. The bodies were burned beyond recognition and could not be positively identified.

An RCAF spokesman said the airplane crashed into a tall mountain bluff and caught fire on impact.

The aircraft was owned by Northern Mountain Airlines Ltd. of Prince George, B.C.

OCTOBER 9 THANKSGIVING DAY

A great day to discover how little long distance costs

On this special day the voices of loved ones, perhaps from hundreds of miles away, have a special place in our hearts. Memories are sharpened, experiences recaptured. It is a day when togetherness means so much and—as always with B.C. TEL—costs so little.

Now a student son or daughter away at college can afford a long distance call home (especially if they call "collect"!). Long distance rates are among the very few items of personal expenditures which, over the years, have lagged far behind the general rise in other living costs. In fact, many long distance calls actually cost less in dollars and cents today than 10 years ago. Moreover, after 6 pm and all day Sunday they are cheaper by about one-fifth.

Check the rates yourself in your telephone book or dial "O" and ask the operator. You'll be surprised how little it costs to enjoy "the next best thing to being there." Here, for example, are a few current charges:

VANCOUVER—PRINCE GEORGE	$1.35
NEW WESTMINSTER—CALGARY	$1.50
VICTORIA—TORONTO	$1.95

(Evening, station-to-station calls, first 3 minutes)

On this important day of the year there's more reason than ever to use Long Distance for all it's worth!

Pearkes Will Mark Passchendaele 50th

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will fly to Belgium this weekend to attend ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Passchendaele.

At a service in Tyne Cot Cemetery Sunday afternoon, Mr. Pearkes will place a wreath on behalf of the Canadian armed forces, and Flanders Poppies will be dropped from an RCAF plane.

Paul Tremblay, Canadian ambassador to Canada, will attend with Gerald Laniel, chairman of the Commons' veterans committee in Ottawa, and Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre), a former veterans' affairs minister and a survivor of Passchendaele.

Hospitals See Strikes Coming

PENTICTON (CP) — Hospital officials Thursday were told they could expect a more militant attitude from nurses and hospital employees in the future, including strike action to back wage demands.

Dr. Noel Hall, chairman of the industrial administration division at the University of British Columbia, made the comment to 500 delegates attending the B.C. Hospitals' Association convention. He said society had become tolerant toward strikes, and as a result of higher salaries in other occupations, it was likely that nurses associations would make strong, determined efforts to improve their wages.

Dedication deters registered nurses from going on strike, he said.

Dr. Hall said it would be impossible for nursing associations to hold onto the conservative points of view which they have held for the past 20 years, and had worked to the benefit of the hospital authorities.

STUDY URGED

He urged delegates to take the initiative in trying to obtain more meaningful communications with their employee groups and advised them to carefully study the wages and hours in the hospital industry.

They should also recognize that compulsory arbitration will not be an acceptable alternative to strike action and that hospital authorities will have to find something in between the two extremes, he said.

Delegates approved a two-year program to improve hospital services throughout B.C. at a cost of 3.9 cents per patient day for the first year.

The new program will include a consultative service for advice and assistance on administrative and staffing problems, an education service, a nation-wide recruiting campaign, and data processing.

Other convention highlights:

- Delegates were told the provincial government is practising "financial brinkmanship" in leaving five major hospitals, including Victoria's Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's, owing $317,531 to the banks from last year.
- Dr. Glen Hamilton, executive director of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, deplored the trend of making reports and studies paid for by the taxpayer and exclusive property of the government in power.
- Hospital trustees emphatically shot down a resolution they be elected in the same way school board trustees are.
- Salary and status recognition should be given the nurse who does best what nursing is all about — giving care — rather than the speed with which they can count pills, said Mrs. Mary Richmond, Vancouver General Hospital's nursing director.

HONORARY SECRETARY of B.C. Hospitals Association is Mike Fraser, Royal Jubilee Hospital assistant director. He was named at BCHA convention at Penticton Thursday. Gordon Frith of Nanaimo was elected first vice-president. President is W. O. Banfield of Vancouver General.

GEORGE P. KIDD

Ex-Victorian External Aid Deputy Chief

A diplomat educated at Brentwood College and Victoria College has been appointed deputy director general in the federal government's external aid office.

George P. Kidd held the post of minister in the Canadian Embassy at Washington before moving to his new office at the beginning of the month. He was ambassador to Cuba and Haiti from 1961 to 1964.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland in 1917, Mr. Kidd graduated from the University of British Columbia after attending Brentwood College and Victoria College and later earned a doctorate at UBC. He subsequently received a fellowship from the University of Illinois after post-graduate studies in economics there.

He joined the Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg and during the Second World War saw service in the United Kingdom and France.

In 1946 he joined the Department of External Affairs and has served in Ottawa as well as Canadian missions in Warsaw, Paris and Tel Aviv.

City Won't Accept Carr Garden Costs

Maintenance of the Victorian garden at Emily Carr home could be undertaken by the city parks department, but only if the cost were borne by the sponsor, council finance committee decided Thursday.

The proposal came from Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, which bought the home to preserve as a public monument to the west coast painter who brought fame to the city.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren reported it would cost between $1,000 and $4,000 to develop the garden, depending on the exact character chosen.

The property presents "an interesting challenge to create the type of garden that has attracted visitors to the city for years," he said.

Its maintenance would cost anywhere from $400 to $1,500 a year, he said.

But to accept the assignment would set a precedent in opposition to private landscape gardeners, he pointed out.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said it would be acceptable to undertake the work, provided the Jaycees pay, because of the semi-public nature of the building.

A Jaycee request for tax exemption on the premises was denied. The mayor said there is already tax exemption on 25 per cent of property in the city.

Man Fined $150 For Liquor Sale

A Port Alberni man was fined $150 in magistrate's court Thursday for keeping liquor for sale.

Dennis Hill, 27, was charged after police staked out a James Bay apartment in the early hours of Aug. 23.

Police reported several persons arrived and left. When police arrived, they confiscated a large amount of alcohol.

WCB Still Studying Negligence Verdict in Death of Welder

Workmen's Compensation Board is considering three courses of action arising out of a fatal accident at Yarrows Ltd. last month.

It could drop the matter, it could launch a prosecution of the firm in court, or it could levy a penalty unilaterally.

This was made clear by a board spokesman today who said a jury verdict blaming the company is still under study.

"We haven't dropped it at all," said John P. Berry, chief solicitor for WCB affairs, speaking from Vancouver.

"But we have to study it thoroughly before coming to a decision on the question of prosecution."

He added, "The decision will be up to the board and consideration is in process now. However, normally we like to have a full report and transcript of the inquest and we are awaiting that now.

"This matter will receive a full study by me and a recommendation will go before the board for decision."

A negligence finding against the company was returned by a jury inquiring into the Sept. 7 death of welder Steven Williams at the Esquimalt yard when fire swept a barge he was working on.

If you've got a great rye whisky...
why corn it up?

This may surprise you, but practically all of those top-selling Canadian whiskies that call themselves "rye" are mostly made from corn. It's a shame, because an all-rye whisky is delightfully different. It's clean and clear and g-e-n-t-l-e, as only a real rye can be. Corn up a good whisky like Alberta Premium? Never!

'IT MUST HAVE BEEN A TREMENDOUS EXPERIENCE'

Vancouver Island Trio on Grounded Ship

(From Reuters, CP)

SUVA, Fiji — Three Vancouver Islanders were among passengers taken off the Australian freighter Lakemba which went agroung on a coral reef here Thursday.

Rough seas later forced the captain and crew of the stricken ship to abandon her.

However, plans are being made to re-board the vessel and take off the baggage of the 56 passengers she was carrying.

Among the passengers were Donald Austin, 21, of William Head Road, and Marilyn Garrod and Hans Dahinten, both of Campbell River.

The 7,459-ton ship left Victoria for Sydney, Australia, on Sept. 12. She struck a reef off the small island of Vatulele, east of here early Thursday.

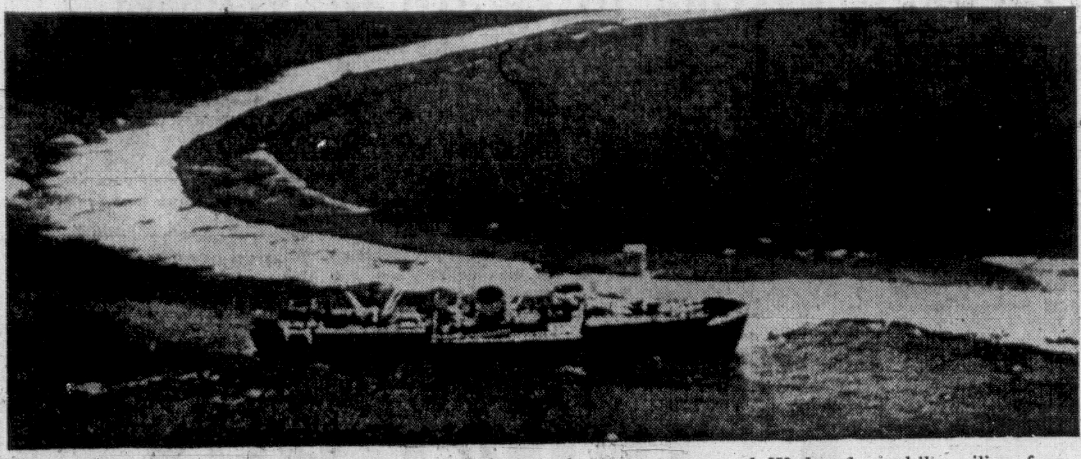
The passengers on the ship will be flown to Sydney by chartered plane.

Mr. Austin, a former student at Belmont senior secondary school, was bound for Sydney where he intended to work to save enough money to continue his travels.

His mother, Mrs. Helen Austin, said he intends to roam the world for two years before returning home. He had worked as a seaman on the fisheries patrol ship Laurier until August of this year.

His mother was not alarmed by his adventure.

"Seeing that there were no injuries from the ship hitting the reef it must have been a tremendous experience for them all."



AGROUND on a reef 50 miles from Suva, capital of the Fiji Islands, in the South Pacific, is the freighter Lakemba. The ship, carry 60 passengers—three of them from Vancouver Island—and a cargo of lumber, went aground Wednesday while sailing from Suva to Sydney, Australia. All passengers were transferred to another ship. (AP Wirephoto.)

RCMP and officials of the city-owned telephone company were investigaitng the accident.

Stormy Labor Conference Ends With Wilson Firmly in Saddle

SCARBOROUGH (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson leaves the annual Labor party convention today, having reasserted his party authority and gained time to pursue the British government's social goals.

Some of the 6,000 delegates at the five-day meeting had come to rebuke Wilson for his austerity measures aimed at curing Britain's ailing economy. They left with Wilson's warning that, although some hard times may still lie ahead, they have no choice but to sustain his government in office.

Wilson won not only endorsement of his deflationary policy at home but also his bid to join the European Common Market, which had also been attacked by Labor critics, including some former cabinet ministers.

Debate during the convention showed that most of the party delegates were in favor of joining the market but a substantial minority demanded safe-guards for British interests.

Foreign Secretary George Brown had told the 6,000 delegates "I do not want the world polarized between the two vast giant superpowers."

SEEN AS POWER BLOC

He said an expanded market that would take in East European countries, Britain and other Western countries would be a "very powerful bloc indeed."

LANDY VISITS

Pose Isn't A Pet

By AL FORREST

Genial John Landy, the Miracle Miler, visited Victoria Thursday night to take a look at Vancouver Island before flying home to Australia.

Landy was winding up a return trip to British Columbia and a reunion with British miler Roger Bannister at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

The two made athletic history in 1954 when they both broke the four-minute barrier in the British Empire Games mile.

Last week at the stadium they unveiled a statue showing Landy looking over his left shoulder just as Bannister passes him on the right on the way to victory.

"It's not my favorite pose," Landy was saying Thursday night over dinner.

"But it's really something to have yourself done up in bronze now that I think about it — as long as I don't turn green from the cold!

"Lovely place, Victoria. A bloke could enjoy living here."

LOOKED WRONG WAY

He moaned good naturedly at the thought that sports history will remember him as the man who came second, and looking the wrong way at the crucial time.

The 37-year-old bachelor tossed cold water on the common notion that he thought Bannister was coming past him on the left.

"I thought Roger was a long way back on the bend. I was wrong as it turned out."

Landy, a chemical engineer at home also demolished the press tale that a cut foot slowed him down in that British Empire Games mile 13 years ago.

FOOT HAD HEALED

"It's true I had cut my foot on a broken flashbulb during the week but it had completely healed by race time.

"I had forgotten all about it until somebody mentioned it after the race.

"It wasn't my best time (he had run 3:58 — later amended to 3:57.9 — in Turku Finland just before the Games and could only manage 3:59.6 behind Bannister's 3:58.8).

"But there was a breeze unlike at Turku where it was absolutely calm.

WRONG STRATEGY

"And my strategy against Roger proved to be wrong.

"Nobody went to the lead and I ran too fast too early.

"If I had waited until the third lap to open up, it would have meant Roger would have had to work harder to catch up to me. The race would have been closer.

"But he beat me fair and square. There's no argument that he was the better miler of our time.

"He broke the four-minute barrier before I did. And he beat me man for man.

TRAIN FOR ONE DAY

"There's no use arguing — as I have heard some do — that I could have taken him in a series of five or seven or ten races.

"The mile isn't decided that way. It's not like the World Series.

"Athletes train for one big day at the Olympics or the British Empire Games. That's the way track championships are decided. Roger beat me when he had to. That decided it for all time.

"Did I enjoy running? Yes, when I got out of it.

"I mean, I enjoyed it at first, of course, or I wouldn't have done it, would I?

NATIONAL PRODUCT

"But I didn't care for the pressure — there was a lot of pressure — at the end. I became a national product, a national commodity. I wasn't permitted to fail.

"Up until that time it had been fun.

"I don't run much any more — except to catch the train. I try to keep fit.

"They've got the mile record down near 3:50 now. I expect you'll be asking what I think the limit is. Everbody asks that. It's about 3:45, I should think.

"Will anybody care about running 30 years from now? That's a splendid question.

"I think not.

WILL LOSE INTEREST

"To get below 3:45 we'll have to breed athletes like race horses.

"People will lose interest in the mile when it gets to that point.

"It will be like the yacht race, the America's Cup. The United States has built a super yacht so that it's no longer man against man but engineer against engineer. That's not sport.

"The U.S. is going to win all the time. It kills all interest.

"If they breed a super-runner he will win all the time. And nobody will care very much."

Pittsburgh, Flyers Rate Teams to Beat

QUEBEC (CP)—Bud Poile, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League, said Thursday night his club will finish first or second in the NHL's Western Division.

Poile made the statement at a press conference called to announce the names of the 19 players expected to start for the Flyers against California Seals next Wednesday in Oakland, Calif.

"I'll be very disappointed if we don't finish first or second," Poile said. "I'm not saying this is the team that will win it because there could be changes."

Poile was asked which team was the one he would have to beat for the NHL Western Division title.

"Pittsburgh right now seems like the team to beat to me," he replied. "Minnesota looks good with players like Jean-Guy Talbot and Elmer Vasko."

Selected for the Flyers were netminders Bernie Parent and Doug Favell; defencemen Ed Van Impe, Joe Watson, John Hanna, Jean Gauthier, Jim Morrison and John Miszuk; centres Lou Angotti, Forbes Kennedy, Garry Peters and Ed Hoekstra; and wingers Wayne Hicks, Gary Dornhoefer, Pat Hannigan, Leon Rochefort, Brit Selby, Bill Sutherland and Don Blackburn.

Chelsea Pilot Suspended For a Month

LONDON (AP) — Tommy Docherty, controversial manager of Chelsea soccer team, resigned today after being suspended by the English Football Association because of alleged misconduct during Chelsea's tour of Bermuda last July.

An association spokesman said the suspension means Docherty must divorce himself completely from soccer for 28 days starting next Monday. He will not even be allowed to pay at the turnstiles to watch a game.

Chelsea—one of the top London clubs—played two games in Bermuda last July and two of its players, Tony Hateley and Barry Lloyd, were sent off the field.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Americans Doug Sanders, Billy Casper and Gardner Dickinson and 22-year-old Englishman Brian Barnes went into the second round today as leaders of the rich 72-hole Golfer-of-the-Year tournament and the weatherman predicted stormy conditions for the next three days.

All shot four-under-par 68s in the first round.

The sun was shining Thursday and there was little wind as 19 golfers—11 Americans, seven Britons and New Zealander Bob Charles—began chasing the first prize of $55,000, the biggest first prize ever offered in professional golf.

Peter Alliss of England, Bobby Nichols and Gay Brewer, reigning U.S. Masters champion, were bracketed at 69 one shot behind the leaders.

Just Like Minnesota Pilot, Red Guessed Wrong on Yaz

Longborg Pitches One-Hit Gem To Blank Cards

BOSTON, (AP) — Manager Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals now can join manager Cal Ermer of Minnesota Twins as a wrong guesser on how to pitch to Carl Yastrezemski.

Both brought in left-handers to face the Boston Red Sox slugger on baseball's old theory that a southpaw has a distinct advantage over a left-handed pitcher.

Yaz proved both wrong by hitting three-run homers.

His second homer Thursday in the seventh inning of the second game of the World Series clinched the victory for Boston as the Red Sox blanked the Cardinals 5-0 and tied the series at one game apiece.

The 430-foot homer came off Joe Hoerner, who replaced Ron Willis when Yaz came to bat.

His homer in last Saturday's key game against the Twins wrapped up a 6-4 victory and sent the Red Sox on the way to the American League pennant. The homer was off Jim Merritt, ace Minnesota reliever.

Drove In First Run

Yaztrzemski's first homer of the game Thursday was off the Cardinal starter, Dick Hughes, a right-hander, in the fourth inning—the first run of the game.

All the time his big bat was booming, Jim Lonborg, the big Red Sox right-hander, was setting down the Cardinals with mechanical precision. He had a perfect game going until he walked Curt Flood in the seventh, and a possible no-hitter until Julian Javier hit a double to left with two out in the eighth. His sparkling one-hitter was only the fourth ever in a series game.

Lonborg pitched with a painful blister on the thumb of his right hand from the seventh on. A callous area on the thumb split open under the pressure of the magnificent job he was doing on the mound.

Set Stage for Homer

Jose Tartabull and Dalton Jones set the stage for Yaz' second homer in the seventh. Tartabull walked and Jones singled Tartabull, stopping at second. In came Hoerner and out of the park into the right field bleachers went the ball. Yastrzemski thus became the 16th man in series annals to hit two or more homers in a single series game.

Lonborg produced his masterpiece—he retired the first 19 batters he faced—after foresaking his own bed again for a room at a downtown Boston hotel.

"I just wanted to make sure I got a good night's sleep," explained Lonborg, who did the same thing last Saturday night before pitching the pennant-clinching game against Minnesota.

For the first 6 1-3 innings, the 24-year-old right-hander allowed only one swing that resembled a hit—a hard ground ball that second baseman Jerry Adair backhanded and fired off-balance to first.

Loses No-Hit Bid

Then in the seventh Lonborg's chance to equal Don Larsen's perfect game feat in the 1956 series evaporated. Curt Flood worked the count to 3-2, fouled off two pitches and then watched as the next pitch dipped low and outside for the fourth ball.

In the next inning, Lonborg also lost his no-hitter. He retired the first two batters on grounders, but Julian Javier swung at the first pitch and lined it down the left field line for a clean double.

That was the only hit the Cardinals got, and Lonborg became the fourth hurler to pitch a one-hitter in a series game.

The others were Ed Reulbach of Chicago Cubs in 1906, Claude Passeau of the Cubs in 1945 and Floyd Bevens of the New York Yankees in 1949.

"I didn't care about the walk," said Lonborg, a prime candidate for the AL's Cy Young Award. "I'm not after my perfect game—yet. The no-hitter is what I wanted.

CUP FINAL MONDAY

O'Keefes to Go Without Menzies

Victoria O'Kefes plan to present a "stand-pat" line-up Sunday when the Pacific Coast Soccer League club tackles Vancouver Columbus at Royal Athletic Park.

Manager Frank Grealy, expressing delight with his team's overall performance in a 3-1 victory over Burnaby Villa last weekend, said he will go with the same starting lineup against Columbus.

That means Ike MacKay, who turned in a brilliant game and scored two goals, will continue at centre forward in place of the injured Jim Menzies. Menzies, hobbled by a leg injury, will not dress at all.

District League teams also will be busy during the holiday weekend.

Two first division games are scheduled Saturday, five second division matches are on tap Sunday and the League's McGavin Cup final will climax the weekend Monday.

Canadian Scottish will face Red Lions in the cup final at Royal Atletic Park.

Scots also have a Saturday date against University of Victoria Vikings on the Gordon Head campus.

Hourigan's and Tally-Ho will tangle in another first-division match at Heywood Avenue Park.

All games start at 2 p.m.

Scouts' Report Merits Credit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Dick Williams of Boston Red Sox says scouting reports on St. Louis Cardinals worked perfectly Thursday.

"We knew what we should have done Wednesday," he said, "but we didn't do it."

The Red Sox whipped St. Louis 5-0 in Boston to even the 1967 World Series at a game apiece.

The teams moved to St. Louis late Thursday night and the series resumes Saturday in Busch Memorial Stadium. Both teams planned workouts today in the new stadium.

Manager Red Schoendienst of the National League champions planned no changes in his line-up for the third game. Williams revamped the Boston line-up after the Red Sox dropped the first game 2-1.

DESCRIBES HOMER

In the St. Louis dressing room Thursday, there was more talk about Carl Yastrzemski's two homers than the brilliant one-hitter by Jim Lonborg.

Dick Hughes, the starting Cardinal pitcher and loser, described Yastrzemski's first blast, a drive into the right field corner, this way:

"He hit a fast ball. I got the pitch about where I wanted it. You might say it was a half mistake and he made it a whole mistake."

The 29-year-old Hughes, a rookie, wasn't as sharp as normal, Schoendienst said. "And he tired some just before I took him out."

Williams said he wasn't concerned about the pressure of bouncing back from the first game loss.

"You should have been here during the season if you wanted to see some pressure," he said. Lonborg and Yastrzemski combined to give Boston a victory over Minnesota and the American League pennant on the last day of the season.

Elston Howard, a veteran of many World Series with the New York Yankees, said he called the pitch that Lonborg threw to Julian Javier and which was driven into the left field corner for a solid double, the only St. Louis hit.

"I called it," Howard said, "I called the whole game. I've called a lot of base hits and home runs."

Gary, Jack Split Purse

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus fought to a tie in a special "Big Three" golf tournament Thursday, played two holes of sudden-death and then agreed to split $40,000 in prize money when darkness and a flight schedule halted play.

Nicklaus shot a two-under-par 68, tying Player at 211 after the third round. The South African had a six-stroke lead after two rounds, but a four-over-par 74 on the final round enabled Nicklaus to tie.

Arnold Palmer was third with a final round of 72 and a three-round total of 216. he won $10,000.

Bombers Hope to Have Ploen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A canny veteran may be back in action this weekend as Western Football Conference teams play in a three-day series of games.

The veteran in Ken Ploen, Winnipeg Blue Bombers quarterback, who has been out for a month with a shoulder injury.

Ploen was advised by doctors Wednesday that the shoulder will not be any better two weeks from now than it is at the moment, and the news may prompt coach Joe Zaleski to insert his key man in the lineup for Sunday's contest in Toronto against the Argos.

Ploen has been at workouts and says his shoulder has certainly improved, but his passes have not got the old zip.

Zaleski lost defensive half-back Norm Rauhaus, also to a shoulder injury, last Sunday. If he brings Ploen back, he could shift back-up pivot Bill Van Burkleo to defence.

Star halfback Dave Raimey, also among Winnipeg's recent wounded, may be ready for Sunday.

The weekend action has Hamilton Tiger-Cats travelling to Calgary to meet the Stampeders Saturday; Winnipeg at Toronto and Edmonton Eskimos at Vancouver against B.C. Lions Sunday; and Hamilton against Saskatchewan Roughriders in the annual Regina Thanksgiving Day tilt.

The Hamilton-Calgary contest will be televised on the CBC national network and the Winnipeg-Toronto and Hamilton-Saskatchewan games on the CTV national network.

B.C. head coach Jim Champion said Thursday he will use new quartrback Hank Schinchtle against Edmonton, but he had not made up his mind on whether to start Schichtle or regular pivot Bernie Faloney.

The B.C. coach said he plans to give Roger Kettlewell a chance to handle the punting in place of regular Neal Beaumont who "has not been consistent."

'HERE DEAR, LET'S HAVE A PARTY'

Trainer Tommy Witts has the champagne and the inclination; rest is up to Golden Wine. Wine is fine but champagne is better. Fairway Farms and conditioner Witts are ready to sip the bubbly if their superior filly win the $1,500 - added Sandown Derby Saturday. Sixteen horses were nominated and even if a few aren't entered, race will be run in two divisions. (Photo by Harry Filion.)

Big Cheese May Be Sharp But There's Another Half

By HAL MALONE

Big Cheese may be the Damascus of the sophmore set at Sandown Park but owners of other three-year-olds at the Sidney spa aren't going to let him take the $1,500 added Derby in a walk-in.

When entries closed at midnight Wednesday for Saturday's Derby at a mile and one-sixteenth, 16 owners (Big Cheese's included) had handed nomination-entry fees of $35 each starting to racing secretary Stan Goddard.

With that many horses nominated the Derby will be run in two divisions.

And who knows? In the luck of the draw, a horseman might get in the division opposite Big Cheese.

MERITS TOP WEIGHT

Certainly Pete Baumgartner's gelding merits the high weight of 125 pounds assigned.

He has won five of 15 starts, added four seconds and a third. His last race — a neck behind This is True in the Times Handicap — was against older horses.

In his own age group he may show them how it's done even if they put roller skates on him.

The California-bred filly Golden Wine (five out of 12) is obviously at her peak and under different circumstances (no Big Cheese) would be ranked highly. She is in at 118.

Other Derby nominees and their weights: Handsome Chief, 117; Uncle Roddy, 117; War Treasure, 121; In Solid, 118; Chief Malarkey, 113; Rotated, 115; Glencar, 114; Oratress, 115; Short Circuit, 111; Easel's Pride, 117; Never Charge, 113; Red Repulse, 112; Betty's Pride, 113; and Captain Dahl, 110.

Goal by Fielder Scuttles Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

National Hockey League officials have wondered for years why Guyle Fielder of Seattle Totems didn't harness his acknowledged talents for a good shot at the big time.

The question arose again Thursday after Fielder potted his second goal of the night with less than two minutes remaining to give Seattle of the Western Hockey League a 5-4 exhibition victory over Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL.

Fielder, almost-perennial WHL scoring leader, flunked trials with Chicago, Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Eric Nesterenko, Chico Maki, Bobby Hull and Ken Wharram scored for Chicago.

In the only other NHL exhibition, Pittsburgh Penguins erupted for four third-period goals to defeat Minnesota North Stars 5-2 at Kingston, Ont.

Tom McCarthy, Ab McDonald, Keith McCreary, Billy Dea and Dunc McCallum connected for the Penguins. Ted Taylor and Wayne Connelly launched replies.

Alf Hopes Momentum Will Keep 'Em Running

The games that have been for fun are behind them now, and Phoenix coach Alf Pike hopes the momentum acquired in exhibition games may carry the Roadrunners "to a splashy start" when the Western Hockey League campaign opens in Vancouver on Monday.

The Runners certainly wrapped up their pre-season series in a fancy package, lacing San Diego Gulls 11-2 Thursday at Memorial Arena.

In atoning for their only exhibition loss — San Diego had beaten Phoenix 8-1 Wednesday — the Runners wound up with a 4-1, won-lost record. Gulls now sport a won-two, lost-one, tied-one record.

FIRED 82 SHOTS

In scoring the most one-sided victory of the exhibition season, Pike's Runners rambled with gay abandon. They took an astounding total of 82 shots at San Diego goalies Buddy Blom and Bob Champoux.

Exactly 50 were on target.

In contrast, Phoenix net-minder Rick Charron missed only two of the 28 shots the Gulls fired right on goal.

All but four players shared in the 24-point Phoenix melon.

TWO-GOAL EFFORTS

Veterans Lou Jankowski, Bob Kabel and Tom McVie led the way, each contributing two goals and an assist. Winger Brian Smith counted one goal and figured in two others to also come up with a three-point night.

Single goals went to rookie rearguard Doug Dunville, Claude Labrosse, Dick Lamoureux and Gord Redahl.

Rookie Ross Perkins and Len Ronson, counting his eighth in four games, scored for Max McNab's Gulls.

San Diego drew eight of the game's 15 minor penalties, and Runners capitalized by scoring four goals while exploiting the man advantage. Ronson's goal, coming late in the third period and after Phoenix had opened a 10-1 lead, also came on a power play.

POINT LEADER

Kabel's three points stamped him as the leading point-getter for Runners in their five games. He finished with two goals and seven assists for nine points. Jankowski was next in line with seven points, including a team high of five goals.

Smith and Lamoureux both had six points while Neil Clarke wound up with five.

The line of Kabel, Smith and Lamoureux — intact almost from the opening of training — accounted for 21 points, including nine goals.

Pike reduced his roster Thursday by assigning two rookies to teams in the (U.S.) Eastern Amateur League. Winger Marty Demarais is being sent to Long Island Ducks while Victoria-reared goalie Dave Halme has been assigned to Cherry Hill, N.J.

OUTDOORS REPORT

What'll It Be A Rod or Gun?

This is the weekend when men who like both hunting and fishing have to think twice before deciding whether to reach for a rod or a gun.

Thanksgiving Day weekend is traditionally the time to go after coho salmon at Cowichan Bay, where the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club starts its annual three-day Coho Derby at dawn Saturday.

Coho are also splashing in many other Island waters, cutthroat trout have moved into rivers with spawning salmon and trout fishing is picking up in several lakes and streams.

Tempting sportsmen to reach for firearms is the opening of shooting seasons Saturday on pheasants, ducks and geese along with the extension of the bull-elk season to all portions of the Island. Deer and grouse continue to be legal game.

Gunners are reminded that Jackson's (Billings) Spit at Sooke Harbor is now closed to shooting as are all portions of Glen Lake and Langford Lake.

Also closed to hunting by order-in-council today was Witty's Lagoon.

Rough weather during the week has hampered fishing efforts at Cowichan Bay but it is reported the coho have been only occasional biters in the bay. Best waters there appear to be around Genoa Bay and out near Separation Point.

Derby fishing will run from dawn to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Waiting for the most successful anglers are the top prize of a boat and motor, and two daily $100 awards.

Saanich Inlet is providing some fair action with coho and good numbers of big salmon are causing excitement at San Juan Bay. Prospects of hooking coho also appear fairly good, depending on the weather, in waters from Qualicum to Campbell River.

Kings Sign Rolfe

GUELPH (CP)—Los Angeles Kings have signed defenceman Dale Rolfe to a National Hockey League contract. An all-star with Springfield Indians in the American League last season, Rolfe appeared in three games for Boston Bruins in 1960 when he was a junior.

City Hoop Club Gets . . . . . . New Centre

COFFEE STOCK RISES

MORRIS DOUGLAS
. . . new man in town

Stock of Victoria Coffee Macs has climbed higher in the Inter-City Basketball League market.

About 77 inches higher.

That's the boost given the Macs by six-foot, five-inch Morris Douglas, a sticky-fingered centre who has moved to the city after being a regular with University of British Columbia Thunderbirds for three seasons.

Although Douglas contends he's "not much of a shooter," he has coach Darrell Lorimer back in an optimistic mood after four members of last season's Victoria club decided to play elsewhere in this campaign.

"His experience against American and Canadian college teams makes him the best player I have on the team," commented Lorimer, who is hoping his club will have a good shot at the league title.

Turning out with the Macs at 205 pounds, Douglas says he is a "little out of shape" but expects to round into condition under the Lorimer method, which he finds more pleasant than the rigorous UBC training routine.

Holder of a bachelor's degree in commerce and forestry, the 22-year-old Douglas is currently working here as a trainee in the B.C. Forest Products sawmill.

Working to get an extensive background before deciding where he wants to go, Douglas says he doesn't know how long he will remain in Victoria.

But he's here, and until he packs his bags, Lorimer will be hoping for a happy season, which starts with an exhibition clash with the Uvic Vikings on Nov. 4 and swings into league play about the middle of November.

Roblin to Face Tough Battle In Byelection

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Duff Roblin is not expected to get the same easy ride into the Commons Robert Stanfield appears to be getting.

There appears to be little pressure on other political parties to make it easy for Mr. Roblin to win a federal seat. In fact, the pressure seems to be the other way.

Mr. Roblin will probably run in the Manitoba riding of Marquette after he steps down as Manitoba premier next month. Nicholas Mandziuk wants to give up the Conservative seat for Mr. Roblin, runner-up to Mr. Stanfield at last month's party leadership convention.

For Mr. Stanfield, everybody co-operated from Prime Minister Pearson down. The Liberal leader called a quick byelection for Colchester-Hants after the Conservative member for the Nova Scotia riding quit to open it for Mr. Stanfield.

Both the Liberals and the New Democratic Party decided to let him in unopposed—an action at least partly due to the public feeling that it would be courteous and proper to allow Mr. Stanfield to take his place as leader of the Opposition as quickly as possible.

There were also suggestions both parties were acknowledging the inevitable by not running against Mr. Stanfield, a power in Nova Scotia politics where he had been premier since 1956.

NO PRESSURE

By contrast, the Liberals and New Democrats are likely to treat Mr. Roblin as just another politician trying for a Commons seat. Moreover, there is no pressure on Mr. Pearson to call a prompt byelection if Mr. Mandziuk steps down.

As a result, Mr. Roblin may find himself in a byelection timed to suit the Liberal government.

Dionne Kin Jailed

He had been charged with criminal negligence in the highway death of Mrs. Bernice Edberhart of Columbia City, Ind., on Aug. 30, 1966.

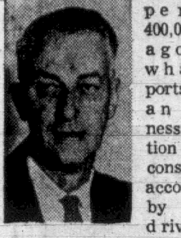
VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1967—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

On Thursday morning I spent three hours with a Swiss-born British Columbian who has dedicated his life to what may very well be the strangest quest on earth. His name is Rene Dahinden, and he is a Sasquatch-hunter.

If the Sasquatch exists, it is what man might be had his evolutionary climb changed to a descent perhaps 400,000 years ago. For what purports to be an eye-witness description of one, consider this account given by a bus driver who one rainy, blowy night of November, 1963, set out from Vancouver for Chilliwack.



His only passengers were several soldiers. These he let out at Sardis, going off his route to do so. Then he dicided to shortcut by way of Yarrow to the Trans-Canada.

As the headlights swept around a bend, they picked up what the driver took to be a very tall man in a fur coat. He slowed. The figure, now crossing the road, splashed through the puddles with huge feet. Its shoulders were bulky, its arms long and covered with hair.

At a distance of about 50 feet, the creature turned. Its face was like that of some monstrous, very ugly, ape-like man. The driver put his lights on high beam — the creature crouched, and "in one hell of a leap," vanished.

★

The bus driver told his friends. They laughed, and suggested he lay off the cheap booze. For five years, said Rene Dahinden, this man has been trying to convince himself he didn't see what he knows he did see.

I asked the inevitable question: "Have you ever seen a Sasquatch?"

Rene: "No."

Me: "You have been after them for 14 years. Are there or are there not Sasquatches?"

Rene: "How the hell would I know? My reasoning says there are no such things. Then my brain clicks in and says here are the tracks, the same wherever reported. How can I explain it?"

So he persists doggedly at his self-appointed task of sleuthing for a wonder-beast (he is convinced the giant primates are in no sense human) whose existence neither he nor anyone else has been able to demonstrate.

There are no legible photographs, no carcasses despite claims of wounding shots, no hides, hair or teeth, unless three molars dug up in China offer a clue. They armed the jaw of Gigantopithicus, a robust apeman that wandered Asia unimaginable centuries ago.

However, there are those tracks with which we will deal later, and the more than 300 reports of alleged Sasquatch sightings that cram Rene's files.

★

Rene Dahinden came to Canada in 1953. In Calgary one night, he listened to a typical Sasquatch account — the sort that end with "Can't possibly be true, but" — and when he crossed to B.C. the next year, other such tales drifted to his ears.

"I began to dig around," says he, "and next thing I knew, I was in it up to my neck."

He worked at various jobs, all within reach of mountain country. Finally his search brought him to Harrison Lake, where 'Sasquatch' is a familar word.

Most speak it with a smile; it has been a publicity-getter for Harrison these many years. But there are those who don't smile, among them Chehallis Indians who have their own dark lore of hairy giants that come down from the hills.

Rene has searched in those mountains, working the areas near and above timberline which are reputed to be the summer range of a Sasquatch band. He has found nothing, nor has the forbidding Upper Pitt River wilderness yielded him a sign.

"The great difficulty," he told me, "is that the approach has always been emotional. I want to see it tackled without emotion by men equipped and qualified to dig out the truth."

Tomorrow, Rene tells about the man who wouldn't shoot, and the incredible tracks on the road 'Mr. Bigfoot' treads with his kin by night.

ROUTINE TO OIL CREWS, ENCOURAGING TO GEOLOGIST

Offshore Drilling Rig Hits Gas Off Long Beach

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Shell Canada has admitted the offshore rig SEDCO 135-F encountered gas pockets in its drilling program west of Long Beach about three weeks ago.

The company is non-committal, but observers take the find as an encouraging sign that drilling — now deep into the second well of a two-to-five year program — is in formations of host rock nature.

A Shell spokesman at exploration and development headquarters in Calgary said there was "certainly an incident when some mud was blown out of the hole" during drilling in Shell Anglo Pluto.

●

"To drilling crews this was a routine thing," the spokesman said, but to inexperienced support crews it may have seemed more significant and this may account for rumors that have been circulating in the industry in recent weeks.

Rumors were bolstered by an item appearing in the Sept. 18 Oilweek, an authoritative journal of the oil industry in western Canada.

The magazine said:

"Shell Canada has encountered gas shows at its current offshore test 15 miles west of Vancouver Island, but contrary to rumor, the well did not blow out, a Shell official told Oilweek.

"Gas shows encountered at Shell Anglo Pluto entered the mud, caused some bucking on the rig floor with a little mud being thrown out of the hole.

"Two such gas shows were encountered at the well, in addition to a similar gas show at the earlier completed hole, Shell Prometheus. The Pluto well was last reported drilling below 7,200 feet on Sept. 8.

●

"It's not known whether or not any of the gas shows are considered worth further testing."

The Shell spokesman contacted by the Times said the Oilweek report was "expanded."

He said Shell's vice-president of exploration and development William L. Grossman told reporters in Calgary nothing unusual had happened.

It was perfectly normal for gas pockets to be struck during the course of deep drilling, the Shell official said.

Shell Anglo Pluto was spudded in Aug. 11 and by Sept. 1 had reached 6,535 feet below the sea.

By Monday of this week, Shell said, the hole was down to 11,879 feet and still drilling.

A senior geologist of the provincial department of mines and petroleum resources commented that such gas shows may be insignificant.

●

But on the other hand, he pointed out, Shell is pioneering the discovery of submarine earth formations. Up to now very little has been revealed of this type of geology on the west coast and Shell has the right to keep such information secret.

However, he said, the fact that the drill is apparently still in sedimentary type rock is encouraging them to continue.

Another government geologist agreed that this was a "most encouraging" sign.

"The fact that they are getting such a thick section looks good. I'm feeling pretty happy about it," he said.

Mill Walkout Expected To Be Over by Tuesday

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

VIETNAM REPORT will be given in Metropolitan United Church hall at 7 p.m. Saturday by Dr. Henry Mayer, a U.S. physician who recently visited that country. His talk, sponsored by Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, will be preceded by a symbolic "Thanksgiving non-feast" of rice and tea to signify identification with the sufferings of Vietnamese. Voluntary donation is the only cost of admission.

A three-day unofficial walkout by 400 workers at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road is expected to be over by Tuesday.

The first talks between the company and the International Woodworkers of America were held this morning. Millworkers were meeting at 2 p.m. in the Union Centre to hear a report from IWA officials.

"The company and union don't appear to be too far apart," said IWA president Murray Drew shortly before the membership meeting at which certain recommendations were to be made.

REQUESTED BY UNION

Mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said "we did discuss problems with union officials." The meeting, he added, was requested by the union.

Saturday and Sunday are normally days off at the mill and Monday is a holiday with Thanksgiving being celebrated.

The day shift at the mill walked out Wednesday norning and other shifts refused to work, complaining of "unbearable working conditions" following a visit by efficiency experts.

Mr. Humphreys, in a statement, called the walkout illegal and "wholly unjustified."

STILL OUT

In an unrelated dispute at Van Isle Moulding and Millwork east of Elk Lake, 35 employees remained off the job for the third day.

The company has been paying industry-union wages and increases but did not sign the 1966 coast contract. The Van Isle plant in Langford was not affected.

A meeting between IWA officials and Van Isle president Peter Brotherston was expected to be held this afternoon.

Norwegians Greet Prince In Costumes

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Gay Norwegian costumes — a contrast to the grey wet streets outside — greeted Crown Prince Harald of Norway when he entered City Hall this morning.

More than 130 Victoria members of the Sons of Norway, many of them in costume, gathered in the red-carpeted council chamber to welcome the heir to the throne of Norway — a tall, slim young man in the uniform of a Norwegian Army captain.

After being welcomed on the City Hall steps by Mayor Hugh Stephen, the prince met Jack Lysne, president of the Victoria branch, Sons of Norway, and chatted with several former Norwegians.

Mayor Stephen presented the prince with a replica of the city's coat-of-arms and an illustrated book on Vancouver Island. The prince gave him a silver enamelled hand-made bowl and a portrait of himself.

Prince Harald then toured the Silver Threads Centre at 4 Centenial Square, accompanied by Mayor Stephen and Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director.

ADMIRED CRAFTS

He stopped to admire the products of various handicrafts classes and showed particular interest in the basketwork exhibits.

"This is very fine work indeed," he remarked to Mrs. Horne.

Earlier, Prince Harald was received at the Legislative Buildings by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, representing Premier Bennett. He signed the visitors book and examined some of the exhibits in the premier's office, including a Japanese sword and a replica of the B.C. ferry Mv Queen of Sidney.

The prince was welcomed at Patricia Bay Airport Thursday evening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mr. Bonner.

'HORROR OF A LAW'

Bonner Vows to Fight Against Decision on Delinquents' Act

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said he will ask the Supreme Court of Canada to reconsider its decision or else petition the Canadian Parliament to change its Juvenile Delinquents Act.

He said he was highly disturbed that a Supreme Court decision this week rejecting a B.C. government appeal would give youths permanent criminal records for such things as failing to put a reflector on their bicycles.

"This would be an atrocious state of affairs because adults —those over 18—who broke traffic regulations are not saddled with criminal records," he said in an interview.

"We're studying this decision very carefully to seek which of two possible courses we will pursue:

"One, is to ask the Supreme Court for a review of its decision, which is unusual but sometimes granted;

"Or two, to ask for a change in the national law which was set up to protect young people and now has become a horror."

Discussions are under way now with Ontario and Quebec which had supported B.C. on constitutional grounds.

The case arose about three years ago soon after the B.C. government, as an administrative practice, began charging juveniles breaking traffic regulations under appropriate municipal bylaws instead of the federal Juvenile Act.

This was done because conviction on any count, no matter how minor, under the Juvenile Act constituted a crime and was permanently recorded.

Prince George Magistrate G. O. Stewart precipitated a test case of the new procedure when he fined a juvenile $400 for speeding under the Motor Vehicle Act.

WON APPEALS

The defence appealed, and won in subsequent hearings that went all the way through the B.C. Supreme Court, B. C. Appeal Court and finally the Supreme Court of Canada.

Its contention was that the driver should have been charged with speeding under the Juvenile Delinquents Act instead of under the provincial traffic regulation.

The three provinces argued that such a finding would violate the Section 92 of the British North America Act which allowed provinces, and their municipalities, to legislate within their own jurisdictional fields. They said traffic regulations were a matter of provincial purview and not federal criminal law.

"The net result of this Supreme Court decision is that we appear to have no authority as a province to deal with citizens under 18 years of age," Mr. Bonner said, "as well as giving a child of tender years a permanent criminal record for a civil misdemeanor."

Ask The Times

Q. What is the best way to overcome "stomach breathing" or "air swallowing"? S.C.C.

A. The best remedy, says a local doctor, is the old one of holding a cork between the teeth. This prevents the "swallowing" muscles from working. A cigar would serve the same purpose. But if the situation is serious then medical advice should be sought.

Squeeze Ahead On Uvic Campus

Noon Hour Classes Likely Next Year

By DERYK THOMPSON

The University of Victoria is less than a year away from a classroom accommodation crisis.

About 100 classrooms are in almost constant use now.

No new building will be available next year but there will be an estimated 400 more students.

"Noon hour classes seem almost a certainty," said Registrar and Dean R. R. Jeffels.

"To combat the problem we can either start the day earlier, (it now starts at 8:30 a.m.) run classes later in the evening, (some now go to 6 p.m.) or schedule them at noon hours.

"The latter possibility seems to be the most immediate solution," he said.

NO RELIEF SEEN

Funds for building expansion are several years away. This means a snow-balling problem of putting more and more students in the same classroom space.

Uvic enrolment has tripled in the last seven years, increasing 19 per cent this year to top 4,000.

"With our curriculum still evolving rapidly there will also be a substantial number of new courses added to accommodate student interests and to cover different disciplines," Mr. Jeffels said.

The space dilemma has already hit offices with some of the faculty sharing space, said the registrar.

NEW DEPUTY minister of provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce is Robert F. Renwick, now manager of the federal government's trade and commerce office in Vancouver. He has served in Bombay, Tokyo, Chicago and Trinidad. Salary for his new position will be $19,000 a year. He succeeds Thomas Sturgess, who retired in September, 1966.

Peterson Appraisal 'Fair'

Education Minister, Leslie Peterson touched sensitive spots in his speech to 500 B.C. school trustees in Vancouver Thursday.

"But I think basically it was a fair appraisal of the situation," Greater Victoria School Board Chairman Peter Bunn said this morning. (See Page 31.)

A point-by-point review of some of the issues with Mr. Bunn drew these comments:

The minister said schools should be used on a year-round basis with some facilities — libraries, business and industrial machines — available around the clock if the need is there.

"This makes good sense," said Mr. Bunn, "and the Greater Victoria School Board already has policy to make school facilities available to the general public."

The board intends shortly to trying opening school libraries at night on an experimental basis, he said.

Mr. Peterson called "antiquated" the system of having schools idle during the summer months each year and said daily hours, length of the school year and holidays will be the subject of a wide-ranging study soon.

SOME RESISTANCE

Mr. Bunn said he forsaw a certain social resistance initially to schools operating during the summer when people, both teachers and parents, are used to scheduling holidays and other activities such as training courses.

In a move to battle soaring school costs the government will study standardizing all school construction to cut building unit costs. And it will no longer act as borrowing agent for school boards including features in schools beyond the education department's minimum standards.

School construction costs are not the only prices rising, said Mr. Bunn. Everything is.

"I don't think school boards are guilty of wasting the taxpayer's money. Trustees are very conscious of the rise in property taxes for education. We have got to and are watching construction costs."

QUALITY FIRST

The important thing is that a standard school design be of the highest quality.

"Components must be absolutely first rate. Otherwise we'll end up with the chicken houses of the 50s."

The government is considering making school trustees directly responsible for fixing school mill rates.

"This is fair enough. If we're responsible people we shouldn't expect the municipality to do our dirty work for us."

Magistrate Hits City Power Pole

Magistrate J. A. Byers escaped uninjured when his car struck a power pole on Fernwood about 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The accident occurred when Mr. Byers swerved to avoid an amber construction warning light.

Damage to the car totalled $200.

Police said the dim light was responsible for an accident earlier.

FIREMEN, SPCA AGREE

SO DOES SHOCKED RESCUER

Poled Cat Isn't Worth Man's Life

Spokesmen for the fire department and the SPCA said today it is unthinkable to risk a man's life to get a cat down from a telephone pole.

A city man received a 6,900-volt electric shock while removing his cat from the pole in front of his house Thursday.

The fire department and the SPCA had both refused to do the job.

In fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital is Allan Williams, 31, of 433 Kingston. He has burns on his scalp, back, heels and ankles.

He rescued the cat and was removing the aluminum ladder when it touched the live wire. He was thrown to the ground but the circuit kept sending current into him until the fuse was blown.

Mr. Williams and his family moved into their home two days ago. Mrs. Williams said the cat was up the pole all night crying.

"I phoned the fire department and they said they didn't do that any more. When I phoned (the SPCA) I was told they didn't have any facilities for it."

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said it is department policy not to use firefighters to remove cats.

"It is a fact they will come down when they're ready to come down.

"It would be ridiculous to endanger the life of a fireman to get a cat that will come down on its own eventually."

David Beeching, SPCA manager, said cats can stay up a pole or a tree for as long as seven days without coming to harm and normally a cat gets down on its own.

He said the best tactic to follow is to place some food on the ground beneath the animal and stay away from it.

"The cat is up there for security and will come down when it feels safe."

He said that on occasion the SPCA has rescued a cat, given it to its owner who placed it on the ground and the animal has gone right back up the pole.

Mr. Beeching said a man was electrocuted on the mainland about a year ago when he went up a power pole to rescue a cat and "people have no business taking chances around telephone or power poles."

He said the SPCA in some exceptional cases has brought cats down from heights but it is not policy to assist. He said the RSPCA follows the same policy.

Mrs. Williams commented after the incident: "After all this, as far as I'm concerned if a cat gets stuck up a tree it can stay there."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Unspoken Words Was Rule Here

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate. After nearly 20 years of marriage my husband has asked me for a divorce. He says he needs a wife, not a housekeeper.

Two years ago, in the middle of a heated argument I told my husband that his love-making did nothing for me — that I had only been putting on an act.

Abby, it wasn't exactly the truth. I only said it to hurt him. I never realized that he would take it so to heart. He hasn't touched me or kissed me since that day, and now he wants a divorce.

I would do anything to have my husband back the way he was. I have a fine home, wonderful children, a car of my own, and I don't want a divorce. Please, please, tell me what to do.

SUNK

DEAR SUNK: Unless you can convince your husband that what you said was not true, and you only tried to hurt him, I am afraid you are indeed sunk. There may not be much help for you in my reply, but it may serve to let others know that one seldom regrets unspoken words.

DEAR ABBY: My Angelo says he wants supper to be on the table at 6 o'clock sharp. So I put supper on the table at 6 o'clock sharp and where is Angelo? He is outside looking at the yard, or talking to the neighbor. I yell "Angelo" and he yells back, "One minute." One minute turns out to be one hour. So I take his supper away and heat it up again.

I have reheated his supper as many as three times, and then he says, "Boy, O, boy, are you a rotten cook."

What can I do?

ANGELO'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Give him a 10-minute warning call. Then put the supper on the table hot, and if he doesn't come and get it—give it to him cold.

DEAR ABBY: I know that etiquette demands that ALL personal letters and notes be hand-written, and it is considered very poor manners to use a typewriter on these occasions, but this is my plight: I suffer from arthritis in the fingers of both hands and it is extremely difficult for me to use a pen. I am able, however, to use a typewriter, so I type all my letters and notes. Is it necessary for me to mention in my typewritten notes that I know better, but because of my arthritis I beg to be excused?

KNOWS BETTER

DEAR KNOWS: I believe that regardless of what the etiquette books say, consideration, convenience and common sense should dictate behavior. I personally appreciate typewritten notes, the propriety of which never enters my head.

DEAR ABBY: You covered the subject of why a man will usually choose a divorcee over a widow very well, but you could have mentioned another reason.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was.

But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husband was, because if he was all that great she'd still be married to him.

No Ideas for Supper? Do Try Eskimo Muktuk

By PENNY SAVER

What a day it had been. Hubby came home from work disgusted, Junior couldn't make his math work out, my back ached and the family cat had attempted to catch the bird. The suggestion came up that we should go out for supper but nobody could agree on where. Finally I had an idea. There was rice and soya beans in the cupboard and all I had to do was find something to go with them. I look in the refrigerator and the freezer and found nothing at all appealing. I put on my coat and decided to go downtown and see if I could find something different.

My luck this time was good. Very easy to prepare and truly unusual are the tins of whale meat I found. They are made in Canada and the meat is cooked in Eskimo style. There is a choice of whale meat or muktuk, the tender fleshy covering of the white whale. Both can be prepared by bringing the contents of the can to a boil and letting them simmer for five minutes. The Savers found the muktuk very good when served with rice and fried mushrooms. The cost is a very reasonable $1.25.

For a party, smoked oysters with crackers and coffee are a perennial favorite in our household. The only preparation is opening the can and putting toothpicks in each oyster for easier handling. Every can contains 3 1-6 ounces and costs a mere 37 cents.

Another item that appeals to the Savers is green banana jam. For anybody who likes a spread that is different this is just the thing. I found it very good to have around when the family had a yen to try something new with coffee. The cost is 63 cents a can.

Honey is something I can never resist. In almost any form, it is my favorite food. I was able to come home with a most unusual honey made of sage. This honey is completely pure and there is a flavor for every taste. If you like stronger flavored honey there is wild buckwheat and if your taste runs to the unusual there is eucalyptus blossom. There is also a wild honey made of a mixture of different plants. It's priced at 69 cents a pound.

If you would like to know where I found these items give me a call at 382-3131.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

You don't have to be as talented as Mary Quant or Yves St. Laurent to create an exciting wardrobe.

All you need is some knowledge of sewing, the "tools of the trade" and the inspiration to succeed. Today, it's easy to sew a fine seam. Take advantage of the many free instruction courses and the easy-to-work-with patterns, fabrics, trimmings.

The girl who says "I can't even thread a needle" is being as unrealistic as the one who cries "I can't even boil water."

Self-confidence is probably the most important factor in becoming your own custom-dressmaker. Enthusiasm, too, is essential. You'll find that sewing is only boring when it's restricted to darning socks or taking up hems. There is a special thrill which comes from creating something new all by yourself, and there's a great deal of money to be saved as well.

You can make that new date dress, for example, at a mere fraction of the ready-made price. All it costs is the fabric and findings — the labor (yours!) is free. Just buy an extra yard of fabric and voila — you'll have the added bonus of a jacket or stole to match.

Start with a simple project. For example, suppose you have a plain shirt you're bored with. Buy some pre-shirred ½-inch lace or a complementary edging (make sure it's colorfast) and sew it on to the front of the shirt. Pin or baste the trim on first — then stitching is simple as a breeze. Make three or four rows on each side — more if you really feel "dandy." And there you have it—an exciting new accent for your wardrobe.

Until you're really good at sewing and fitting, don't get overly ambitious and attempt to put together a suit or a coat. Instead, select a basic pattern for a cape or a poncho. Choose a new reversible or bonded fabric which eliminates extra linings and facings. The amount of sewing on either item will be minimal. Finish off your edges by stitching on contrasting wool or knit braid.

Once you've successfully completed a few outfits, think about making something special that you might not be able to afford ready-made.

How about a little fur wrap? It's not out of the question. Major department stores are now carrying real fur — everything from stencilled rabbit to mink is sold by the yard! Fur by-the-yard is usually 60 inches wide and you only need about a yard for a wrap. In a fun fur — white French rabbit, for example — the cost would be well under $100.

A leather needle and good strong thread (not nylon!) are the basic tools. To cut fur use a single-edged razor blade and cut from the skin side. After you sew a seam, take a pin and release the hairs and you'll never even see the stitching.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook, 5090 West Saanich Road, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Bonnie Kathleen, to Mr. Rodney Brian Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Patterson, 1503 Charlton Road. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 7, at 7:30 p.m., in Garden City United Church. Rev. H. R. Whitmore will officiate. (Canadian Studios.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Almond Oil Is Excellent Lubricant for Complexion

Q. Is almond oil good or injurious to the complexion?

A. No. It is not injurious and is an excellent lubricant for the complexion.

Q. I have a really awful problem with my complexion. I do not have pimples or blackheads. In fact I have a good complexion except for one thing. It is so oily that my makeup actually disappears after a short time. It just sort of melts away.

Lowman

I use no cream on my face and wash it with soap and water several times a day. I also use astringents, but when I go out for an evening, before it is half over, I might as well not have worn any makeup. What can I do?

A. The cosmetic industry has come up with first-aid for almost every skin problem. Fortunately, there is a powder on the market which will be most helpful to you and others who have the same problem you have.

This is a translucent pressed powder that absorbs excess oil. You can use it alone, or pat it on top of your usual makeup. It adds no color but does away with the shine. I do not use trade names in my column, but if any of you would like to have the name of this product, I will be glad to send it to you. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Q. Can noise really cause deafness?

A. It has been shown that exposure to continuous loud noises can damage the hearing. There is no danger from the usual everyday noises most people are exposed to—that is, no danger of damage to hearing. However, the nervous system can be worn to a shred by very loud TV, barking dogs, blowing horns and so forth.

Q. What is meant by cosmetic lanolin?

A. This is a more pleasant, more refined form of lanolin. It is usually scented.

Q. How long should conditioner be left on the hair?

A. This depends on the conditioner. Follow directions carefully. These differ.

Q. How long will it take me to increase my bust measurement?

A. Of course, this depends on how faithfully you do the exercises but usually, it takes several months. You are building muscle. Isometric exercises increase contour much faster than the other kind.

If any of my readers would like to have my booklet "Isometric Exercises" for fast results, send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Church Realizes Over $3,500—Plans to Improve Its Grounds

The recent Nottingham Fair, held by St. John's Anglican Church in the parish hall, proved a great success.

The event, which was convened by Mrs. P. Sands, Mrs. G. Baker and J. Duncan, raised more than $3,500. Part of this money will be used to build a stone wall at the front and side of the church. The remainder will be given for the church's work with overseas missions.

Alderman C. Parrott, a member of the congregation for many years, made the official opening. His wife was presented with a corsage of red rosebuds by Girl Guide Joyce Lang.

Donald Woolworth, the church's organist and choirmaster, arranged the decorations and entertainment and J. Avery convened a sale of artificial logs.

The highlight of the day came when Frank Kilshaw and Harold Yardley auctioned off 220 new, used and antique items which had been gathered by Mrs. W. Freethy and C. Risebrow.

Mrs. M. McDougal, Mrs. R. Burg and Mrs. P. Gilson convened a successful home baking stall and the delicatessen table was in charge of Mrs. G. Cooley and Mrs. A. Curtis.

Other stall conveners were: Used clothing, Mrs. W. McWilliams and Mrs. C. Burr; white elephants, Mrs. H. Goldfinch; garden shop, W. McWilliams; candy, Miss J. Paver; toys, Mr. and Mrs. F. Preston; fish pond, Girl Guides, led by Miss V. Zuck; cake walk, the Junior and Girls' Auxiliaries; snack bar, Mrs. E. MacGowan; books and records, A. Lambrick.

The luncheon and tea was convened by Mrs. D. Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. van Veen's only daughter, Johanna Ziena, will marry Mr. Philippe Joseph Poole, son of Mrs. M. F. Davis, 1041 Lodge Street, and the late Mr. J. J. Poole. Her brother, Mr. Charles Volken van Veen, will wed the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. Zwaan, of The Netherlands. Dr. J. L. W. McLean will officiate. Miss Maria Christina Zwaan is staying with the van Veens.

Opening Dance

The recently-formed Vancouver Island Netherlands Association will hold an opening ball at the Club Tango on Saturday, October 14 at 8 p.m. The Skylighters will provide music for dancing and dress will be semi-formal.

Bowls of rust, yellow and pink dahlias decorated the B.C. Protestant Orphans' Home when the Ladies' Committee entertained at its annual pound party and donation tea. Mrs. N. Harwood, president, received the guests.

Mrs. A. Wiszniewski was the convenor for the successful affair which raised $154 for the home.

Donations of everything from Halloween "kisses" to bags of flour were received by Mrs. A. H. Adams and Mrs. W. Luney.

Plates of tea cakes were served by Mrs. J. Banister, Mrs. E. Boutillier, Mrs. F. Shandley, Mrs. W. E. Weeks, Mrs. J. Bigmore, Mrs. A. Cuthbert and Mrs. C. R. Patrick.

Helping to prepare the tea were Mrs. G. Murdoch and Mrs. M. Stretch. Mrs. W. Holder ushered the guests.

Mrs. C. J. McLeod was in charge of publicity and Mrs. J. W. King acted as treasurer.

For the children, the best part of the afternoon was spent singing selections from "Mary Poppins" and other musical numbers under the direction of Mrs. Sylvia Steventon.

Charles Ellington, president of the Men's Board, thanked the women for their support.

ANY PROXIES?

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Alderman Laura Sabia, a long-time crusader for women's rights, wants women shareholders to send her their voting proxies so she can attend annual meetings of Canadian corporations and demand female representation at the policy-making level.

"Women will never attain equal status in Canada until they make it in the world of finance and taxation," she says.

Mrs. Sabia has already appeared at the annual meeting of Canadian Breweries with her demand for female representation on the board, and says she has since received more than 100 proxies from women who want her to repeat the performance.

Married in the Inn of Her Parents

BRIDE WEARS MINI-DRESS

Rosina Margaret Lane, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lane of the Olde England Inn, wore a mini-dress of hand-embroidered Swiss organza with a matching skull cap for her marriage to Terence Izzard in her parents' hotel. Her mod shoes had large antique glass buckles. She wore a bridal veil of tulle and carried a tiny white basket filled with flowers in purple, mauve and white colors. For 'something borrowed', she had a ruby and opal ring, belonging to her mother, 'something new' was a string of pearls given her by her sister, Miss Dorothy Lane, and 'something blue' was a traditional garter.

Mr. Lane gave his daughter in marriage and Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiated. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Mawby of Mablethorpe, England.

Trailing vines decorated the hall and stairway of the Inn, accented with white bows and bells. Masses of flowers in purple, mauve, gold and white tones completed the decor.

The ceremony took place in front of an altar which was originally used in a French palace. Antique gold Italian candelabra, purple and white candles and a Cambodian carving added to the scene.

The three small flower girls, Janice, Paris and Dallas Wright, wore long dresses in purple and green Thai silk and dainty skull caps. Each carried a tiny basket of flowers. Michael Cathers was ring bearer, wearing a green Fauntleroy suit, enhanced with lace ruffles. Mini-dresses of the same material were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. Sue Cathers and bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Lane, and Miss Julie Clark.

Michael Williams was best man and ushering guests were the bride's brother, Cyril Lane; Bernie Zorn and Dominique Chapeau.

Cecil Clark proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed.

Purple, mauve and green ribbons accented the head table that held seven white cakes, made and decorated in mod motif. Lily of the valley completed the setting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Owen and Mr. Frank Berhard came from Vancouver for the ceremony. Others from out-of-town were Mrs. G. Richardson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Miller, the Okanagan, and Miss Sandy Smyth, Montreal.

Dressed in a royal blue mod pant suit, black Spanish-styled sombrero and black accessories, the bride set out on a honeymoon trip with her husband which will see them motoring to South America, travelling by boat to England and continental Europe, before setting out on the next leg of an around-the-world tour.

She explained how these would be used to teach student nurses case room delivery techniques. Reports showed that 20 hospital visits had been made, four home visits, and membership had increased to 144 active and 67 associate members. Mrs. W. D. Dickinson, reporting on a bazaar committee meeting held in her home, said that it would be held November 8, one week later than usual. Co-convener Mrs. D. Hunter is in charge of the main raffle. Tickets are being sold at the hospital and various stalls. Mrs. D. McCullough convened the tea which ended the meeting.

While visiting in Victoria Mrs. Fern Payne discusses the goals of the Association for the Modernization of the Canadian Abortion Laws, of which she is vice-president.

DEPLORES HYPOCRISY OF PRESENT LEGISLATION

Woman Works for Reforms in Abortion Laws

By JO DREWRY

The gap between Canadian abortion laws and the number of illegal abortions is a subject that has been swept out from under the carpet and into the House of Commons' committee room.

In the vanguard of those who support the changing of the present abortion laws is Mrs. Fern Payne, vice-president of the Association for the Modernization of Canadian Abortion Laws.

Mrs. Payne, who is staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. Daphne Temple, 1243 Richardson Street, explains the hypocrisy of the existing laws. "Medically, most doctors feel that if the life of the mother is threatened during pregnancy then abortion is justified. However, legally, a doctor has justification for abortion only if there is a difficult delivery. There has never been a test case of this law in Canada."

The association wishes to see a relaxation of the laws that will parallel those recently passed in Colorado. Abortion should be permitted:

1. When the physical or mental health of the mother is endangered.

2. When pregnancy is the result of rape or incest.

3. When there is a high probability of retardation or malformation of an unborn child, or because of serious hereditary disease.

Cases Mrs. Payne cites illustrate the urgency of permitting these revisions. "A little girl aged 12 was raped by her father became pregnant and was sent to the hospital to have the child. The offender was sent to the penitentiary, but the child's entire sense of security was destroyed. Having suffered the initial shock of incestuous rape there was no law which would spare her added suffering."

RISK OF DAMAGE

"A little-known fact that provides medical justification for abortion in such cases is that a girl under the age of 18 is likely to undergo permanent physical damage from pregnancy. In the Bourne case in England a 15-year-old was the victim of rape, and abortion was finally permitted on psychiatric grounds. In this case, however, they found definite evidence that the pelvic bones remain soft until the age of 18 and often, after a pregnancy in her early teens, a girl will be unable to have children."

Some women who belong to the AMCAL believe that the revision of the laws should go further — that a woman should be permitted an abortion whenever, and for what-ever reasons she wishes. But all the members—they're 300 strong and increasing daily — are convinced that these three points must be read into the law.

Mrs. Payne tells of a mother in her Ottawa neighborhood who has joined the AMCAL. She has a mongoloid child who has complications of digestive problems. This woman believes that abortion would have been a solution for her suffering, and that of the child.

"Another mother has a young daughter with an hereditary skin affliction. Her skin is so thin that the slightest bruise or bump will break it, and the child's life is always in peril. If this woman could have had an abortion she would have done so.

CRUCIAL NEED

"In Canada, where there are 625,000 retarded, 200,000 of whom are mongoloid, there is a crucial need to permit abortion to a mother who knows her child will be defective.

"In the United States the Bragg and Steel test has been developed. This test can pick out the extra chromosome for the mongoloid child after 20 weeks of pregnancy. Research is being done to perfect this test so the chromosome will show up at 16 weeks. If this is done, and the abortion laws will change, the tragedy of these births will be averted."

The AMCAL would not want a panel of doctors to judge the necessity of abortion. Mrs. Payne recalls Mrs. Finkbine's plight. "A panel of doctors decided against abortion, because there was not a unanimous decision. We would like to see a woman's attending physician and one other doctor make the decision."

The AMCAL believes that change must be brought about in not only abortion laws, but in the areas of sex education, birth control, and sterilization. It is also studying the most up-to-date methods of abortion techniques, and hopes to eventually be able to advise women who wish such information.

One method of abortion that has attracted the attention of the AMCAL medical advisor, Dr. J. C. Whyte, head of gynecology and obstetrics at Ottawa Civic Hospital, is the 'vacuum method'. This reduces the danger of hemorrhage and is being used effectively in Yugoslavia, Israel and behind the Iron Curtain. There is no surgery involved. "This is a new idea for Canada, but it requires a special instrument, and this is not available here.

"The present method isn't dangerous if it is performed in a hospital, but it rarely is. Detective Sargeant Quesnel, head of the Toronto morality squad estimates that between 300 to 1,000 women in Canada die or have their health seriously impaired by illegal abortions each year. After narcotics and gambling, it is the third best-paying crime in the country."

TO PRESENT BRIEF

The AMCAL hopes to correct this situation. They have completed the second draft of a brief that will be presented to the Commons Committee of Health and Welfare, and findings from this committee will go before the House.

This takes time, though, and meanwhile the organization is recruiting members and planning its first national conference in Ottawa in November. Mrs. Payne hopes that anyone who is interested will write to the AMCAL, 285 Metcalfe Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

"The climate is right for this action," she says. "In 1965 the Canadian Institute for Public Opinion found that 71 per cent of Canadians wanted to see a change in the present abortion law. We know we have the public's support, but we have to hear from these people to be able to act with authority."

MALE ORDERS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Gainesville man has written Gov. Lester Maddox's new Citizens' Watchdog Committee with this request: "Find me a wife."

He said he was divorced and could not find a suitable woman for his children. The committee, appointed by the governor to keep an eye on state government at the grass roots level, did not reveal his name.

Newlyweds Will Live in Halifax After Wedding Held at Nanaimo

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Nanaimo, when Dianne Elizabeth Baldwin became the bride of David Bertram Pink.

Parents of the principals are Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Baldwin of Nanaimo and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pink of Burk's Falls, Ont. Rev. A. E. Greenhalgh officiated at the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight bridal silk designed by David E. Rea, styled with a scissor-pleated panel sweeping back from the waistline. Guipire lace medallions, re-embroidered with crystals and pearls, bordered the hemline and a Juilet cap of matching medallions held her bouffant chapel-length veil of silk illusion which misted to cathedral-length. As a jewelry accent she wore an heirloom gold necklace and bracelet inset with pearls which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. A. V. Hunt, Victoria. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Standards of white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the church. The organist, Mrs. A. Lawson, played Elgar's "Salut d'Amour," Rubenstein's "Romance," "Bridal March" by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" during the service.

Miss Diane Senior, Vancouver; Miss Cynthia Baldwin, the bride's sister, Miss Marion Kirkbride and Miss Sharon Morrison, Port Alberni, were the bride's attendants. They wore matching gowns of emerald green shantung styled on empire lines featuring Guipure lace panels, and Miss Baldwin's dress was styled with sleeves of Guipure tipping the elbow. They wore self-fabric headpieces en tone and carried pendant bouquets of pale yellow glamelias.

Little Pamela Galt was the flower girl for her cousin, gowned in ivory shantung with flower appliques starring the neckline and complemented by a matching head-piece studded with pearls. She carried a posy of white roses and stephanotis.

David Winkler, Vancouver, was best man and Bob Baldwin, brother of the bride, Jack Forsyth, Robert White, Vancouver and Russell Curtis, Victoria ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Tally-Ho Travelodge a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by arrangements of white roses and leather fern, centred the head table. White chrysanthemums, white roses with salal and ferns decorated the room. Dr. J. R. Howey was master of ceremonies and Dr. C. C. Browne proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Hawaii the new Mrs. Pink chose a glade green Swedish suit which she accented with bright blue accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home in Halifax, N.S.

Heels Make News

MONTREAL (CP) — The attention of Montreal fashion enthusiasts is focussed on new heel shapes and sizes this week, as the spring collection of Canadian shoe fashions are exhibited at the Canadian Shoe and Leather Fair.

While the square and broad toe became the rage in footwear fashion last year, this year's interest is centred on heels, especially of the one, two and 2½-inch-high variety.

Toes are still broad, although there is a tendency toward a somewhat rounded effect rather than the blunt square cut.

A wide array of bows, straps and buckles reflecting the hardware influence all decorate the spring fashion forecast.

A CLASS IN SENIOR FIRST-AID for housewives, and others, will be started by St. John Ambulance, 941 Pandora Avenue, on October 11 at 9:30 a.m. Emphasis will be put on accidents in the home.

ENCHANTING EVENING

Olivier Blends His Brilliance Into Bawdy, Witty Comedy

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Among critics on both sides of the Atlantic who really know what they are talking about the British today are acclaimed as providing the English speaking theatre with the most brilliant and stylish actors in the world.

And at the pinnacle, by almost unanimous consent, stands Sir Laurence Olivier.

As artistic director of the National Theatre of Great Britain, Sir Laurence has in a sense inherited the mantle of the great actor-managers of the past.

At the moment he is taking his company on a tour of major Canadian cities before appearance later in the month at Expo.

WITTY COMEDY

The tour opened this week in Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre with William Congeve's bawdily witty and thoroughly enchanting comedy, Love For Love.

This was, without doubt, the crême de la creme of high style comedy performance. Vancouver is unlikely to see its equal in many a long night, for such a perfect combination of rich earthy flavor, sleek sophistication and airy delicacy is so rare as to be almost unknown anywhere on this continent.

A measure of the greatness of Olivier, both as actor and artistic director, can be found in the beautifully integrated ensemble effect the company provides.

Olivier carries a major role. In it a lesser artist would inevitably attempt to dominate his scenes.

But Sir Laurence, who has populated the National Theatre with the most brilliant members of Britain's acting profession, does not permit this to happen.

This marvellous unity of the whole is perhaps the most important and impressive aspect, principally bacause our more frequent exposure is to the American theatre which still labors under the distortion of the star system.

ON THE MARK

Congreve's comedy was written in 1695, but its scintillating wit is just as searingly on the mark today as it was 300 years ago.

The tale is one of love intrigues and lust, of matchmaking, mischief-making and the imminent disinheritance of the hero by an unpleasant old father.

Every scene was played for its maximum in comedy effect. There is, for example a delightful duo in the proposal episode between the rough-hewn sailor son and the bumpkin girl his father has chosen for him.

The girl attempts to prevent her unwelcome suitor from seating himself beside her on a bench and this simple manoeuvre is carried to delicious heights of comedy.

Even so, there is perfect artistic control which never allows a scene to be carried past its valid stopping point, which prevents the clowning from degenerating into outright ham, which avoids the obvious, and constantly takes one unaware with an imaginative, vivid piece of business.

VITALITY

It may be redundant at this point to comment on the beautiful footwork, the vitality and fluency of movement, the dead-on timing, but they were among lasting impressions one carried away from the performance.

Other things I personally shan't forget are the eyes of the blackamoor groom which shifted in perfect timing with the movement of the main protagonists in a scene; the splendid sets and costumes, and the musicians — cello, flute, horn and percussion — who were part of the play, opening and closing acts and interpolating charming bits of 17th century music.

Some comment has been made concerning audibility of the actors but this was not a problem from where I sat. The only words I missed during the entire three hours were a few in the songs performed by a young boy.

PLANE GOES FOR SOLO JOURNEY

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A plane at the Salt Lake Municipal Airport didn't need a pilot Thursday to get it off the ground.

Winds gusting up to 70 miles per hour lifted the craft off the ground and atop the top of a hangar owned by Thompson Flying Service.

OVERCOME by temperature in the 90s, comedienne Martha Raye fainted before 300 GIs in Saigon today during the finale of Hello Dolly. She was carried offstage but when revived said she would return to perform on schedule Saturday. She was wearing heavy wig and costume weighing about 20 pounds.

VOLUNTEER SERVICE

New Bureau Makes It Easier To Lend Others Helping Hand

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

This is the season of the year when many men and women in Victoria start looking around for some form of volunteer service to fill their leisure hours.

A good many are retired people. They are active in mind and healthy in body. And when the days draw in they need something to help them pick up the slack and to keep them busy.

Nothing will do this quicker or bring more rewards than helping others.

There is no lack of such opportunity in Greater Victoria. But until now, anyone interested would only find such work by contacting the various volunteer agencies or groups themselves.

●

From now on its going to be much easier. A volunteer bureau has been opened to help such people find the type of work they will most enjoy.

Right now this bureau is set up in a room in First United Church Sunday school hall. It's open Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Anyone who wishes to offer hours or days in service for others may register there and they will receive assistance in finding such work.

Actually this is a two-way street with the bureau as a clearing house. On one hand it will register men and women who have time and energy to donate. On the other it will receive requests for volunteer help from agencies and groups.

●

There is no training program for volunteers beyond a minimum orientation in the work as a whole.

The bureau opened its door last Monday and within a few hours it had calls from 10 would-be volunteers. By Wednesday the small staff (themselves volunteers) was so busy interviewing they had to use three of the Sunday school rooms instead of one.

This points decidedly to the need for such a place. And I'd be willing to wager that within weeks it will have more than proved its worth.

●

It's a year now since the idea was born when two young housewives, new to Victoria, experienced difficulty in finding "worthwhile" volunteer work. They went to Garth Homer, executive director of the Community Welfare Council, with the idea of a bureau.

At his suggestion they explored the pattern of 20 such bureaux in Canada and the United States and in April this year they presented a brief on the subject to the welfare council.

The council decided to sponsor such a bureau as an experiment in the Greater Victoria area and one of its members, Mrs. C. D. Stockdill, was named chairman of the undertaking.

During the summer 25 welfare agencies were contacted, first to establish an interest in the undertaking and secondly, to find out their specific needs.

●

By July, the committee was enlarged to include Mrs. C. W. Smith, Mrs. D. M. Fimrite, Mrs. H. H. Youson, Mrs. J. A. Millar and Mrs. E. W. Beltz.

The board of stewards of First United Church granted use of the Sunday school room. A minimum of office equipment was donated and an anonymous friend gave $50 for a telephone.

The Community Welfare Council is covering the initial minimum financing until such time as the need for this type of agency has been proved. After that it is possible the bureau will apply to the Community Chest for incorporation as a member agency.

Which brings us back to the beginning and to the many men and women who have time and energy to devote to helping others. This could be in a number of different fields including the blind, the physically handicapped, in youth groups or with senior citizens.

●

Perhaps you've thought about this already. Perhaps you've made tentative plans to offer some of that time you have so much of, to bring others a little hope and pleasure.

If so, don't hesitate. Get in touch with the Volunteer Bureau now. (Remember the office will be closed on Monday — it's Thanksgiving Day.)

THEFT charges against Cass Elliot, 24, 210-pound member of the Mamas and the Papas singing group were dropped in a London court today after the Los Angeles singer pleaded innocent. The prosecutor said her explanation of the absence of two blankets and two keys from a London hotel last February was satisfactory. She said, "I feel very happy and proud to have my character unbesmirched."

No Sasquatch Search Yet But Kiernan Impressed

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Thursday he was impressed with a Victoria prospector's story of seeing a Sasquatch near Garibaldi Park but there is no thought of launching search expedition yet.

"We want to keep an open mind on the subject and need a lot more basic material before we send out any expeditions," he said. "I would appeal again for anyone with useful information to come forward."

Mr. Kiernan last week listened to the anonymous prospector's story of seeing footprints and the creature itself in the Pitt Meadows area two winters ago.

WHO NEEDS A HEADSHRINKER?

Honestly, if you fly to Europe this Fall without seeing London, perhaps that's what you do need! Because London in the Fall is uncrowded, leisurely, and at its most beautiful. And a stopover in London won't cost you a penny extra in fares. The BOAC 21-day Vancouver/London Economy Excursion fare is a comfortable $539 return. Just consider the extra convenience of BOAC's increased Fall and Winter schedules (22 BOAC and Air Canada flights a week from Toronto and Montreal direct to Britain; and 8 Western Arrow flights a week from Vancouver to London). Add the friendly efficient service. The glamour of the most advanced jets in the business. And you have a proposition you'd be crazy to miss.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BARNES — In loving memory of my dear husband, E. J. (Ted) who passed away Oct. 6, 1966.

Memories tender and true,
Keep you near and dear as yesterday.

—Lovingly and sadly missed by his wife Madge.

COOK — In loving memory of our youngest son, Sidney William Cook, who passed away on October 6, 1963.

His smiling way and pleasant face,
Are a pleasure to recall;
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.

PERFECT EYES ARE RARE

Sooner or later, most eyes require correction. Of ALL HUMAN PHYSICAL CAPABILITIES, THE FUNCTION of the eye is the most easily corrected. Few people realize this, and many need glasses long before they get them. This is often true of children. Uncorrected defects in vision can mar a child's future. Why not have us make an appointment with a skilled eye specialist for your entire family? Should you require glasses, we will be happy to guide you in choosing a frame styled just for YOU.

Large selection of frames at regular and sale prices. Both high quality merchandise of fine styling. Why not bring your prescription to MAYCOCK OPTICAL, 1327 Broad St., the corner of Broad and Johnson, where you can buy single vision glasses complete for as low as $14.95.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

East must play his ace of clubs instead of the king at trick one. This play cannot fool his partner but it may fool declarer.

Opening lead—♣ 5

Why can't the play fool West? East is sure that South doesn't hold two clubs. He would not have jumped to a diamond slam unless he could win the first or second club trick.

In any event the question of West being fooled is academic. South ruffs the first club and promptly leads his ten of hearts.

Perhaps the jack lead would have been better. This is one of those potential falsecard situations in which the winning player mixes them up and throws the fast ball or the curve depending on his opponent, the time of day and the recent course of the stock market.

South doesn't stop to draw trumps or anything like that because he wants to put the question to West before West has had the opportunity to learn anything about the hand except that South started without any clubs.

Of course, West also is sure that South has solid diamonds and the ace of spades. He also is pretty sure that South has the king of spades and either one or two hearts.

If this West is a good player he has probably figured out that he is not going to beat the slam unless South started with precisely jack-ten of hearts and will let the ten ride if West ducks.

Therefore Good Player West ducks and now we see why it was imperative that East falsecard in clubs. If East had played the king, South would be certain that he could not hold the ace of hearts also because he would have opened the bidding.

South has a chance to go wrong and probably will.

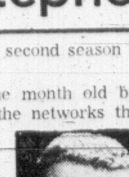
Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Television may record the earliest second season in its history.

Look at it this way. It's only one month old but already the 28 shows introduced by the networks this season have barely made a dent in viewing habits.



Stephen

The public reaction so far has been that the new shows have all been seen before. A massive disenchantement has set in and viewers have turned to movies for relief.

They've done so in such great numbers that movies dominate the latest ratings scene.

The most recent ratings showed The Great Escape with Steve McQueen finished number one and number two in the lists.

The fourth ranked program was also a movie, What A Way To Go, and so was the fifth-rated program, Fun In Acapulco with Elvis Presley.

Then such as "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof," the Tennessee Williams story with Elizabeth Taylor, Paul Newman and Burl Ives, was shown after the ratings were taken. Others included Alfred Hitchcock's" North By Northwest" with Cary Grant and James Mason and the Melina Mercouri classic, "Never On Sunday."

They will show in the next toting list and will probably rate up near the top.

The only new show that came close aws The Flying Nun and it finished 11th. It was preceded by Bonanza, Family Affair, Gomer Pyle, Andy Griffith, Lucy and Bewitched.

Back on Sept. 13, this space said that he Flying Nun had all the potential of a hit. It is the only program of the new lot which is competing for a top ratings spot. It hasn't broken the top 10, true. But it has captured the viewers attention as surely as Bewiched and The Beverly Hillbillies did in their early weeks.

But movies are definitely in this season. Because they and the networks could very easily be led to introduce new series in time slots not now occupied by the films. Hence, an earlier-than-ever second season.

TID BIT: Bob Hope, who emceed the Sportsman's dinner in Vancouver late last month, flipped a comment to a Variety columnist about the big mainland metropolis the other day.

Upon his return from Canada, he referred to Vancouver as ". . . such a British town, it's an entire city of Clive Brookses."

Hoo, boy.

TRUSTEES DEFEAT VICTORIA PROPOSAL

Income Base for School Tax Shot Down

VANCOUVER — A man's income — not the size of his house — should determine the amount he is taxed for education.

This is the stand the Greater Victoria School Board pushed hard Thursday during debate on resolutions at the annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees' Association here.

A vote among the 500 delegates shot the stand down in flames. The official score was 278 to 26.

BCSTA policy endorses the existing system of property taxation, a technique Greater Victoria School Board Chairman Peter Bunn terms "grossly unfair."

"To pass this resolution would be the same as passing a resolution to abolish school trustees," Bruce Saunders, Campbell River School Board chairman, said during debate Wednesday.

BEST IN CANADA

"We may not have the best system in the world but we do have the best in Canada," he added

The vote made it clear most trustees feel that local taxation is required if local representation is to continue.

The first of 70 resolutions for debate was also sponsored by the Greater Victoria Board and it fared better on the convention floor.

Mr. Bunn said today he did not see a single hand in opposition to the call for a full-time minister of education. Leslie Peterson doubles as education and labor minister.

MONEY VOTES

The delegates voted in favor of a resolution by Gulf Islands school district calling on the government to reduce to a simple majority the vote required to approve money votes.

Twice this year ratepayers in the Gulf Islands have failed to produce the required 60 per cent majority favoring a building referendum, thus producing severe crowding.

A resolution from Vancouver urging the government to make kindergartens a regular part of the school system was approved 247-44.

Ban on Teachers Gets Second Look

VANCOUVER (CP) — School trustees are to reconsider today a motion passed at their annual convention Thursday that calls for legislation to ban school teachers from school boards.

The motion, submitted to the three-day B.C. School Trustees Association convention by the executive, was passed in a secret ballot, 162-129, despite opposition from many speakers prior to the voting.

Association officials said there are five teachers in B.C. who hold elected posts on school boards.

James Campbell of Saturna Island, association vice-president, said the executive wanted to "clear the air" on possible conflict of interests a teacher-trustee might have.

During debate, the motion was termed a retrograde step in democracy, discriminatory and totalitarian.

Later, after delegates had considered several other resolutions, R. J. Bowman of Richmond precipitated a procedural wrangle by submitting a new motion that the contentious resolution be reconsidered today.

Under the convention ground rules, delegates have to consider Mr. Bowman's motion.

"I hope they come to their senses," he said in an interview later. "Teachers must be laughing up their sleeves that school trustees are so afraid of them, that they want them excluded. This is the history of dictatorship. You disfranchise those you don't want in power."

J. D. L. MacFarlane, a Burnaby teacher who is a Vancouver trustee, said he "strongly resents the implication that there is a division of allegiance. The real allegiance of teachers of this province is to the betterment of education."

He termed the motion "a retrograde step in terms of democracy."

Under legislation now in force a teacher cannot be on a school board in the same district in which he is employed.

Kissinger Funeral Saturday

Mass will be celebrated at St. Patrick's Church at 10 a.m. Saturday for John Kissinger, well-known operator of a bulldozer firm, who died suddenly at his 872 Island Road residence Thursday. He was 50.

Impaired Driver Gets Break

A self-confessed impaired driver won the compassion of the bench in Central court today.

Magistrate William Ostler fined him the minimum $50 and suspended his licence for eight months.

Graham Donaldson, 1740 Newton, said he had drank only three beers but had been taking prescription tranquilizers before hitting a parked car while driving along Fernwood, Sept. 28.

He said he was suffring from a nervous disorder and had a wife and two children to support on a small salary.

Magistrate Ostler, noting his nervous condition, said he believed the story and that a heavy punishment would only work a hardship on the family.

"But," he warned, "this is not to be taken as a precedent," adding that the man's condition and his family circumstances made the case unusual.

Man Fined $100 For Leaving Crash Scene

Charles Pash, 155 Menzies, was fined $100 in traffic court today when he faced a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Frederick Desrosiers, 891 Kindersley, was fined $50 for careless driving. His car struck a cross walk sign on Admirals Road, Sept. 6.

NOWHERE TO GO

Welfare Housing Problem Serious

Victoria welfare cases are having a hard time finding suitable low-cost accommodation, city council health and welfare chairman Ald. Lily Wilson told the committee Thursday.

She said a number of welfare recipients are in desperate accommodation at the moment because there is no suitable place for them.

City welfare employees have been combing advertisements and looking for rental accommodation for their cases, although this was not part of their normal duty, Ald. Wilson said. She wondered if the Rose Blanshard urban renewal scheme will provide some housing welfare cases may obtain.

Ald. Percy Frampton said the urban renewal scheme, although designed to help accommodate low-income families, was not necessarily suitable for welfare cases.

The welfare chairman said that meanwhile "there is just no place for these people to go.

"I know of one pitiful case where a child is ill and going to grow progressively worse. The family is living in a cold basement flat."

Mayor Hugh Stephen reported the city has 78 of the 127 properties required for commencement of the project at Rose-Blanshard.

Meanwhile, said city manager Dennis Young, the federal and provincial governments (paying 75 per cent of the total $2.6 million cost between them) are divided about how much detail plans should have. But he was confident that plans would be ready when the land is assembled.

The committee heard a letter from Senior Citizens' Campaign Council seeking provision in the project for low-rental housing for the elderly.

"It is not quite right to say there are no plans for low-rental housing for the elderly," Mayor Stephen said.

Mr. Young said the thinking that went into preliminary planning was that family accommodation was the "real need of the city, which is incompatible with housing for older people."

There will be housing for the elderly, but not specifically for them, and not adjacent to other units.

GAS POCKETS

The first geologist said that so little is known about the structure that quite a number of holes would likely have to be drilled before even Shell will have a good picture of the area.

Gas shows are not new to west coast test drilling. Within the last decade a number of them were found in the Fraser Valley, none of commercial potential or apparently indicative of crude oil.

Just after the Second World War some companies tried land exploration in the Queen Charlotte Islands, in some cases drilling hundreds of feet in granite, or basement rock, before giving up.

One of the earliest recorded gas shows in the Charlottes was in 1913 at a well called British Columbia Tian Bay No. 1.

She is survived by her sons, Clifford W. and Kenneth L. Roach, and a daughter, Mrs. E. E. (Kathleen) Stewart, all of Victoria; seven grandchildren, seven great grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Police Seek Girl, 10 As Rapist's Helper

MONTREAL (CP) — Police were searching for a man reported to have sexually assaulted two teenaged girls and a woman within four days after they were lured into his car by a young girl.

The victims told police they had been driven to secluded spots and the girl, believed to be about 10 years old, held a gun on them as they were raped.

Police said that last Saturday, a 16-year-old girl walking across Jacques Cartier Bridge on her way home from La Ronde, Expo 67's amusement area, was offered a ride by the 10-year-old girl and the man, said to be in his 40s.

Police said that once in the car, the man told the teenager he had to go to the south shore of the St. Lawrence River to tie up his boat, but that he would drive her home later.

However, when the man reached a secluded spot in suburban Brossardville he pulled out a revolver and asked the girl for her money. Police said the girl told him she had none so he told her to get undressed and sexually assaulted her while the 10-year-old girl held a gun.

ROAD-HOGGING STUDENTS DRAW POLICE WARNING

Sidney police will crack down on road-hogging students.

RCMP Cpl. H. D. Chambers said charges will be laid against students who walk sometimes "five or six abreast" disregarding motorists.

He said the worst offenders are students at North Saanich Secondary School.

"We have received lots of complaints from motorists."

He noted that where there is no sidewalk, a pedestrian walking along or upon a highway should walk only on the extreme left side of the roadway, or the shoulder of the highway, facing traffic approaching from the opposite direction.

Rolling Truck Kills Logger

CAMPBELL RIVER—A chokerman was killed instantly Thursday when crushed by a loaded logging truck.

Dead is Larry Merlo, about 30, of Little Bear Bay, 36 miles north of here.

The truck crashed down on him when the side of a hill caved away at a Reliable Logging Co. operation at Rock Bay, one mile south of Little Bear Bay.

Dr. Neil Hall, Campbell River district coroner, said an inquest will open tonight.

PORT ALBERNI — Parents here have been warned to keep their children away from park and bush areas until bears go into winter hibernation.

The warning came from Des Haddleton, game conservation officer.

A mother bear and two cubs were killed recently when they wandered into the yard of a house on Fourteenth St. South. Last week a large bear was reported hanging around Montrose St., less than two blocks from Woodward's.

Authorities said a total of 27 freighters called at Nanaimo for cargo.

NORTH COWICHAN — Central Vancouver Island health unit no longer has a clinical psychologist.

Coun. Margaret Robertson told North Cowichan council Wednesday this is because highly trained personnel can receive higher salaries in fields other than government.

She was making her report as representative on the Central Vancouver Island Union board of health.

Mrs. Robertson quoted Dr. S. E. Jensen as saying British Columbia is 15 years behind the rest of Canada in mental health care.

Coun. Robertson said the number of referrals to the mental health clinic is increasing and there is a six-month waiting period for consultation.

The summer camp for emotionally disturbed children was a success but only 24 out of 200 children could be accepted.

Cattle Plan Bogged Down At Cowichan

DUNCAN — Members of Cowichan Indian Band have a rotating herd of cattle which has been at a standstill for three years.

In 1964 the Indian affairs department shipped to the Cowichan Reserve a pedigree herd of Hereford cattle.

The 20 head were divided between Simon Charlie and Alphonse Billy.

Idea of the department was that Simon Charlie and Alphonse Billy retain the animals for two years.

At the end of that time they would pass the original herd on to other members of the band but keep the progeny as a start of herds of their own.

Today the herd is still with Simon Charlie and Alphonse Billy, except for those sold by the two men.

FORCED TO SELL

Simon Charlie said Thursday, "I have had to sell some this year on account of not having enough hay.

"Unfortunately not many members of the band are farm-minded but there is money in it."

New band manager Ross Modeste is also chairman of a farm management committee set up by the band council.

He said the department required anyone taking over the herd to have a proper barn, tight fencing, enough winter feed and sufficient land.

Mr. Modeste said, "it seems there just has not been the interest the department hoped to stimulate because here are only some people who could meet the requirements."

He said the potential of farm land on the Cowichan Reserve is 600 acres already cleared and 350 acres adjacent to Indian Road, Glenora, which is in process of being cleared.

GRAZING LAND

Mr. Modeste said these 350 acres will be used as grazing when the band's farm management committee takes over running of the rotating herd in the spring.

He said, "What we are hoping to do is build a bigger herd and subsequently find three or four people interested in making a start farming.

"The band and not the department would finance expansion of the herd in the hope of stimulating new interest in farming."

Mr. Modeste recalled the Cowichan Indians' success as grain, fruit and potato farmers in the days at the turn of the century.

Their market in those days was Victoria.

The Cowichan Indians also raised polo ponies which were shipped to England and India.

Mr. Modeste said, "Cowichan farming came to a sudden end when white Saanich farmers persuaded Victorians that produce from up-Island was inferior.

"Because of the white Saanich farmers' pressure the Cowichans' market was killed.

"There was no market in Duncan which was a small community at that time.

"Cowichan Indian farming just faded out."

SPCA Asks Grants Be Doubled

NORTH COWICHAN — The Duncan branch of the SPCA wants twice as much money from the city of Duncan and North Cowichan councils.

This means the two councils are expected to grant $6,000 between them.

Society president James Egan said Thursday if the new contract to be signed by the end of the year does not provide this income the branch will have to discontinue its services.

Mr. Egan said, "We of the society are aware of inadequate service in some respects but it is due to lack of finances."

There has been no change in the financial agreement between the society and local authorities since 1959.

Mr. Egan said, "Unless the joint councils agree to negotiate a new contract I see little alternative other than the withdrawal of our services."

North Cowichan council Wednesday referred the society request to committee for consideration.

Council has still to meet since the society request was lodged at city hall.

Residents Defeat Boat-Launching Ramp

GANGES—Beddis subdivision residents have refused to allow a boat launching ramp to be built at Beddis Bay.

Their protests, backed by a petition, defeated the proposal pushed by the chamber of commerce and the Rod and Gun Club.

However the residents have agreed to find an alternative site for a boat ramp.

Residents argued the beach should be kept for swimming only, not for launching boats which one resident described as "lethal weapons."

Others said it would destroy the beauty of the beach and that once it was installed, further development might follow.

Young Woman Jailed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lyndia Wallace, 21, was sentenced to 16 months Wednesday in provincial magistrate's court after pleading guilty to being in possession of marijuana for trafficking. Court was told she purchased three pounds of the drug in B.C. and was arrested here Sept. 28.

HISTORIC OCCASION FOR PROVINCE

Native Indian Book Chosen for Schools

The B.C. education department has included its first book written by a native Indian in its new recommended text list.

"This is a fairly historic occasion for education in B.C. and probably Canada," said Education Minister Leslie Peterson as he introduced the author, George Clutesi, to reporters.

The prominent Indian artist-poet-lecturerer from Port Alberni wrote "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" which has been selected as recommended reading in all B.C. elementary schools at the intermediate level, between Grades 3 and 5.

Mr. Clutesi drew the 18 illustrations as well as writing the 40,000 words of various fables from the lore of his own Tse-shaht people. The book was published recently by Gray's Publishing Ltd., of Sidney.

"It's a collection of stories that is very easy to read," said Mr. Peterson. "I've read it from cover to cover and enjoyed it."

FOR QUALITY

He said the book was chosen purely for its quality and suitability for children, not because the author was Indian, but the department is anxious to find more suitable works by Indians to add to the list.

"We now have more than 50 per cent of the Indian children in this province integrated in our schools and there is a shortage of this kind of material which would be of specific interest to them."

He added books by Indians would help demolish white Canadians' misconceptions about Indian character, history and aspirations.

And Mr. Clutesi said there are many misconceptions, among them the common one that "the Indian is very staid and unromantic, that he never smiles and that he never jokes.

"Just the contrary is true."

He said this would be proved dramatically if some way can be found in reading periods in schools to do his book in the Indian manner — by "acting out" the fables.

"The Indian is very emotional," he said. "He literally paints a picture when he tells a story and that is something I have tried to capture."

With a culture that did not include the written word but relied on professional storytellers, the west coast Indians have developed a stylized method of voice and gesture in story-telling so compelling "that our children are filled with squeals of delight when they hear them . . . they're just transported.

"This was my purpose in writing these stories too—not to just give an account but to make the readers live them, to understand the Indian belief that everything under the sun is very, very important no matter how small."

Mr. Clutesi said for that reason, writing his first book was extremely difficult but he feels he succeeded in translating the traditional Indian storyteller's art from the verbal to written medium.

"Each tribe in the past had its own version told by its own professional story-tellers who did it a little differently and these stories in the book have been told in my own style and version although the core of it is common to the other versions."

He said he hopes to write a second book, this time on the culture of the west coast Indians.

The 62-year-old artist said one of the gripping moments of his life was a visit to the Canadian native Indian pavilion at Expo — which features one of his murals — and learning about Indian achievements and other Indian tribes.

FIRST BOOK written by George Clutesi has been chosen as a B.C. schools' text. The Indian artist's "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" has been recommended for grades 3 to 5 reading about Indian folklore.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Stan Jelinek, age 8, of Muncie, Indiana, for his question

What causes concrete to harden?

Water does not always behave like water. We can freeze it to solid ice or boil it away in steamy gas. But all the time it is still water. Many things change their looks and ways when we do different things to them. Cement hardens because of something we do to ordinary rocks.

In kindergarten you had a lot of fun with paste. Perhaps you know that this wonderful goo can be made from ordinary flour. You put the flour in a pot and add a little water. Stir out the lumps until the moisture is smooth and add more water, drop by drop. Now heat the mixture very slowly on the stove, stirring it all the time. If you stop stirring, or if the brew heats too fast, it will bunch up into bumpy, good-for-nothing lumps.

But if all goes well the mixture boils and turns into smooth creamy paste. After it cools you can use it to paste pictures in an album. When the pasting job is done you leave it alone to set. Tomorrow the paste will be dry and firm, holding the paper where you put it. If you drop a gob of paste on the fooor and forget it, it dries into a hard lump. In your paste experiment you changed powdery flour into gummy paste that hardened into a sticking material called an adhesive.

They do something very like this to make cement and concrete. In your experiment, the flour had its own natural gummy quality. In concrete, the material with the adhesive quality is cement. And cement is a man-made product. The main ingredients are two difforest kinds of rocky minerals found in the ground. We must have rocks that contain lots of lime. Slabs of limestone, chalk or marl will do. We also must have lots of clay type rocks. Slabs of slate or shale are good.

Cement Powder Has Sticking Quality

The clay rocks and the limey rocks are fed into great machines that chomp the hard slabs to powder. Then so much of the limey powder is mixed with so much of the powdery clay. The mixture comes out looking like hard little marbles. Then a little gypsum is added and the recipe goes to another machine that grinds it into powdered cement.

The cement powder is like flour. It has a special sticking or adhesive quality. You mix cement by adding a little water but you do not have to boil it. When the water dries out, the cement is a lump of hard rock. However, it is wasteful to use cement in this way. The strong adhesive can stick lots of sand and gravel together. So the powdered cement is mixed with these other ingredients and then a little cold water is added. The water makes the cement sticky. Then the water dries out and the mixture becomes a hard lump of stony concrete.

All materials are made of tiny particles that are too small for our eyes to see. The particles in an adhesive material are the right shape to stick and cling to other materials. The adhesive material must be moist and pasty for the trick to work. Then it acts as if it had a zillion little hooks. It sticks and clings to other materials. The moisture soon dries out but the adhesive particles stay stuck. Powdered cement must be kept dry. Even a few raindrops will make it moist and pasty and when the water dries out, the sack of powder will have become a lump of hard stone.

Timbuktu Symbol of Unlikely Place

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Jan Breeding, age 14, of Lansing, Michigan, for her question

Where is Timbuktu?

When you say that you are off for Timbuktu, you mean that you are going to some faraway place at the end of the earth and get lost. Timbuktu stands for the most remote and unlikely place in the world. Most people think that it does not even exist, but it does. Timbuktu existed long before Columbus discovered the New World. And even in those ancient times, Timbuktu was thought of as a small, forgotten place at the very end of the world.

Timbuktu is in the heart of Africa, just north of the Niger river in the nation of Mali. It is in the midst of the sandy Sahara desert, and to reach it from the Atlantic side of Africa you would have to travel about 1,000 miles. But since travelling and trading began, people have been crossing the scorching Sahara with camels and caravans. The caravans strolled along well known routes with well-known stopping places along the way. On a lonely route through the hottest and driest region of the desert there was a small stopping place called Tombouctou. Its name has changed to Timbuktu — but you can still find the little out-of-the-way place in the heart of the great Sahara Desert.

YOUR HEALTH

Sweating 'Problem' Helps Keep Us Cool

By WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Quite a few people write every month asking what they can do to get rid of excessive perspiration, and especially malodorous perspiration.

Much of odorous perspiration comes from the armpits There are two kind of glands which can make sweat: one secretes a fluid which hasn't much odor but has to do with keeping our bodies cool.

I read that we have from 2 to 5 million of these so-called eccrine glands. They are scattered all over the body, mainly on the back of the chest, forehead, palms of the hands, and soles of the feet, and under the arms. The fluid they secrete is odorless and colorless, but by evaporating, it cools our bodies, and it moistens the skin.

There are a very few people who lack sweat and grease glands, and were born with ichthyosis, which means fish-skin. They have to put up with that for all their days. About all they can do is each day to rub some oily preparation into their skin. Once I had a good friend and his brother who had that inborn peculiarity. My friend was very able, but eccentric, and his brother was feeble-minded.

The other type of glands, the apocrines, are larger and not so numerous, and are concentrated in the armpits. They have some association with the body hair. They can be caused to secrete abnormally by emotional stress, perhaps fear of pain or sexual excitement. In some few people the perspiration has a strong odor. In all my years I have met only a very few people whose body odor was offensive to me, and they could avoid trouble by taking a bath every morning and changing their clothes every day.

There is another substance that the skin glands produce — the so-called sebum — a fatty, waxy substance which lubricates the skin. Sometimes it can decompose so as to produce an unpleasant odor. The glands are usually close to te body hairs. There are many of them on the forehead, and around the nose and upperlip. Enlarged and infected sebum glands form the acne which distresses so many young people.

Man Stands Trial In Brother's Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack William Dietrich, 48, was committed for trial Thursday on a capital murder charge in the shooting death of his brother, a leading British Columbia businessman.

Magistrate Cyril White ordered Dietrich to stand trial following evidence from nine Crown witnesses during a 2½-hour preliminary hearing.

He is charged with shooting his brother Fred, 51, a vice-president of the Bank of British Columbia and president of Dietrich-Collins Equipment Ltd., at the elder Dietrich's office Aug. 15.

Inspector Percy Easler of the city police crime laboratory testified Fred Dietrich was killed by three shots in the chest from a .22-calibre pistol.

An earlier police witness said he found a gun later identified as the murder weapon near Fred Dietrich's body in the victim's office. Three spent cartridges were found nearby.

Inspector Easler testified the gun jammed after every third shot, and was jammed with a cartridge when it was brought to him shortly after the death.

Gun salesman George Oliver told the court he sold the pistol Aug. 5, 10 days before the shooting, to a man identifying himself as J. W. Dietrich.

An RCMP officer from suburban Burnaby testified he registered the gun to a man who gave his name as Jack W. Dietrich on the same date.

No date has been set for the trial in B.C. Supreme Court.

HOME GARDEN

Seaweed Humus Good Garden Tonic

By JACK BEASTALL

Several questions have been received regarding the use of seaweed in gardens about which there is much conflicting advice.

Jack

Seaweed is an excellent source of humus for improving the soil, containing small quantities of plant food, and many trace elements that are beneficial to plants.

The main difficulty as far as the home gardener is concerned is to obtain a sufficient quantity from an easily accessible place.

Kelp is the chief weed found on our beaches, especially in fall when the first of the storms wash it ashore in large quatities, but other species can be used in the garden to advantage.

Any amount one can obtain is worth having, and gardeners living near a beach where it could be obtained by the trailer load would be well advised to spend some time during the winter gathering a supply.

It can be stacked in a heap until the salts have been leached, or it can be composted with fresh manure and discarded vegetation to obtain greater value.

Stacked by itself it will take 6 to 12 months to reach a usable condition. Mixed with fresh manure it should be ready in two or three months, or with vegetable matter only in about six months.

Seaweed humus is good for peas, beans, celery, leeks, and as top dressing for asparagus beds. The only crop that seems to dislike seaweed is potatoes.

WATER DEATHS UP

The Canadian Red Cross says drownings in 1966 increased by 14 per cent to 1,265, with almost 28 per cent of them the result of boating mishaps.

U.S. CASUALTIES TOP 100,000 MARK IN WAR

SAIGON (AP)—The United States command disclosed today for the first time its official total of United States combat casualties — 101,025 — since the beginning of major American involvement in Vietnam nearly seven years ago.

A high-ranking spokesman said that as of the end of last week 13,634 American troops had been killed in action since January 1, 1961; 86,635 wounded; 545 missing, and 211 captured or interned.

Invasion Hinted, Senator Insists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Vance Hartke D-Ind., said today that the possibility of invading North Vietnam is being "seriously considered" by the Johnson administration.

"President Johnson is under increasing prssure to do that," Hartke said.

Hartke's statement came amid growing reports that an invasion of North Vietnam had been proposed by some military leaders to relieve marines from a murderous artillery attack from Communist guns in the area of the truce zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Hartke said the pattern of past intensification of the U.S. war effort was being followed by the adminsitration — "a contrived leak, a trial balloon, a carefully worded Pentagon denial."

Hartke claimed Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador to South Vietnam, sent up the trial balloon in Pittsburh where he was reported as advocating an invasion. Lodge denied making such a statement.

CAREFULLY WORDED

The "Carefully worded Pentagon denial" that an invasion has not been recommended by the joint chiefs of staff is the next step in the process, Hartke said. He said this would be "the common denia. before the actual implementation."

"It doesn't mean high officials aren't considering invasion," Hartke said.

'I'll Stay' —Soviet Scientist

Seeks Academic Freedom Here

By RON MacDONALD

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. Boris Dotsenko, a ranking Soviet nuclear scientist, said Thursday night he has applied to remain permanently in Canada because in this country he can find academic freedom.

Dr. Dotsenko, 41, is a former chief nuclear scientist at the Ukrainian Academy of Science in Kiev. He came to the University of Alberta a year ago on a research grant, having been granted 10 months' leave from his latest appointment as head of the nuclear laboratory at Kiev State University in the U.S.S.R.

Dr. Dotsenko said in an interview that since he applied to the Canadian immigration department for permanent resident status, he has been visited by two representatives of the Soviet embassy at Ottawa.

"They tried hard to persuade me to go back. They said I would be safe in the Soviet Union. . . .

"I told them I was staying here. I would not go back to the Soviet Union, that's for sure."

GRANT EXTENSION

Dr. Dotsenko said he applied to the Canadian immigration department two months ago and was granted a one-year extension of his stay in Canada. Immigration authorities told him they would consider his application for permanent residence here at the end of the one-year period.

Dr. Dotsenko came to Edmonton under an exchange agreement between the University of Alberta and Kiev University.

Interviewed by telephone at the home of Dr. J. T. Sample, head of the University of Alberta physics department, he said his reasons for wishing to remain in Canada are both professional and political.

The professional reasons are the major ones, Dr. Dotsenko added.

"The main point is that I am a scientist and in the conditions here in Canada I can work far more effectively.

"There is a far more. . . . Well, I am not afraid to use the word— there is a far more 'democratic' approach here."

Dr. Dotsenko described his field as abstract nuclear theory. In the Soviet Union, he said, he found too much emphasis on nuclear research that would have some immediate practical effect.

LIMITED IN RESEARCH

The result was that there was too little opportunity to engage in abstract research—research conducted largely for the purpose of expanding the body of knowledge in the field, regardless of "practical" results.

"I am only human, and I could be wrong, but I think it is not a proper way to go about scientific research."

Dr. Dotsenko said too much control was exercised on Soviet scientists by other authorities. Lines of endeavor could be dictated and the search for scientific "truth" was often hindered by cosiderations of how a piece of research might affect, for example by contradicting, the work of other researchers.

Castellani Guilty Of Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rene Castellani, 42-year-old former radio station promotions man, today was found guilty of the arsenic poisoning of his wife. He had been charged with capital murder.

He was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 23.

A jury of nine men and three women deliberated for more than nine hours Thursday night and today before returning the verdict in British Columbia Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Victor Dryer.

It was the second time such a verdict has been reached. Castellani was convicted at an earlier trial but was granted a new trial by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Esther Castellani, then 40, died in Vancouver General Hospital on July 11, 1965, two months after being admitted for tests. She had been suffering from a mysterious illness for several months.

An autopsy said she died of heart failure brought on by an acute infection. Her body was later exhumed on order of the Vancouver coroner, on a suspicion of arsenic poisoning.

FOOD CHEAPER

Consumer Index Down Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Lower food prices at the beginning of September pushed the consumer price index down one-fifth of a point to 150.7 from 150.9 in August, the Dominion Bureau of tSatistics reported today.

Lower pharmaceutical prices, following removal of the federal sales tax, also contributed to the slight drop in the index, which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

All other components of the index rose except tobacco and alcohol which remained unchanged. Biggest increase was in clothing.

At 150.7, the all-items index for September was 5.6 points above the index for September last year. This represents price increases of almost four per cent in the year.

Economists say that ideally, prices should not increase more than two per cent a year.

PRICES LOWER

The food price index fell to 148.5 from 151.2, largely as a result of seasonally lower prices for most fresh vegetables and some fresh fruits. There were also lower prices for poultry, wieners, lamb, sugar and infants' foods.

The housing component of the all-items index rose to 152.6 from 152.2 because of generally higher rents and home-ownership costs.

In August, the consumer price index rose seven-tenths of a point to 150.9 from 150.2 mainly because of higher food prices. The food index rose to 151.2 from 148.5 in July.

The consumer price index measures changes since 1949 in the prices of a selection of 300 goods and services typical of those bought in 1957 by families of two to six people, living in cities of more than 30,000 population, and with annual incomes which during 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

Prices are surveyed late in the month and applied to the following month. In the case of the new September index, prices were surveyed late in August.

NOW AND THEN

OTTAWA (CP)—September consumer prices index compared with August and a year earlier:

	1967 Sept.	1967 Aug.	1966 Sept.

Recreation 5	168.7	167.9	158.8
Tob., alcoh'l 6	128.6	128.6	126.4

Figures after item groups indicate their relative importance in establishing all-items index.

Explosions From Sewers Rock Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A series of explosions in the sewerage system in east end Toronto today smashed windows and sent employees scurrying for cover. No injuries were reported as the explosions blew several manhole covers into the air, shooting flames and smoke near cars and pedestrians.

Police sealed off traffic in the area while firemen and city works employees hunted for the source of the explosions. Traffic was resumed later.

At least two more explosions occurred after firemen arrived. Officials believed sewer gas was responsible for the explosions centre in the area of Queen and Carlaw streets.

Police imposed a ban on smoking through a 10-square-block area and traffic was rerouted. Gas lines to the area were closed.

Mrs. Gina Apostolopoulos of Toronto said she was leaving her parked car at the time of the explosion.

"There was fire and smoke," she said. "It sounded like a thunderstorm." She and her mother ran to a bank building with her two children.

FAMED WARRIORS BEING DISBANDED

Gurkhas Fall Victim to Cutback

LONDON (AP) — The British Army has begun the sad task of disbanding some of its finest fighting men— the Gurkhas.

The Gurkha brigade is being trimmed to 10,000 or less from 14,500 in line with the British government's policy of gradual withdrawal from east-of-Suez outposts.

The tough little hillmen from Nepal have fought as mercenaries for Britain for 150 years, and they have many admirers.

"No matter what sort of job you give him, the Gurkha seems to come out on top," said one British officer.

Gurkha troops recently earned praise for their coolness when fired on by Chinese troops at Hong Kong.

About 4,000 Gurkhas are helping to keep the Union Jack flying in that colony. Singapore has 2,000 and the remainder are in various parts of Malaysia.

The end of the four-year confrontation between Indonesia and British-backed Malaysia last year speeded the cut of the Gurkha force.

The first group of 300 Gurkhas, recently returned to Nepal, is undergoing a resettlement course to fit them for civilian jobs.

The cut is part of a contraction of Britain's army of 180,000. Defence Secretary Denis Healey says it will be down to 165,000 men by 1970.

Nepal gets a large chunk of its foreign currency from the export of Gurkha soldiers, and the reduction is being spread to prevent too much harm to the Nepali economy.

Gurkha troops fought in both world wars. Twelve won the Victoria Cross, in living up to their motto: "It is better to die than live a coward."

Mines Kill 38

DA NANG, South Vietnam (Reuters) — Viet Cong guerrilla mines, apparently aimed at U.S. marines, blew two buses to pieces near here Thursday killing 38 Vietnamese civilians, an American spokesman said today.

Economy Called 'Shaky'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (CP)—The Common Market's executive commission today published a report recommending the opening of negotiations on applications by Britain, Norway, Denmark and Ireland for membership of the community.

The report, which said Britain's shaky economy will make negotiations difficult, will be formally submitted to the European parliament of the six, who will discuss it at a future session in Strasbourg, West Germany.

British leaders were preparing swift counter-moves against the report's claim about the country's economy and its implication of a devaluation of sterling.

Prime Minister Wilson today authorized Foreign Secretary George Brown to prepare a full answer to the criticism within the next few days when foreign ministers of the seven-nation Western European Union meet in London.

The WEU, formed as a defence group, links Britain with the Common Market countries.

SUBMITTED REPORT

The commission's report has already been submitted to the community's council of ministers which is obliged to ask the opinion and advice of the commission applications for membership.

The commission says that only by opening negotiations with the four applicants can solutions be found to the problems arising from their entry into the European community.

"In any case," it says, "an adaptation of the British economy appears necessary."

Word of Britain's tactic emerged after French President de Gaulle Thursday summoned British Ambassador Sir Patrick Reilly for a surprise talk on Britain's application to join. An account of the exchange in Paris was sent to Wilson and Brown at Scarborough, England.

DE GAULLE HOSTILE

Wilson and his colleagues remain convinced that de Gaulle's hostility is focussed on the belief that Britain would supplant France as the dominant power within the Common Market if her membership were approved.

They still are hoping full-scale negotiations will begin in Brussels by next month and that positive signs will emerge by the end of the year and that the French will not exercise a political veto on Britain's entry.

A Common Market report on Britain's application carried an analysis of her economic position by French commissioner Raymond Barre.

A reference to what Barre said was the "structural disequilibrium" of the economy seemed to carry the implication that sterling would need to be devalued if it were not to become a burden on member-states if Britain joins.

7-YEAR TERM FOR 'POT'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A judge handed down a seven-year prison sentence on a youth convicted of importing marijuana, then said the sentence was too heavy.

Judge Frank Wilson said in county court here Thursday that he had no option but to impose the sentence, which he said was the minimum provided by the law.

Brian Ross Boyer, described in court as a 19-year-old unemployed musician, was charged with importing from the United States 22 pounds of marijuana with an underworld market value of $28,000.

HELP PROMISED

After passing sentence, the judge said he would do what he could through the federal probationary branch to help Boyer, whom he described as not a person with a vicious character but one who had been misled.

Boyer and Dexter Charles Howell, both of West Vancouver, were charged March 15 after customs officers at the U.S. border crossing at nearby Aldergrove, found marijuana under the rear seat of a car in which they were riding.

Howell was found not guilty.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — A modest trade proceeded on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with flax losing early advances and rapeseed recording gains.

One development concerned a report that Britain and the continent recently purchased about 60,000,000 bushels of wheat. It was not specified who sold the grain.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans futures advanced 2½ cents on the Chicago Board of Trade and helped influence higher prices for soybean meal and soybean oil.

Wheat advanced about ½ cent, while corn, oats and rye scored lesser rises.

A fair amont of export buying plus a developing tightness of soybeans in the U.S. contributed to the higher prices, espcially in the nearby contracts. A forecast of more rain and the possibility that this precipitation might further delay soybean harvest also was a factor in the higher prices.

Salaries, Wages Up 9.5 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Paid workers in Canada received an estimated $2,609,000,000 in July in the form of salaries and wages, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The figure was four-fifths of 1 per cent down from June but 9.5 per cent higher than in July last year. A slight drop from June to July is usual because of seasonal factors.

The bureau said cumulative salaries and wages for the first seven months of this year amounted to $17,506,000,000, up 10.1 per cent from the previous year's $15,899,000,000.

Blue Chips Move Higher

Blue chips moved sharply higher at the close of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Activity was light.

Inco paced the group higher, up 3¼ to 119½ after touching a high of 119⅞. The company recently increased the price of its nickel.

Other sharp gains went to CPR, up 2⅝ to 66⅞, Corby's 1⅝ to 31½, Beaver Lumber 1¼ to 35½.

Alberta Gas Trunk slid 1¾ to 32½ and Anthes 1⅜ to 28.

Western oils backed off with Central-Del Rio down ⅜ to 21 and Canadian Superior ¼ to 45. Dome added ⅞ to 60⅜.

Rio Algom was off 1 to 37½ in base metals while Dome Mines moved up ¾ to 45 in golds.

AT NEW YORK the market held near its best level of the session in fairly active trading.

Brokers said there was broad speculative interest in computer stocks. Gains by these issues included IBM 12, Control Data about 4, Burroughs about 3 and Scientific Data about 2.

General Motors and Chrysler advanced about half a point. Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel was up 2½, Canadian Pacific 1½, Granby Mining 1, Walker Gooderham ⅜, Dome Mines and Hudson Bay Mining ¼. Alcan and Massey-Ferguson were down ⅛.

AT MONTREAL prices moved fractionally higher in early afternoon trading as CPR and International Nickel made strong advances.

CPR jumped 1⅜ points to 65⅞, following announcement of the terms of the new Canadian Pacific Investment preferred share offering. One analyst said parts of the offer were disappointing and would ease the selling pressure on CPR common shares.

International Nickel shot up 2⅜ points to a new high for the year of 118⅞. One broker said the stock was following a similar rise on the New York market and recovering from selling pressure that followed a sharp climb last month on news of a hike in nickel prices.

Senior oils were shaded, with Shell Husky and Imperial each off about ½ point.

AT LONDON, another burst of buying activity led to widespread gains on the stock markets.

The advance was sparked off by an optimistic statement from Imperial Chemical Industries, although by mid-day profit-taking had trimmed away rises.

Gilts were still sensitive to higher interest rates and remained fractionally lower in front of today's U.K. treasury bill rate.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Exploration and International Nickel advanced. Cominco and Central-Del Rio both lost.

AT VANCOUVER Bethlehem gained .15 from Thursday's close to reach $6.45 in slow trading on the mining section shortly before noon.

Peso rose .05 to $1.45 and Vanmetals was up .06 to .24. Dynasty dropped .25 to $7.50 and Buttle lost .08 to $1.38. Brenda was of .10 to $7.

In the oils, Bata rose .04 to $1.28 and Royal American put on 1.5 to .98.

Cominco dropped .75 to $28 in the industrials.

Arthur Mayse

On Thursday morning I spent three hours with a Swiss-born British Columbian who has dedicated his life to what may very well be the strangest quest on earth. His name is Rene Dahinden, and he is a Sasquatch-hunter.

If the Sasquatch exists, it is what man might be had his evolutionary climb changed to a descent perhaps 400,000 years ago. For what purports to be an eye-witness description of one, consider this account given by a bus driver who one rainy, blowy night of November, 1963, set out from Vancouver for Chilliwack.

His only passengers were several soldiers. These he let out at Sardis, going off his route to do so. Then he dicided to shortcut by way of Yarrow to the Trans-Canada.

As the headlights swept around a bend, they picked up what the driver took to be a very tall man in a fur coat. He slowed. The figure, now crossing the road, splashed through the puddles with huge feet. Its shoulders were bulky, its arms long and covered with hair.

At a distance of about 50 feet, the creature turned. Its face was like that of some monstrous, very ugly, ape-like man. The driver put his lights on high beam — the creature crouched, and "in one hell of a leap," vanished.

★

The bus driver told his friends. They laughed, and suggested he lay off the cheap booze. For five years, said Rene Dahinden, this man has been trying to convince himself he didn't see what he knows he did see.

I asked the inevitable question: "Have you ever seen a Sasquatch?"

Rene: "No."

Me: "You have been after them for 14 years. Are there or are there not Sasquatches?"

Rene: "How the hell would I know? My reasoning says there are no such things. Then my brain clicks in and says here are the tracks, the same wherever reported. How can I explain it?"

So he persists doggedly at his self-appointed task of sleuthing for a wonder-beast (he is convinced the giant primates are in no sense human) whose existence neither he nor anyone else has been able to demonstrate.

There are no legible photographs, no carcasses despite claims of wounding shots, no hides, hair or teeth, unless three molars dug up in China offer a clue. They armed the jaw of Gigantopithicus, a robust apeman that wandered Asia unimaginable centuries ago.

However, there are those tracks with which we will deal later, and the more than 300 reports of alleged Sasquatch sightings that cram Rene's files.

★

Rene Dahinden came to Canada in 1953. In Calgary one night, he listened to a typical Sasquatch account — the sort that end with "Can't possibly be true," but — and when he crossed to B.C. the next year, other such tales drifted to his ears.

"I began to dig around," says he, "and next thing I knew, I was in it up to my neck."

He worked at various jobs, all within reach of mountain country. Finally his search brought him to Harrison Lake, where 'Sasquatch' is a familar word.

Most speak it with a smile; it has been a publicity-getter for Harrison these many years. But there are those who don't smile, among them Chehallis Indians who have their own dark lore of hairy giants that come down from the hills.

Rene has searched in those mountains, working the areas near and above timberline which are reputed to be the summer range of a Sasquatch band. He has found nothing, nor has the forbidding Upper Pitt River wilderness yielded him a sign.

"The great difficulty," he told me, "is that the approach has always been emotional. I want to see it tackled without emotion by men equipped and qualified to dig out the truth."

Tomorrow, Rene tells about the man who wouldn't shoot, and the incredible tracks on the road 'Mr. Bigfoot' treads with his kin by night.

Offshore Drilling Rig Hits Gas Off Long Beach

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Shell Canada has admitted the offshore rig SEDCO 135-F encountered gas pockets in its drilling program west of Long Beach about three weeks ago.

The company is non-committal, but observers take the find as an encouraging sign that drilling — now deep into the second well of a two-to-five year program — is in formations of host rock nature.

A Shell spokesman at exploration and development headquarters in Calgary said there was "certainly an incident when some mud was blown out of the hole" during drilling in Shell Anglo Pluto.

●

"To drilling crews this was a routine thing," the spokesman said, but to inexperienced support crews it may have seemed more significant and this may account for rumors that have been circulating in the industry in recent weeks.

Rumors were bolstered by an item appearing in the Sept. 18 Oilweek, an authoritative journal of the oil industry in western Canada.

The magazine said:

"Shell Canada has encountered gas shows at its current offshore test 15 miles west of Vancouver Island, but contrary to rumor, the well did not blow out, a Shell official told Oilweek.

"Gas shows encountered at Shell Anglo Pluto entered the mud, caused some bucking on the rig floor with a little mud being thrown out of the hole.

"Two such gas shows were encountered at the well, in addition to a similar gas show at the earlier completed hole, Shell Prometheus. The Pluto well was last reported drilling below 7,200 feet on Sept. 8.

●

"It's not known whether or not any of the gas shows are considered worth further testing."

The Shell spokesman contacted by the Times said the Oilweek report was "expanded."

He said Shell's vice-president of exploration and development William L. Grossman told reporters in Calgary nothing unusual had happened.

It was perfectly normal for gas pockets to be struck during the course of deep drilling, the Shell official said.

Shell Anglo Pluto was spudded in Aug. 11 and by Sept. 1 had reached 6,535 feet below the sea.

By Monday of this week, Shell said, the hole was down to 11,879 feet and still drilling.

A senior geologist of the provincial department of mines and petroleum resources commented that such gas shows may be insignificant.

●

But on the other hand, he pointed out, Shell is pioneering the discovery of submarine earth formations. Up to now very little has been revealed of this type of geology on the west coast and Shell has the right to keep such information secret.

However, he said, the fact that the drill is apparently still in sedimentary type rock is encouraging them to continue.

Another government geologist agreed that this was a "most encouraging" sign.

"The fact that they are getting such a thick section looks good. I'm feeling pretty happy about it," he said.

Mill Walkout Expected To Be Over by Tuesday

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

A three-day unofficial walkout by 400 workers at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road is expected to be over by Tuesday.

The first talks between the company and the International Woodworkers of America were held this morning. Millworkers were meeting at 2 p.m. in the Union Centre to hear a report from IWA officials.

"The company and union don't appear to be too far apart," said IWA president Murray Drew shortly before the membership meeting at which certain recommendations were to be made.

REQUESTED BY UNION

Mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said "we did discuss problems with union officials." The meeting, he added, was requested by the union.

Saturday and Sunday are normally days off at the mill and Monday is a holiday with Thanksgiving being celebrated.

The day shift at the mill walked out Wednesday norning and other shifts refused to work, complaining of "unbearable working conditions" following a visit by efficiency experts.

Mr. Humphreys, in a statement, called the walkout illegal and "wholly unjustified."

STILL OUT

In an unrelated dispute at Van Isle Moulding and Millwork east of Elk Lake, 35 employees remained off the job for the third day.

The company has been paying industry-union wages and increases but did not sign the 1966 coast contract. The Van Isle plant in Langford was not affected.

A meeting between IWA officials and Van Isle president Peter Brotherston was expected to be held this afternoon.

VIETNAM REPORT will be given in Metropolitan United Church hall at 7 p.m. Saturday by Dr. Henry Mayer, a U.S. physician who recently visited that country. His talk, sponsored by Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, will be preceded by a symbolic "Thanksgiving non-feast" of rice and tea to signify identification with the sufferings of Vietnamese. Voluntary donation is the only cost of admission.

'HORROR OF A LAW'

Bonner Vows to Fight Against Decision on Delinquents' Act

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said he will ask the Supreme Court of Canada to reconsider its decision or else petition the Canadian Parliament to change its Juvenile Delinquents Act.

He said he was highly disturbed that a Supreme Court decision this week rejecting a B.C. government appeal would give youths permanent criminal records for such things as failing to put a reflector on their bicycles.

"This would be an atrocious state of affairs because adults —those over 18—who broke traffic regulations are not saddled with criminal records," he said in an interview.

"We're studying this decision very carefully to seek which of two possible courses we will pursue:

"One, is to ask the Supreme Court for a review of its decision, which is unusual but sometimes granted;

"Or two, to ask for a change in the national law which was set up to protect young people and now has become a horror."

Discussions are under way now with Ontario and Quebec which had supported B.C. on constitutional grounds.

The case arose about three years ago soon after the B.C. government, as an administrative practice, began charging juveniles breaking traffic regulations under appropriate municipal bylaws instead of the federal Juvenile Act.

This was done because conviction on any count, no matter how minor, under the Juvenile Act constituted a crime and was permanently recorded.

WON APPEALS

The defence appealed, and won in subsequent hearings that went all the way through the B.C. Supreme Court, B.C. Appeal Court and finally the Supreme Court of Canada.

Its contention was that the driver should have been charged with speeding under the Juvenile Delinquents Act instead of under the provincial traffic regulation.

The three provinces argued that such a finding would violate the Section 92 of the British North America Act which allowed provinces, and their municipalities, to legislate within their own jurisdictional fields. They said traffic regulations were a matter of provincial purview and not federal criminal law.

"The net result of this Supreme Court decision is that we appear to have no authority as a province to deal with citizens under 18 years of age," Mr. Bonner said, "as well as giving a child of tender years a permanent criminal record for a civil misdemeanor."

Ask The Times

Q. What is the best way to overcome "stomach breathing" or "air swallowing"? S.C.C.

A. The best remedy, says a local doctor, is the old one of holding a cork between the teeth. This prevents the "swallowing" muscles from working. A cigar would serve the same purpose. But if the situation is serious then medical advice should be sought.

Norwegians Greet Prince In Costumes

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Gay Norwegian costumes — a contrast to the grey wet streets outside — greeted Crown Prince Harald of Norway when he entered City Hall this morning.

More than 130 Victoria members of the Sons of Norway, many of them in costume, gathered in the red-carpeted council chamber to welcome the heir to the throne of Norway — a tall, slim young man in the uniform of a Norwegian Army captain.

After being welcomed on the City Hall steps by Mayor Hugh Stephen, the prince met Jack Lysne, president of the Victoria branch, Sons of Norway, and chatted with several former Norwegians.

Mayor Stephen presented the prince with a replica of the city's coat-of-arms and an illustrated book on Vancouver Island. The prince gave him a silver enamelled hand-made bowl and a portrait of himself.

Prince Harald then toured the Silver Threads Centre at 4 Centenial Square, accompanied by Mayor Stephen and Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director.

ADMIRED CRAFTS

He stopped to admire the products of various handicrafts classes and showed particular interest in the basketwork exhibits.

"This is very fine work indeed," he remarked to Mrs. Horne.

Earlier, Prince Harald was received at the Legislative Buildings by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, representing Premier Bennett. He signed the visitors book and examined some of the exhibits in the premier's office, including a Japanese sword and a replica of the B.C. ferry Mv Sydney.

The prince was welcomed at Patricia Bay Airport Thursday evening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mr. Bonner.

Squeeze Ahead On Uvic Campus

Noon Hour Classes Likely Next Year

By DERYK THOMPSON

The University of Victoria is less than a year away from a classroom accommodation crisis.

About 100 classrooms are in almost constant use now.

No new building will be available next year but there will be an estimated 400 more students.

"Noon hour classes seem almost a certainty," said Registrar and Dean R. R. Jeffels.

"To combat the problem we can either start the day earlier, (it now starts at 8:30 a.m.) run classes later in the evening, (some now go to 6 p.m.) or schedule them at noon hours.

"The latter possibility seems to be the most immediate solution," he said.

NO RELIEF SEEN

Funds for building expansion are several years away. This means a snow-balling problem of putting more and more students in the same classroom space.

Uvic enrolment has tripled in the last seven years, increasing 19 per cent this year to top 4,000.

"With our curriculum still evolving rapidly there will also be a substantial number of new courses added to accommodate student interests and to cover different disciplines," Mr. Jeffels said.

The space dilemma has already hit offices with some of the faculty sharing space, said the registrar.

NEW DEPUTY minister of provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce is Robert F. Renwick, now manager of the federal government's trade and commerce office in Vancouver. He has served in Bombay, Tokyo, Chicago and Trinidad. Salary for his new position will be $19,000 a year. He succeeds Thomas Sturgess, who retired in September, 1966.

SOME RESERAVATIONS

Peterson Appraisal 'Fair'

Education Minister Leslie Peterson touched sensitive spots in his speech to 500 B.C. school trustees in Vancouver Thursday.

"But I think basically it was a fair appraisal of the situation," Greater Victoria School Board Chairman Peter Bunn said this morning. (See Page 31.)

A point-by-point review of some of the issues with Mr. Bunn drew these comments:

The minister said schools should be used on a year-round basis with some facilities — libraries, business and industrial machines — available around the clock if the need is there.

"This makes good sense," said Mr. Bunn, "and the Greater Victoria School Board already has policy to make school facilities available to the general public."

The board intends shortly to trying opening school libraries at night on an experimental basis, he said.

Mr. Peterson called "antiquated" the system of having schools idle during the summer months each year and said daily hours, length of the school year and holidays will be the subject of a wide-ranging study soon.

SOME RESISTANCE

Mr. Bunn said he forsaw a certain social resistance initially to schools operating during the summer when people, both teachers and parents, are used to scheduling holidays and other activities such as training courses.

In a move to battle soaring school costs the government will study standardizing all school construction to cut building unit costs. And it will no longer act as borrowing agent for school boards including features in schools beyond the education department's minimum standards.

School construction costs are not the only prices rising, said Mr. Bunn. Everything is.

"I don't think school boards are guilty of wasting the taxpayer's money. Trustees are very conscious of the rise in property taxes for education. We have got to and are watching construction costs."

QUALITY FIRST

The important thing is that a standard school design be of the highest quality.

"Components must be absolutely first rate. Otherwise we'll end up with the chicken houses of the 50s."

The government is considering making school trustees directly responsible for fixing school mill rates.

"This is fair enough. If we're responsible people we shouldn't expect the municipality to do our dirty work for us."

Magistrate Hits City Power Pole

Magistrate J. A. Byers escaped uninjured when his car struck a power pole on Fernwood about 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The accident occurred when Mr. Byers swerved to avoid an amber construction warning light.

Damage to the car totalled $200.

Police said the dim light was responsible for an accident earlier.

FIREMEN, SPCA AGREE

SO DOES SHOCKED RESCUER

Poled Cat Isn't Worth Man's Life

Spokesmen for the fire department and the SPCA said today it is unthinkable to risk a man's life to get a cat down from a telephone pole.

A city man received a 6,900-volt electric shock while removing his cat from the pole in front of his house Thursday.

The fire department and the SPCA had both refused to do the job.

In fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital is Allan Williams, 31, of 433 Kingston. He has burns on his scalp, back, heels and ankles.

He rescued the cat and was removing the aluminum ladder when it touched the live wire. He was thrown to the ground but the circuit kept sending current into him until the fuse was blown.

Mr. Williams and his family moved into their home two days ago. Mrs. Williams said the cat was up the pole all night crying.

"I phoned the fire department and they said they didn't do that any more. When I phoned (the SPCA) I was told they didn't have any facilities for it."

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said it is department policy not to use firefighters to remove cats.

"It is a fact they will come down when they're ready to come down.

"It would be ridiculous to endanger the life of a fireman to get a cat that will come down on its own eventually."

David Beeching, SPCA manager, said cats can stay up a pole or a tree for as long as seven days without coming to harm and normally a cat gets down on its own.

He said the best tactic to follow is to place some food on the ground beneath the animal and stay away from it.

"The cat is up there for security and will come down when it feels safe."

He said that on occasion the SPCA has rescued a cat, given it to its owner who placed it on the ground and the animal has gone right back up the pole.

Mr. Beeching said a man was electrocuted on the mainland about a year ago when he went up a power pole to rescue a cat and "people have no business taking chances around telephone or power poles."

He said the SPCA in some exceptional cases has brought cats down from heights but it is not policy to assist. He said the RSPCA follows the same policy.

Mrs. Williams commented after the incident: "After all this, as far as I'm concerned if a cat gets stuck up a tree it can stay there."

ANY PROXIES?

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Alderman Laura Sabia, a long-time crusader for women's rights, wants women shareholders to send her their voting proxies so she can attend annual meetings of Canadian corporations and demand female representation at the policy-making level.

"Women will never attain equal status in Canada until they make it in the world of finance and taxation," she says.

Mrs. Sabia has already appeared at the annual meeting of Canadian Breweries with her demand for female representation on the board, and says she has since received more than 100 proxies from women who want her to repeat the performance.

While visiting in Victoria Mrs. Fern Payne discusses the goals of the Association for the Modernization of the Canadian Abortion Laws, of which she is vice-president.

DEPLORES HYPOCRISY OF PRESENT LEGISLATION

Woman Works for Reforms in Abortion Laws

By JO DREWRY

The gap between Canadian abortion laws and the number of illegal abortions is a subject that has been swept out from under the carpet and into the House of Commons' committee room.

In the vanguard of those who support the changing of the present abortion laws is Mrs. Fern Payne, vice-president of the Association for the Modernization of Canadian Abortion Laws.

Mrs. Payne, who is staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. Daphne Temple, 1243 Richardson Street, explains the hypocrisy of the existing laws. "Medically, most doctors feel that if the life of the mother is threatened during pregnancy then abortion is justified. However, legally, a doctor has justification for abortion only if there is a difficult delivery. There has never been a test case of this law in Canada."

The association wishes to see a relaxation of the laws that will parallel those recently passed in Colorado. Abortion should be permitted:

1. When the physical or mental health of the mother is endangered.
2. When pregnancy is the result of rape or incest.
3. When there is a high probability of retardation or malformation of an unborn child, or because of serious hereditary disease.

Cases Mrs. Payne cites illustrate the urgency of permitting these revisions. "A little girl aged 12 was raped by her father became pregnant and was sent to the hospital to have the child. The offender was sent to the penitentiary, but the child's entire sense of security was destroyed. Having suffered the initial shock of incestuous rape there was no law which would spare her added suffering."

RISK OF DAMAGE

"A little-known fact that provides medical justification for abortion in such cases is that a girl under the age of 18 is likely to undergo permanent physical damage from pregnancy. In the Bourne case in England a 15-year-old was the victim of rape, and abortion was finally permitted on psychiatric grounds. In this case, however, they found definite evidence that the pelvic bones remain soft until the age of 18 and often, after a pregnancy in her early teens, a girl will be unable to have children."

Some women who belong to the AMCAL believe that the revision of the laws should go further — that a woman should be permitted an abortion whenever, and for what-ever reasons she wishes. But all the members—they're 300 strong and increasing daily — are convinced that these three points must be read into the law.

Mrs. Payne tells of a mother in her Ottawa neighborhood who has joined the AMCAL. She has a mongoloid child who has complications of digestive problems. This woman believes that abortion would have been a solution for her suffering, and that of the child.

"Another mother has a young daughter with an hereditary skin affliction. Her skin is so thin that the slightest bruise or bump will break it, and the child's life is always in peril. If this woman could have had an abortion she would have done so.

CRUCIAL NEED

"In Canada, where there are 625,000 retarded, 200,000 of whom are mongoloid, there is a crucial need to permit abortion to a mother who knows her child will be defective.

"In the United States the Bragg and Steel test has been developed. This test can pick out the extra chromosome for the mongoloid child after 20 weeks of pregnancy. Research is being done to perfect this test so the chromosome will show up at 16 weeks. If this is done, and the abortion laws will change, the tragedy of these births will be averted."

The AMCAL would not want a panel of doctors to judge the necessity of abortion. Mrs. Payne recalls Mrs. Finkbine's plight. "A panel of doctors decided against abortion, because there was not a unanimous decision. We would like to see a woman's attending physician and one other doctor make the decision."

The AMCAL believes that change must be brought about in not only abortion laws, but in the areas of sex education, birth control, and sterilization. It is also studying the most up-to-date methods of abortion techniques, and hopes to eventually be able to advise women who wish such information.

One method of abortion that has attracted the attention of the AMCAL medical advisor, Dr. J. C. Whyte, head of gynecology and obstetrics at Ottawa Civic Hospital, is the 'vacuum method'. This reduces the danger of hemorrhage and is being used effectively in Yugoslavia, Israel and behind the Iron Curtain. There is no surgery involved. "This is a new idea for Canada, but it requires a special instrument, and this is not available here.

"The present method isn't dangerous if it is performed in a hospital, but it rarely is. Detective Sargeant Quesnel, head of the Toronto morality squad estimates that between 300 to 1,000 women in Canada die or have their health seriously impaired by illegal abortions each year. After narcotics and gambling, it is the third best-paying crime in the country."

TO PRESENT BRIEF

The AMCAL hopes to correct this situation. They have completed the second draft of a brief that will be presented to the Commons Committee of Health and Welfare, and findings from this committee will go before the House.

This takes time, though, and meanwhile the organization is recruiting members and planning its first national conference in Ottawa in November. Mrs. Payne hopes that anyone who is interested will write to the AMCAL, 285 Metcalfe Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

"The climate is right for this action," she says. "In 1965 the Canadian Institute for Public Opinion found that 71 per cent of Canadians wanted to see a change in the present abortion law. We know we have the public's support, but we have to hear from these people to be able to act with authority."

Married in the Inn of Her Parents

BRIDE WEARS MINI-DRESS

Rosina Margaret Lane, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lane of the Olde England Inn, wore a mini-dress of hand-embroidered Swiss organza with a matching skull cap for her marriage to Terence Izzard in her parents' hotel. Her mod shoes had large antique glass buckles. She wore a bridal veil of tulle and carried a tiny white basket filled with flowers in purple, mauve and white colors. For 'something borrowed', she had a ruby and opal ring, belonging to her mother, 'something new' was a string of pearls given her by her sister, Miss Dorothy Lane, and 'something blue' was a traditional garter.

Mr. Lane gave his daughter in marriage and Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiated. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Mawby of Mablethorpe, England.

Trailing vines decorated the hall and stairway of the Inn, accented with white bows and bells. Masses of flowers in purple, mauve, gold and white tones completed the decor.

The ceremony took place in front of an altar which was originally used in a French palace. Antique gold Italian candelabra, purple and white candles and a Cambodian carving added to the scene.

The three small flower girls, Janice, Paris and Dallas Wright, wore mini dresses in purple and green Thai silk and dainty skull caps. Each carried a tiny basket of flowers. Michael Cathers was ring bearer, wearing a green Fauntleroy suit, enhanced with lace ruffles. Mini-dresses of the same material were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. Sue Cathers and bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Lane, and Miss Julie Clark.

Michael Williams was best man and ushering guests were the bride's brother, Cyril Lane; Bernie Zorn and Dominique Chapeau.

Cecil Clark proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed.

Purple, mauve and green ribbons accented the head table that held seven white cakes, made and decorated in mod motif. Lily of the valley completed the setting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Owen and Mr. Frank Bernard came from Vancouver for the ceremony. Others from out-of-town were Mrs. G. Richardson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Miller, the Okanagan, and Miss Sandy Smyth, Montreal.

Dressed in a royal blue mod pant suit, black Spanish-styled sombrero and black accessories, the bride set out on a honeymoon trip with her husband which will see them motoring to South America, travelling by boat to England and continental Europe, before setting out on the next leg of an around-the-world tour.

Newlyweds Will Live in Halifax After Wedding Held at Nanaimo

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Nanaimo, when Dianne Elizabeth Baldwin became the bride of David Bertram Pink.

Parents of the principals are Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Baldwin of Nanaimo and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pink of Burk's Falls, Ont. Rev. A. E. Greenhalgh officiated at the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight bridal silk designed by David E. Rea, styled with a scissor-pleated panel sweeping back from the waistline. Guipire lace medallions, re-embroidered with crystals and pearls, bordered the hemline and a Juilet cap of matching medallions held her bouffant chapel-length veil of silk illusion which misted to cathedral-length. As a jewelry accent she wore an heirloom gold necklace and bracelet inset with pearls which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. A. V. Hunt, Victoria. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Standards of white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the church. The organist, Mrs. A. Lawson, played Elgar's "Salut d'Amour," Rubenstein's "Romance," "Bridal March" by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" during the service.

Miss Diane Senior, Vancouver; Miss Cynthia Baldwin, the bride's sister, Miss Marion Kirkbride and Miss Sharon Morrison, Port Alberni, were the bride's attendants. They wore matching gowns of emerald green shantung styled on empire lines featuring Guipure lace panels, and Miss Baldwin's dress was styled with sleeves of Guipure tipping the elbow. They wore self-fabric headpieces en tone and carried pendant bouquets of pale yellow glamelias.

Little Pamela Galt was the flower girl for her cousin, gowned in ivory shantung with flower appliques starring the neckline and complemented by a matching head-piece studded with pearls. She carried a posy of white roses and stephanotis.

David Winkler, Vancouver, was best man and Bob Baldwin, brother of the bride, Jack Forsyth, Robert White, Vancouver and Russell Curtis, Victoria ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Tally-Ho Travelodge a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by arrangements of white roses and leather fern, centred the head table. White chrysanthemums, white roses with salal and ferns decorated the room. Dr. J. R. Howey was master of ceremonies and Dr. C. C. Browne, proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Hawaii the new Mrs. Pink chose a glade green Swedish suit which she accented with bright blue accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home in Halifax; N.S.

Heels Make News

MONTREAL (CP) — The attention of Montreal fashion enthusiasts is focussed on new heel shapes and sizes this week, as the spring collection of Canadian shoe fashions are exhibited at the Canadian Shoe and Leather Fair.

While the square and broad toe became the rage in footwear fashion last year, this year's interest is centred on heels, especially of the one, two and 2½-inch-high variety.

Toes are still broad, although there is a tendency toward a somewhat rounded effect rather than the blunt square cut.

A wide array of bows, straps and buckles reflecting the hardware influence all decorate the spring fashion forecast.

MALE ORDERS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Gainesville man has written Gov. Lester Maddox's new Citizens' Watchdog Committee with this request: "Find me a wife."

He said he was divorced and could not find a suitable woman for his children. The committee, appointed by the governor to keep an eye on state government at the grass roots level, did not reveal his name.

FIRST RACE — Cocoa Silk sheds 11 pounds here and should escape a mud bath early. But he tends to back up even when he gets clear. Rondocal shouldn't be too far back and with a race over the track could be hard to hold. Souzem has been outlucked twice. They're switching riders on him; much depends on whether Salas can get good position early. Whip N' Blinkers and Magic Shan arent' entirely out of it . . . RONDOCAL, Souzem, Magic Shan.

SECOND RACE—Royal Envy, Royal Spender, Ann's Treasure and Conibhai should lead them away but aside from Royal Spender the others haven't been sticking with it. Western Chief's last was inexplicably bad; most Tall Chief's like the off going. Stopem is hard to figure; with his best he has a shot. Gilt Star may be one to fear. Frazier took him slightly off the pace last time and he was moving in at the finish. Ellabhai couldn't cut it with much better but might be able to catch part of the pot. . . . GILT STAR, Royal Spender, Ann's Treasure.

THIRD RACE — Society Mil has travelled with better and should like the track. The post and rider help. Sunday Session keeps stepping up but is very sharp and goes well for Harris. Hay Billy keeps moving up and winning but he would need his very best here. Judo Holt and Top Canadian have early lick but they have to run on the outside of Sunday Session and you empty the fuel tank doing that. Speed Command may have needed his last. If the speed falters he could be a menace late. Joey Lark was a rousing third and gets all the best of weights. In a frantic finish. . . SOCIETY MIL, Speedy Session, Hay Billy.

FOURTH RACE — Hola Fire drops five and may try to open up on these. He meets more pace here but mud is his racket. Avons Boss is going well enough to get a piece or perhaps all of it. Dark Bug once was considered a superior mud mare but the old punch doesn't seem to be there. Alice Kaput belongs but the outside presents problems for her style. Easy Ella mingles with these and rather well at times. Pidges Pride comes off a win, likes the track and has a good shot. If the boy can keep Gallant Orphan from getting too far out of it early, the others could be in trouble in the stretch. . . . GALLANT ORPHAN, Hola Fire, Avons Boss.

FIFTH RACE — The class of the party is probably Same Affair. He doesn't seem at his peak and he might need to be to handle these. Bucs Brother is often in the money but the spot isn't soft. Commander Joe is a distinct danger if they let him set his own pace. The track suits him. Rough Road isn't running two alike but he's capable. Tamanaco probably needed his last and may improve. Waraway grinds them down late, seems capable in the going . . . SAME AFFAIR, Commander Joe, Waraway.

SIXTH RACE—Unless he falls down coming out of the gate Never Charge should sizzle away from these early. He gets the staggers, however, and it's hard to see him sticking it. With his style he makes it rough for Easel's Pride, Betty's Pride and anything else that likes to run on the front end. Early lick can never be overlooked but we think the winner will come out of the pack. Rotated is a tough little sonofagun and if he doesn't give the rider trouble could be a factor. But essentially it seems to boil down to Uncle Roddy and In Solid. They'll need luck to find the holes and the moves will have to be well-timed. In Solid couldn't collar Uncle Roddy on a slow track Sept. 2 and might not be able to do it here . . . UNCLE RODDY, In Solid, Rotated.

SEVENTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who goes for the lead. Most of these like to come from out of it; a front-runner could put up quite an argument if the pace is slow. Chief Malarkey might try for it and while he didn't beat this kind he was impressive. Oratress needed that last and should be tighter. Glencar is improving rapidly and War Treasure runs with the big boys and well. Golden Wine has done almost everything asked and you have to go back a long way to find a poor race. Still it's asking a lot of a filly to spank colts and Handsome Chief and Big Cheese are good colts. The former won in hand and perhaps is better than he looked. Weight is the only question mark about Big Cheese. If he can lug 125 pounds it may be all over . . . BIG CHEESE, Handsome Chief, Golden Wine.

EIGHTH RACE — Sun Lodge and Fair Spin will probably claw for the lead; neither has shown excessive courage lately. Regal Star adds 10 lbs. and switches to Salas; his late run may get the job done. Dark Doll is honest and closes resolutely; the boy suits. Whiskers has a look . . . DARK DOLL, Regal Star, Whiskers.

'I'll Stay' —Soviet Scientist

Seeks Academic Freedom Here

By RON MacDONALD

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. Boris Dotsenko, a ranking Soviet nuclear scientist, said Thursday night he has applied to remain permanently in Canada because in this country he can find academic freedom.

Dr. Dotsenko, 41, is a former chief nuclear scientist at the Ukrainian Academy of Science in Kiev. He came to the University of Alberta a year ago on a research grant, having been granted 10 months' leave from his latest appointment as head of the nuclear laboratory at Kiev State University in the U.S.S.R.

Dr. Dotsenko said in an interview that since he applied to the Canadian immigration department for permanent resident status, he has been visited by two representatives of the Soviet embassy at Ottawa.

"They tried hard to persuade me to go back. They said I would be safe in the Soviet Union. . .

"I told them I was staying here. I would not go back to the Soviet Union, that's for sure."

GRANT EXTENSION

Dr. Dotsenko said he applied to the Canadian immigration department two months ago and was granted a one-year extension of his stay in Canada. Immigration authorities told him they would consider his application for permanent residence here at the end of the one-year period.

Dr. Dotsenko came to Edmonton under an exchange agreement between the University of Alberta and Kiev University.

Interviewed by telephone at the home of Dr. J. T. Sample, head of the University of Alberta physics department, he said his reasons for wishing to remain in Canada are both professional and political.

The professional reasons are the major ones, Dr. Dotsenko added.

"The main point is that I am a scientist and in the conditions here in Canada I can work far more effectively.

"There is a far more. . . . Well, I am not afraid to use the word— there is a far more 'democratic' approach here."

Dr. Dotsenko described his field as abstract nuclear theory. In the Soviet Union, he said, he found too much emphasis on nuclear research that would have some immediate practical effect.

LIMITED IN RESEARCH

The result was that there was too little opportunity to engage in abstract research—research conducted largely for the purpose of expanding the body of knowledge in the field, regardless of "practical" results.

"I am only human, and I could be wrong, but I think it is not a proper way to go about scientific research."

"Here you can do research as you wish. You are more free in choosing your way."

Dr. Dotsenko said the work of Albert Einstein is a good example of how abstract research, though it may have few immediate practical benefits, can in the long run produce major practical breakthroughs.

"As a famous scientist, Niels Bohr, once said, you need to have some 'crazy ideas' sometimes. These are not appreciated in the Soviet Union. They don't care much about pure theory."

Niels Bohr, a major figure in 20th-century physics, won the 1922 Nobel Prize in physics for research into the structure of the atom.

CITES CONTROL

Dr. Dotsenko said too much control was exercised on Soviet scientists by other authorities. Lines of endeavor could be dictated and the search for scientific "truth" was often hindered by cosiderations of how a piece of research might affect, for example by contradicting, the work of other researchers.

In contrast, "the scientific environment here is very profitable to me."

ECONOMY CALLED 'SHAKY'

Report Rocks U.K. Bid For Admission to ECM

BRUSSELS, Belgium (CP)—The Common Market's executive commission today published a report recommending the opening of negotiations on applications by Britain, Norway, Denmark and Ireland for membership of the community.

The report, which said Britain's shaky economy will make negotiations difficult, will be formally submitted to the European parliament of the six, who will discuss it at a future session in Strasbourg, West Germany.

British leaders were preparing swift counter-moves against the report's claim about the country's economy and its implication of a devaluation of sterling.

Prime Minister Wilson today authorized Foreign Secretary George Brown to prepare a full answer to the criticism within the next few days when foreign ministers of the seven-nation Western European Union meet in London.

The WEU, formed as a defence group, links Britain with the Common Market countries.

SUBMITTED REPORT

The commission's report has already been submitted to the community's council of ministers which is obliged to ask the opinion and advice of the commission applications for membership.

The commission says that only by opening negotiations with the four applicants can solutions be found to the problems arising from their entry into the European community.

"In any case," it says, "an adaptation of the British economy appears necessary."

Word of Britain's tactic emerged after French President de Gaulle Thursday summoned British Ambassador Sir Patrick Reilly for a surprise talk on Britain's application to join. An account of the exchange in Paris was sent to Wilson and Brown at Scarborough, England.

DE GAULLE HOSTILE

Wilson and his colleagues remain convinced that de Gaulle's hostility is focussed on the belief that Britain would supplant France as the dominant power within the Common Market if her membership were approved.

They still are hoping full-scale negotiations will begin in Brussels by next month and that positive signs will emerge by the end of the year and that the French will not exercise a political veto on Britain's entry.

A Common Market report on Britain's application carried an analysis of her economic position by French commissioner Raymond Barre.

A reference to what Barre said was the "structural disequilibrium" of the economy seemed to carry the implication that sterling would need to be devalued if it were not to become a burden on member-states if Britain joins.

Coquahalla Wins Easily In First Race

Coquahalla, with Basil Frazier aboard, won the opening race at Sandown this afternoon before a good crowd—despite the light rain.

Picking up the leaders on the back stretch, Coquahalla drove to the front on the turn and won by five lengths. Centennial Su and Sherri's Star both came from far behind to place second and third respectively.

Coquahalla paid $9.60, $4.70 and $3.70; Centennial Su paid $10.40 and $9.60, and Sherri's Star, $5.70.

The one-to paid $99.50.

Time for the six and one-half furlongs was 1:23.2.

U.S. CASUALTIES TOP 100,000 MARK IN WAR

SAIGON (AP)—The United States command disclosed today for the first time its official total of United States combat casualties — 101,025 — since the beginning of major American involvement in Vietnam nearly seven years ago.

A high-ranking spokesman said that as of the end of last week 13,634 American troops had been killed in action since January 1, 1961; 86,635 wounded; 545 missing, and 211 captured or interned.

Seems sellin' t' th' Common Market is tough when you're tryin' t' sell a whole country.

Took Nine Hours To Reach Verdict

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rene Castellani, 42-year-old former radio station promotions man, today was found guilty of the arsenic poisoning of his wife. He had been charged with capital murder.

He was sentenced to be hanged January 23.

A jury of nine men and three women deliberated for more than nine hours Thursday night and today before returning the verdict in British Columbia Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Victor Dryer.

It was the second time such a verdict has been reached. Castellani was convicted at an earlier trial but was granted a new trial by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Esther Castellani, then 40, died in Vancouver General Hospital on July 11, 1965, two months after being admitted for tests. She had been suffering from a mysterious illness for several months.

An autopsy said she died of heart failure brought on by an acute infection. Her body was later exhumed on order of the Vancouver coroner, on a suspicion of arsenic poisoning.

Tests then showed that parts of her body contained up to 1,500 times the normal human tolerance. Castellani was arrested and charged.

Evidence was that Mrs. Castellani must have been ingesting arsenic for at least six months, possibly as long as 13 months.

SPOKE THREE HOURS

Mr. Justice Dryer, who addressed the jury for three hours, twice mentioned the possibility that Mrs. Castallani may have taken arsenic herself, or had someone give it to her.

Castallani, a former employee of radio station DKNW in New Westminster, admitted having a sexual affair with Lolly Miller, another SKNW employee, prior to his wife's death.

The Crown alleged that the affair with Mrs. Miller provided the motive for the murder of Mrs. Castallani.

Defence lawyer Charles Maclean told the jury

"If we're going to hang men for adultery, there aren't enough lamp posts in Vancouver to accommodate them."

7-YEAR TERM FOR 'POT'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A judge handed down a seven-year prison sentence on a youth convicted of importing marijuana, then said the sentence was too heavy.

Judge Frank Wilson said in county court here Thursday that he had no option but to impose the sentence, which he said was the minimum provided by the law.

Brian Ross Boyer, described in court as a 19-year-old unemployed musician, was charged with importing from the United States 22 pounds of marijuana with an underworld market value of $28,000.

HELP PROMISED

After passing sentence, the judge said he would do what he could through the federal probationary branch to help Boyer, whom he described as not a person with a vicious character but one who had been misled.

Boyer and Dexter Charles Howell, both of West Vancouver, were charged March 15 after customs officers at the U.S. border crossing at nearby Aldergrove, found marijuana under the rear seat of a car in which they were riding.

Howell was found not guilty.

At his trial Boyer testified he knew nothing about the marijuana and that he had borrowed the car from a Vancouver man to go for a ride. He said he and Howell crossed into Washington State, then returned.

Boyer said he never examined the back seat of the car and did not know who placed the marijuana under the rear seat.

BULLETINS

District Man Vice-President

VANCOUVER (CP)—Frank Beinder, of Rossland, today was re-elected president of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association at its annual convention.

James Campbell, of Saturna Island, was re-elected vice-president. He was defeated in a bid for the presidency.

Closure Hit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Air Canada's decision to close its Winnipeg overhaul base by the end of 1970 appears to be a "clear breach of faith" by the federal government, Premier Duff Roblin said today.

Campney Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ralph Osborne Campney, 73, former Liberal defence minister in the St. Laurent government, died here today.

Mr. Campney had returned to his law firm of Campney, Owen & Campney after he lost his Vancouver Centre seat to the Conservatives in the 1957 federal election.

Secrecy Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Secrecy by government sources and the brewing industry prevented doctors from using an antidote against toxic cobalt additives in beer which killed 20 beer-drinkers in Quebec in 1965-66, two Quebec doctors charged today.

Dr. Yves Morin and Dr. Philippe Daniel, reporting in today's issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, said it was "impossible to obtain from government sources or from the industry the cobalt content of locally brewed beers in North America."

FOOD CHEAPER

Consumer Index Down Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Lower food prices at the beginning of September pushed the consumer price index down one-fifth of a point to 150.7 from 150.9 in August, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Lower pharmaceutical prices, following removal of the federal sales tax, also contributed to the slight drop in the index, which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

All other components of the index rose except tobacco and alcohol which remained unchanged. Biggest increase was in clothing.

At 150.7, the all-items index for September was 5.6 points above the index for September last year. This represents price increases of almost four per cent in the year.

Economists say that ideally, prices should not increase more than two per cent a year.

PRICES LOWER

The food price index fell to 148.5 from 151.2, largely as a result of seasonally lower prices for most fresh vegetables and some fresh fruits. There were also lower prices for poultry, wieners, lamb, sugar and infants' foods.

The housing component of the all-items index rose to 152.6 from 152.2 because of generally higher rents and home-ownership costs.

In August, the consumer price index rose seven-tenths of a point to 150.9 from 150.2 mainly because of higher food prices. The food index rose to 151.2 from 148.5 in July.

The consumer price index measures changes since 1949 in the prices of a selection of 300 goods and services typical of those bought in 1957 by families of two to six people, living in cities of more than 30,000 population, and with annual incomes which during 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

Prices are surveyed late in the month and applied to the following month. In the case of the new September index, prices were surveyed late in August.

NOW AND THEN

OTTAWA (CP)—September consumer prices index compared with August and a year earlier:

	1967 Sept.	1967 Aug.	1966 Sept.
All items	150.7	150.9	145.1
Food 27	148.5	151.2	147.1
Housing 32	152.6	152.2	145.4
Clothing 11	134.7	132.3	127.0
Tr'sport'n 12	158.4	158.0	151.2
Health 7	191.4	191.9	181.3
Recreation 5	168.7	167.9	158.8
Tob., alcoh'l 6	128.6	128.6	126.4

Figures after item groups indicate their relative importance in establishing all-items index.

FAMED WARRIORS BEING DISBANDED

Gurkhas Victim of Cutback

LONDON (AP) — The British Army has begun the sad task of disbanding some of its finest fighting men— the Gurkhas.

The Gurkha brigade is being trimmed to 10,000 or less from 14,500 in line with the British government's policy of gradual withdrawal from east-of-Suez outposts.

The tough little hillmen from Nepal have fought as mercenaries for Britain for 150 years, and they have many admirers.

"No matter what sort of job you give him, the Gurkha seems to come out on top," said one British officer.

Gurkha troops recently earned praise for their coolness when fired on by Chinese troops at Hong Kong.

About 4,000 Gurkhas are helping to keep the Union Jack flying in that colony. Singapore has 2,000 and the remainder are in various parts of Malaysia.

The end of the four-year confrontation between Indonesia and British-backed Malaysia last year speeded the cut of the Gurkha force.

The first group of 300 Gurkhas, recently returned to Nepal, is undergoing a resettlement course to fit them for civilian jobs.

The cut is part of a contraction of Britain's army of 180,000. Defence Secretary Denis Healey says it will be down to 165,000 men by 1970.

Nepal gets a large chunk of its foreign currency from the export of Gurkha soldiers, and the reduction is being spread to prevent too much harm to the Nepali economy.

Gurkha troops fought in both world wars. Twelve won the Victoria Cross, in living up to their motto: "It is better to die than live a coward."

Rector Quits On Request

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. G. Moore Smith, rector of St. Matthias' Anglican Church, and his assistant, Rev. Douglas Tisdall, resigned Thursday in the wake of an inquest into the death of 18-year-old Katherine Globe.

Rt. Rev. G. B. Snell, Anglican Bishop of Toronto, said he asked Canon Smith for his resignation Thursday, one day after the jury ruled the minister and his wife negligent in the death of the girl.

Katherine died June 21 in the church rectory of a brain abscess and meningitis.

The inquest jury heard that a faith healing group at the church had tried to cure the girl with prayer and exorcism rites.

Mr. Tisdall resigned "as a measure of protest" over the way the bishop had treated the matter. He said he was proud of his association with Canon Smith.

Grits Won't Contest Stanfield Election

MILFORD, N.S. (CP)— The Colchester-Hants Liberal Association has decided not to contest a Nov. 6 federal by-election in which Robert L. Stanfield, leader of the Progressive Conservative party will seek election to the House of Commons.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

It will be mostly cloudy throughout the province today. Showers, which will be general in all but Southern Interior regions are expected to become less frequent on the south coast later today. However, unsettled weather will continue. A disturbance from the southwest will bring rain to the outer coast Saturday morning. The rain will spread to the Lower Mainland Saturday afternoon. Cold Arctic air and snowflurries over Northern British Columbia probably will remain north of Prince George.

'Death' of Hippie' Proclaimed on High

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Elders of San Francisco's hippie community gathered today atop Buena Vista Hill to proclaim "the death of the hippie" with pomp and dramatics.

As dawn brightened the splendid view, they ceremoniously complained that their famed Haight-Ashbury district has gone wrong.

Then they moved down Haight Street, cleaning up trash, common since the summer invasion of tourists and thrill-seekers. Outside of some hippie shops, closed for the three-day funeral observance, sidewalks were scrubbed with flourishes. Skull emblems were placed on windows.

Later, a solemn funeral procession was scheduled to circle the district symbolically purging it of evil. Hippies were asked to drop things meaningful to them, such as their beads, in a huge coffin.

NEW IMAGE

As the "day of death" plan was developed in lengthy meetings of Haight-Ashbury patriarchs, the observance was turned into more of a death of labels event than anything else.

"We need a new image," they said.

The hippies want to kill their world-known name. From death comes rebirth, they said.

They now wish to be known as "free men."

Daniel Rifkin, manager of The Grateful Dead band, important in popularizing San Francisco rock music, complained that the hippie label was manufactured by mass media. He said the name was a way to lump all kinds of unconventional people "in the same bag" with drug-crazed and other nasty connotations.

Further, the name is attracting too many phony hippies, said Arthur Lisch, a prime mover in the Diggers, who scrounged for food which they served free daily in Golden Gate Park.

MANY LEAVING

"Many of the creative people are leaving," he said. "At this point, the Haight-Ashbury is a box." He estimated that San Francisco hippies are now operating about 20 different communes, each with more than a dozen in California.

MAO SNUB SPARKS DOCK BRAWL

TILBURY, England (AP) — Angry British dockworkers refused to work a Communist Chinese freighter today following a battle with Chinese crew members.

Police broke up a mob of 60 longshoremen and Chinese who grappled on the River Thames dockside Thursday after a docker hurled a picture of Mao Tse-tung to the ground when it was pinned on him by a crew member.

Some dockers were bruised as they traded blows, using lengths of timber, with the Chinese.

A gang was detailed to start unloading 500 tons of general cargo from the Hang Zhou today and loaded up 1,100 tons to get the ship on its way.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — A modest trade proceeded on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with flax losing early advances and rapeseed recording gains.

One development concerned a report that Britain and the continent recently purchased about 60,000,000 bushels of wheat. It was not specified who sold the grain.

Rye prices were higher due partly to firmer prices in Chicago.

Mideast Row Helps Alberta Oilfields

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Thursday credited the tense Middle East situation with increased shipments from Alberta oilfields to the United States.

In September, the system carried 311,563 barrels a day, of which 214,000 barrels went to refineries in Washington State. The total to Canadian and Washington refineries in September 1966, was 247,326 barrels daily.

"How quickly things return to normal will depend on a number of things, the main one being a realignment of the world tanker fleet," Mr. Hurd said.

"The Suez Canal isn't open yet, though possibly it will be before the end of the year. Embargos have also disrupted the normal patterns as well."

The company estimates daily volume will drop to 282,000 barrels this month, though this would mean an increase of 35,000 barrels daily over the same month last year.

Salaries, Wages Up 9.5 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Paid workers in Canada received an estimated $2,609,000,000 in July in the form of salaries and wages, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The figure was four-fifths of 1 per cent down from June but 9.5 per cent higher than in July last year. A slight drop from June to July is usual because of seasonal factors.

The bureau said cumulative salaries and wages for the first seven months of this year amounted to $17,506,000,000, up 10.1 per cent from the previous year's $15,899,000,000.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Blue Chips Move Higher

Blue chips moved sharply higher at the close of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Activity was light.

Inco paced the group higher, up 3⅛ to 119⅞ after touching a high of 119⅞. The company recently increased the price of its nickel.

Other sharp gains went to CPR, up 1¾ to 66, Corby's to 32, Beaver Lumber 2¼ to 32.

Alberta Gas Trunk slid 2¼ to 32½ and Anthes ¼ to 28⅛.

Western oils backed off with Central-Del Rio down ¼ to 21⅛ and Canadian Superior ¼ to 45. Dome added ⅞ to 60⅜.

Rio Algom was off 1 to 37½ in base metals while Dome Mines moved up ¾ to 45 in golds.

AT NEW YORK the market held near its best level of the session in fairly active trading.

Brokers said there was broad speculative interest in computer stocks. Gains by these issues included IBM 12, Control Data about 4, Burroughs about 3 and Scientific Data about 2.

General Motors and Chrysler advanced about half a point. Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel was up 2½, Canadian Pacific 1½, Granby Mining 1, Walker Gooderham ⅜, Dome Mines and Hudson Bay Mining ¼. Alcan and Massey-Ferguson were down ⅛.

AT MONTREAL prices moved fractionally higher in early afternoon trading as CPR and International Nickel made strong advances.

CPR jumped 1⅜ points to 65⅞, following announcement of the terms of the new Canadian Pacific Investment preferred share offering. One analyst said parts of the offer were disappointing and would ease the selling pressure on CPR common shares.

International Nickel shot up 2⅜ points to a new high for the year of 118⅞. One broker said the stock was following a similar rise on the New York market and recovering from selling pressure that followed a sharp climb last month on news of a hike in nickel prices.

Senior oils were shaded, with Shell Husky and Imperial each off about ½ point.

AT LONDON, another burst of buying activity led to widespread gains on the stock markets.

The advance was sparked off by an optimistic statement from Imperial Chemical Industries, although by mid-day profit-taking had trimmed away rises.

Gilts were still sensitive to higher interest rates and remained fractionally lower in front of today's U.K. treasury bill rate.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Exploration and International Nickel advanced. Cominco and Central-Del Rio both lost.

AT VANCOUVER Bethlehem gained .15 from Thursday's close to reach $6.45 in slow trading on the mining section shortly before noon.

Peso rose .05 to $1.45 and Vanmetals was up .06 to .24. Dynasty dropped .25 to $7.50 and Buttle lost .08 to $1.38. Brenda was of .10 to $7.

In the oils, Bata rose .04 to $1.28 and Royal American put on 1.5 to .98.

Cominco dropped .75 to $28 in the industrials.

I A C is the leading Canadian finance company; its superior internal practices and quality of business enabled it to survive the industry crisis following mid-1965 and even to increase its shareholders' earnings since that time.

With the shares of other finance companies, I A C's shares have been out of favour in the market, but we believe that investor confidence will return, with the realization of the shares' growth qualities, to give them a more realistic and customary market value.

We recommend the purchase of I A C common shares at this time by investors seeking steady growth and an attractive yield.

POLICE WERE IN A LATHER AFTER CLOSE SHAVE IN CAR

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—Raymond L. Perkins, 22, had a close shave as he was driving to class at Southern Colorado State College Thursday. While using a battery-powered shaver, he lost control of his car, which crossed the street, knocked down two signs, crossed the street again, jumped the curb and stopped in a motel parking lot. Police charged him with careless driving.

Ambition Was Moon; But Death Intervened

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP—) An astronaut who said he wanted to be first on the moon and specialized in the craft that will make the trip was killed Thursday when his T-38 jet trainer plowed into a hilltop.

Maj. Clifton C. Williams Jr., 35, a member of the U.S. Marine Corps and one of the third generation of U.S. astronauts, was flying alone from Cape Kennedy to Houston Manned Space Centre by way of Mobile, Ala., where his father was reported ill.

Williams radioed the distress signal about 2 p.m., and 10 minutes later a helicopter rescue crew from Moody Air Force Base at nearby Valdosta, Ga., arrived at the scene on a plantation near Miccosukee, Fla., 15 miles north of here.

"The plane disintegrated and the body disintegrated with it," said Maj. Joe Johnson of Moody.

Johnson said the fiery plane dove down so straight it singed trees but plunged between pines 100 feet apart without touching them.

SHEPARD HEADS INQUIRY

A board of inquiry headed by the first American spaceman, Capt. Alan B. Shepard, was named to investigate the crash.

Williams was the eighth American astronaut to die accidentally, the fourth in the crash of a jet plane.

Williams was eager for space flight.

"I'd like to go on every one," Williams had said. "Of course, if you said which mission I would most like to have, I'd say the first lunar flight you can make from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and accomplishment."

Wiliams was married after his selection as an astronaut in 1963. He had one child.

Cabinet Meets To Tackle Transit Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec cabinet meets in emergency session again today to discuss action on Montreal's stalemated transit strike.

With negotiators for the Montreal Transportation Commission and its 6,000 bus and subway workers not expected to resume talks until at least Tuesday, hope for a quick end to the strike seems to lie with the government.

Late Thursday MTC Chairman Lucien L'Allier said negotiator Jacques Guilbault will not be meeting with union leaders before next Tuesday to discuss the 16-day strike.

Robert Burns, lawyer for the Confederation of National Trade Unions, parent body of the five MTC unions involved in the dispute, called the delay regrettable and said he is ready to meet with MTC bargainers at any time.

CHANGEOVER GOES SMOOTHLY

The Driver Is Always Right in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP)— Sweden's great experiment in shifting all traffic to the right side of the road is in its second month and going strong.

Authorities report traffic deaths in September were 30 below the monthly average, mostly because of lower speed limits and strong police controls that accompanied the Sept. 3 switchover.

Larks Skiold, who directed the giant overnight switch after months of physical and psychological preparation, says the old left-side-of-the-road reflexes still create a few dangerous situations. He says everybody — and particularly pedestrians —have had problems adapting to the change.

A notable tendency among drivers to be nonchalant about the new low speed limits imposed during the transitional period worries authorities as much as do motorists' troubles with left turns.

The remarkable "right-hand friendliness" which marked the early stages of the transition also is reported on the wane.

General speed limits since H-day (H stands for hoeger—right) have been 40 kilometres an hour (25 m.p.h.) in cities, 70 kilometres an hour (43 m.p.h.) on ordinary roads and 90 kilometres an hour (59 m.p.h.) on expressways.

The traffic commission this week asked the government to approve a new set of limits of 40-80-100 kilometres an hour starting Oct. 17. This recommendation was made despite statistics showing that 58 per cent of motorists and 98 per cent of cyclists and pedestrians had fallen back into their old left-hand habits at least once since Sept. 3.

But polls also showed 57 per cent of Swedes now have a positive attitude toward the right-hand system while those opposed have dropped to 20 per cent.

Checks showed only about three in 10 motorists adhered consistently to the low speed limits, especially in the cities and on ordinary roads. But the majority exceeded the limits by only a small margin.

Sharpened police patrols resulted in a seven-fold increase in speeding tickets. Critics say the limits must be raised as soon as possible.

Impaired Driving Costs Man $300

Gordon Sillars, 32, of 2574 Graham St., was fined $300 in magistrate's court Thursday for impaired driving.

The accused was charged after Esquimalt police stopped a car seen to weave as it proceeded east on Esquimalt Road at 2:15 a.m. Sept. 23.

Struck Parked Car, Driver Fined $35

Fined $35 in magistrate's court Thursday for careless driving was Joseph Crosby, 47, of 660 Jones Terrace.

Saanich police made the charge after Crosby's car struck a parked vehicle as it turned off Tillicum Road into a gas station at Carey Road Sept. 1.
